Asks to Put 250,000 Idle Men to Work

ROOSEVELT PUTS 2 BILLION PLAN UP TO CONGRESS

Vast Public Works Part of Scheme.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt in a special message to congress today proposed a far reaching program of relief for the idle, the cost of which is estimated at close to two billion dollars.

The program calls for the following three undertakings.

1. Enrollment of 250,000 idle in camps in national and state forests for employment at $30 a month on reforestation and conservation work, the estimated cost of which will exceed 200 millions.

2. Grants for federal funds to the states for support of the idle and their families for which it is proposed to issue Reconstruction Finance corporation debentures for 500 millions.

3. Construction on a vast scale of public works, designed to provide employment for the idle, for which a one billion dollar bond issue is contemplated.

Shortly after both houses listened to the reading of the President's message declaring further relief legislation "essential to our recovery program," the White House sent to the capitol the administration measure for the forestation and conservation employment plan, the passage of which, within two weeks, Mr. Roosevelt requested.

Labor Unions Opposed.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, immediately declared war on this undertaking on the ground that a dollar a day wage is inadequate, that enrollment of the idle for a year smacks of involuntary servitude, and that the operation of the plan would be detrimental to the interests of union workers.

Mr. Green's opposition caused Representative William P. Connery Jr. [Dem., Mass.], chairman of the house committee on labor, to refuse to introduce the bill on behalf of the administration, although he had previously given to the President his consent to do so. He explained his refusal on the ground that he did not want to mar a record of 100 per cent approval by organized labor.

The bill was finally sponsored by Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], majority leader of the house, and it was referred to the labor committee, which will take it up tomorrow. In the senate the bill was sponsored by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], majority leader, and Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] and referred to the committee on education and labor, which will hold hearings of administration advocates and labor opponents on Thursday.

But One Measure Formulated.

The forest employment bill is the only one of the three measures on the relief program so far formulated by the administration. The bill for a 500 million dollar grant to the states for direct relief of the idle has been drafted by Senators Wagner, Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.], and Edward P. Costigan [Rad. Dem., Colo.], but has not received the indorsement of the President up to date.

In his message, however, Mr. Roosevelt asked for the creation of a federal relief administrator to "scan requests for grants and to check the efficiency and wisdom of their use." With such machinery set up the R. F. C. would become merely the fiscal agency.

As to the scope of the proposed public works construction program Mr. Roosevelt has not committed himself. He said he is studying the projects proposed and the "financial questions involved." The billion dollar bond issue is proposed in the Wagner bill.

No Immediate Appropriation.

The President asked for no immediate appropriation for his forest employment program. He said that unexpended balances of appropriations for public works would be sufficient for the new project for several months. Senator Robinson estimated that the cost "would exceed 200 millions."

The bill provides for the enrollment for a year of idle men in a civilian conservation corps at a compensation to be fixed by the President, but not to exceed $30 a month, in addition to quarters, subsistence, clothing, medical attention, and hospitalization. Involun

Beer Sale to Start April 7 in Wet States

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.] — The Democratic campaign pledge to give the nation beer, pending outright repeal of the 18th amendment, will be redeemed tomorrow. The house today completed legislative action on the Cullen-Harrison bill, authorizing the sale of 4 per cent beer and wine by volume. Tomorrow President Roosevelt is scheduled to attach his signature to the measure, and fifteen days later it goes into effect. That will be, according to experts, on the morning of April 7.

Anticipating an eager demand for the foaming brew permitted by the new beer legislation, government officials today pushed forward plans for arranging for its sale in all states where state and local laws do not interfere. Department of justice and treasury officials asserted the machinery for supervising the production of beer and the collection of the $5 a barrel tax can be under full steam within a week.

Special Tax Stamps Ordered.

Taking their cue from stacks of inquiries which have flooded the bureaus of internal revenue and industrial alcohol, government officials have placed large orders for special tax stamps. Officials asserted today that large supplies of the stamps will be in the hands of collectors within the next ten days. Special tax permit stamps will be issued for brewers in the value of $1,000; for wholesale dealers, $50, and for retail dealers, $20.

According to results of a survey by labor's committee on the Volstead act, beer can be sold legally in 23 states immediately after the law goes into effect, at 12:01 a. m., April 7. The committee estimates that twelve additional states will shuffle off legal restrictions within the near future.

Approximately 75 million persons will be able to purchase beer legally as the result of legal obstructions already removed. The estimates of annual revenue to be obtained run from 150 millions to 250 millions. Treasury officials believe that the revenue will increase gradually perhaps to the latter figure.

Senate Causes Delay of Day.

Some sort of a slip up on the part of the senate leadership made it impossible to send the beer bill to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature tonight. When the house completed action on the measure at 1 o'clock by adopting the conference report adding wine to the original Cullen bill, its leaders found to their surprise that the senate had recessed for the day. This made it impossible for Vice President Garner to attach his signature, a necessary step before the bill can go to the White House.

The vote on the conference report settling house and senate differences over the provisions of the beer measure was viva voce, no roll call being demanded. When the conference report came up, wet leaders said they had nothing to say and were ready for the vote. Representative Thomas Blanton [Dem., Tex.], an ardent dry, demanded a chance to blow off steam and was given 15 minutes.

"This beverage," declared Mr. Blanton, "is intoxicating and unconstitutional. One bottle will produce the first stage of drunkenness. This is the most dangerous stage, as it cannot be detected. The result will be the loss of many lives in automobile accidents."

Reads Bartender's Letter.

Blanton then produced a letter from a former bartender who asserted the new beer law would supply work for a large number of "bartenders, policemen, and morticians."

"Does the gentlemen give the address of his present speakeasy?" interjected Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.].

Mr. Blanton said the writer of the letter was now a teetotaler.

Then some one took a slap at

Adopt Weekly Payment Plan for Tax Bills

Real estate taxpayers may pay their current bills in weekly or monthly installments under a plan similar to the Christmas savings clubs operated by banks, County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday.

For the time being the plan will apply only to the second installment of 1931 real estate taxes, for which the penalty date is now July 1. This date will be moved back to Dec. 1 it is expected.

Payments May Start April 1.

Taxpayers who in the past have had difficulty in accumulating several hundred dollars in a lump sum to meet their tax bills may start making installment payments on April 1 to apply on their second installment bill, Mr. McDonough said. The payments may be made in sums as low as $5 a week.

Mr. McDonough and his attorney, Thomas D. Nash, who assisted in working out the plan, said that it will entail no additional expense on the part of the county. The payments will be recorded on cards such as the banks use for their Christmas savings accounts. If the plan works as successfully as the treasurer expects, it will be extended within a few months so that installment payments may be accepted on the 1932 tax bills, payable next year.

Hopes to Extend Plan.

At a still later date Mr. McDonough said he hopes to coordinate the weekly or monthly payment plan with the proposal under which delinquent taxpayers are to be permitted to pay up their 1928, 1929, or 1930 tax bills in eight installments, extending into 1939.

Taxpayers who sign the agreement to clear up their back taxes under this plan would be permitted to do so by small weekly or monthly payments. This, however, would be complicated somewhat by the necessity of figuring the reductions in accruing penalties due to the partial payment system.

Former Rockford Official Burned to Death in Cell

Rockford, Ill., March 21.—(AP)—Ed McLee, 38, former city water superintendent, was burned to death in a cell in Winnebago county jail tonight by a fire which deputies said he apparently had started. He had been fatally burned before deputies were able to reach the cell. Smoke necessitated removal of all prisoners from the cell block which is on the fifth floor of the county court house. They were taken to a lower floor. McLee had been arrested for drunkenness.

U. S. ARRESTS C. E. MITCHELL ON TAX CHARGE

N. Y. Banker Accused of Evasion.

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank, was arrested tonight at his home, 934 Fifth avenue, charged with willfully evading payment of an income tax of $657,152 for the year 1929. He will have a hearing before United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill on March 29.

Mr. Mitchell was taken into custody by United States Marshal Raymond J. Mulligan on a warrant signed by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. The warrant was based on an affidavit and complaint by Thomas E. Dewey, chief assistant United States attorney, which charged that the financier attempted to evade the tax due on an income of $2,823,405.85 in 1929.

The return filed by Mr. Mitchell for 1929 showed a purported net loss of $48,000, which, of course, resulted in his paying no tax for that year.

President Approves Action.

Dispatches from Washington said Attorney General Homer Cummings had conferred with President F. D. Roosevelt and that Mr. Roosevelt "fully approved of the action."

This was understood to mean the President had directed that it be done. It was intimated in Washington that Mr. Cummings would have a special staff, headed probably by former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, to deal with bank cases throughout the United States.

Mr. Cummings acted tonight following completion of the investigation begun at his direction by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie. It was said speed is essential because in the case of at least one count the statute of limitations would apply in about three weeks.

The Washington authorities have directed Mr. Medalie to present the case to the federal grand jury here at once with a view to an early trial.

Text of Official Statement.

In making public the action taken by the attorney general and Mr. Medalie the department of justice issued the following statement:

"Attorney General Cummings today directed District Attorney Medalie to proceed with the prosecution of the case against Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank of New York, growing out of alleged violation of the income tax law. Mr. Medalie obtained a warrant and Mr. Mitchell was taken into custody late this evening.

"President Roosevelt has been kept advised of these developments and they have his approval.

Mitchell was taken immediately to the federal building. Mr. Mitchell was held in $10,000 bail by Judge Coxe. Bail immediately was furnished and Mr. Mitchell left the building.

Sale to Wife Attacked.

It was charged in the warrant that Mitchell purported to sell 18,300 shares of National City bank stock to his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Rend Mitchell, at $212 a share on Dec. 20, 1929, but that there was no actual sale of the stock.

The government charges the purported sale was accomplished without the passage of any money but by an exchange of letters.

The complaint states that Mitchell had a gross income for 1929 of $3,006,7..5.76, including: $1,206,195 from salaries, $140,105 from interest on bank deposits and bonds, and $1,388,237 profits from sales of stocks and bonds.

Mr. Mitchell and other officers and directors, the government contends received about $9,000,000 in bonuses in three years. Mr. Mitchell in his testimony before the senate committee said he had received a total of $3,481,732 in the years 1927, 1928, and 1929, from the management fund.

Twenty per cent of the earnings of th National City bank and the National City company after deduction of 8 per cent to be paid on capital, surplus and undivided profits were placed in the fund from which these bonuses were drawn.

The arrest of Mitchell was the direct outgrowth of Mr. Mitchell's testimony before a senate subcommittee on Feb. 21 that he had sold 18,000 shares of National City bank stock to a member of his family in 1929 "frankly for the purpose" of reducing his income tax for that year. By doing so he established a paper loss of nearly $2,800,000.

It became known at the federal building today that members of Mr. Medalie's staff were continuing their inquiry into the affairs of the National City bank in another direction, that of the management of the fund

Six Cracksmen Raid Deposit Boxes in Argo

Six gunmen blew open a vault in the Argo State bank at 6252 Archer avenue, Argo, early this morning, looted dozens of safety deposit boxes, took $4,500 of the bank's money, and escaped. The amount of the valuables taken from the safety deposit boxes could not be determined by the police in their early investigation.

Harold Lear, a janitor employed in the bank, was overpowered and held prisoner when he entered the building at 1:30 o'clock this morning and surprised the cracksmen at work. They were already in the deposit box vault, and had evidently been there for some time, perhaps two or three hours.

Drill Into Vault Wall.

The robbers entered the bank by forcing a rear door. They proceeded to the vault basement, and began working on the rear vault which contains between 150 and 200 boxes. They drilled through part of the wall, and used heavy duty snippers to sever several protecting bars. The inner vault wall still barred entrance to the boxes, however.

Into this barrier the cracksmen drilled a hole with an acetylene torch. Then, apparently, finding this method too slow, they placed their explosive. The explosion which followed soon afterward was muffled with blankets.

Surprised by Janitor.

The blast tore the wall open, and several of the robbers entered the vault. They used their instruments and probably the acetylene torch to force open many of the safety deposit boxes which they looted. It was about this time that Lear entered.

"What's this?" he inquired, startled.

"Nothing," was the answer from one of the surprised bandits. The next moment Lear raised his arms as a revolver was thrust against his side. He was tied and gagged and placed under the guard of one of the men while the others proceeded with the looting.

Gang Escapes in Auto.

The ransacking of the boxes continued for some thirty minutes, Lear said. Then the bandit leader signaled his men to prepare to leave. They filed out the jimmied door a few minutes later, taking with them some of their tools and the acetylene torch. They left blankets and the acetylene tank behind.

After satisfying himself that the robbers had departed, Lear telephoned Police Chief Michael Foran of Argo. A message reporting the robbery was flashed by radio a few minutes later giving a partial description of two or three of the men and a fuller description of their car, which Lear had seen outside on entering the bank.

Officers of the bank, including Samuel M. Frankland, 5139 Drexel boulevard, Chicago, were summoned. Frankland said that most of the bank's liquid assets are kept at the federal reserve bank.

The Argo State bank, long an institution in Argo, was reopened on March 14, following the moratorium, on orders of State Auditor Barrett.

Bomb at Dyeing Plant.

Early in the night dynamiters drove up to the plant of the National Fur Dressing and Dyeing company at 1408 North Halsted street, where a police trap had been laid for them, exploded a bomb at the front entrance, and escaped. Several shots were fired after them by the startled police guards, who started in pursuit. In the ensuing chase the terrorists tossed away a seven stick dynamite bomb in front of 1355 Mohawk street, which failed to explode. The bombers escaped.

The bombing of the fur plant, the second since Feb. 19, did about $2,000 damage. The first bomb, which caused about $1,000 damage, was originally explained as a boiler explosion.

HITLER REGIME KILLS GERMAN RULE BY PEOPLE

Ex-Kaiser's Family Given Honors.

Protest Terrorism

While Chancellor Hitler was sounding the doom of the German republic yesterday, American Jews took steps to protect their compatriots in Germany.

In Chicago a protest by organized Jewry against the Hitlerite terrorism was demanded at a meeting at the Covenant club.

In Washington the state department was visited by a delegation of the American Jewish congress. At the delegates' request the American embassy in Berlin was instructed to make immediate inquiry on the reports of terrorism and persecution of Jews.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 21.—The spirit of the German republic is dying. The new reichstag met today to bury a government by the people. The session is scheduled to last only a few days. The reichstag is expected to sign its own death warrant before the week ends and hand over to Chancellor Adolf Hitler's government absolute powers of dictatorship.

Hitler, the Austrian born house painter who served in the German army as a corporal, dominated today's spectacular drama. Because fire recently wrecked the parliament house in Berlin, the session today was held in Potsdam where memories of Frederick the Great and Wilhelm abound, all significant of empire and the Hohenzollerns.

To Ask Reichstag to Abdicate.

On Thursday Chancellor Hitler will again appear before the Nazi controlled federal legislature. He will ask its members to abdicate in favor of a dictatorship, which will extinguish democracy in Germany in fact as well as name for four years or "until the present government is replaced."

Passage of this enabling act, which was presented to reichstag leaders tonight, is practically certain. The 81 communist members are in jail, so are 11 Socialists, thus giving Hitler's Nazis complete control without the support of their 52 Nationalist allies.

[There were 647 members elected on March 5.]

This measure also will set aside the Weimar constitution of the German republic and wipe out rights considered sacred under that constitution.

Hindenburg Opens Session.

President Paul von Hindenburg, resplendent in his field marshal's uniform, and Chancellor Hitler, clad in a black cutaway and wearing an iron cross, opened the reichstag upon the 62d anniversary of the meeting of the first reichstag founded by Bismarck. The ceremony was held in the same Potsdam church where the Prussian king and the czar of Russia shook hands over the tomb of the Great Frederick to solemnize their alliance against Napoleon.

Just before the session opened, Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's right hand man, announced that a new flag had been adopted for Germany. It consists of the old imperial colors of black, white, and red, with the swastika emblem and a sun of purity in honor of National Socialism set in the white stripe.

As Conquering Heroes.

Von Hindenburg and Hitler were greeted as conquering heroes in a glittering procession to Potsdam. The 85 year old president sat in a limousine at the head of the parade. The streets were lined with a cheering populace.

The president and the chancellor reviewed the goose stepping marchers. There were 25,000 Nazi storm troopers, detachments of the reichswehr [army] afoot and on horse, Steel Helmet war veterans and auxiliary, regular and special police.

The Nazi troopers, who stand accused as conductors of a campaign of terrorism against communists, German Jewry, and enthusiastic republicans, received the loudest ovation. In Potsdam 250 persons, many of them women, were injured in a crush during the parade.

Attend Protestant Services.

Before the convocation ceremony, Von Hindenburg and former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, wearing a death's head Hussar uniform, attended services at a Protestant church.

Hitler and his minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, both Catholics, declined to attend a Catholic service in protest against the anti-Hitler attitude of the church.

The Garrison church was garlanded in green and gold army banners and decorated with laurel wreaths for the first time since the world war. The altar was covered with the same cloth used for the coronation of Kaiser Wilhelm I. in the hall of mirrors at Versailles.

Roses covered the chair of the late kaiserin and branches of fir decorated the place in the royal box once occupied by former Kaiser Wilhelm II. Today the Hohenzollern princes sat in that box.

Asks Pledge of Loyalty.

The venerable president in his address sounded an appeal to the people "for a national rebirth of the soul for the weal of a unified, free and proud Germany."

"Weighty and mighty manifold duties await you," he told the reichstag. "I know the chancellor and cabinet face with determination the difficult problems to be solved at home and abroad. I hope the members of the new reichstag place themselves loyally behind the government.

"The place where we stand recalls older Prussia, which became great through fear of God, devotion to duty, unflagging courage and selfdenying patriotism.

"Thus it united the German people. May the spirit of this hallowed place inspire the present generation, freeing it from selfish hatreds, and joining us together in a national rebirth of the soul for the weal of a unified, free, and proud Germany."

Hitler's Plea For Amity.

Hitler, standing before a golden reading desk, responded. He appealed for foreign amity. He rejected the charge of German war guilt as a lie, and asserted that neither the former kaiser nor the government desired the conflict. He promised to restore "true unity to all Germany, all states, all professions and classes.

"We want to be sincere friends to the world at large," the chancellor said, "and to possess a real peace which will help heal the wounds from which we are suffering. For years heavy burdens have pressed upon our people. After a period of proud revival, poverty and distress have visited us once more.

"Millions of Germans seek their daily bread in vain. Our economy is desolated, our finances shattered. For 2,000 years this faith has clung to our people; ever against our ascent comes our fall. The German—victim of inner disintegration, disunited in spirit, and divided in will and thus helpless in action—becomes powerless to maintain his own existence."

Homage to Aged President.

He paused and then asked the audience to rise and pay homage to Von Hindenburg, whom he described as "the symbol of the indestructible life of the German nation."

A sad and pallid looking figure at the ceremony was Dr. Heinrich Bruening, who only recently headed the government. He stood against the wall of the church. He is the leader of the Catholic Centrist party which has no place in this government.

From Potsdam the members of the reichstag adjourned to the Kroll opera house, opposite the reichstag building damaged a few weeks ago by fire which the Hitler régime charged was set by communists. The square in front of the opera house—rechristened the Square of Kings—was roped off by police.

In the center of the square stood Hitler's Nazi troops and Hitler's Nazi auxiliary police to see that all who entered possessed proper credentials. None but ambassadors was allowed to pass without being searched for weapons. A detective searched my handbag and pockets.

Imperial Flags Abound.

For the first time since the revolution which brought about the republic the republican colors were missing. The speaker's chair was draped with a huge swastika emblem and was flanked by imperial flags. Storm troopers were scattered throughout the building. The former crown prince watched the proceedings surrounded by a guard of honor of Steel Helmet men.

The right side of the opera house was a mass of brown shirts—the Nazis. Their uniforms were in striking contrast to the black suited Centrists and Socialists who assembled on the left. The Socialists sat huddled together and appeared utterly cowed.

The militant Capt. Goering, minister without portfolio and federal commissioner for Prussia, was elected speaker. He, too, sounded the spirit of the new Germany.

"The spirit of Weimar is dead," he said. "The spirit of Potsdam, which stands for duty, discipline and work, lives."

Denounces Past 14 Years.

He concluded by denouncing the "past 14 years of shame and disgrace." Not a voice was lifted in protest.

Hitler, who is sitting as a member of the reichstag for the first time, made a theatrical entrance after all the deputies were seated. His appearance was a signal for a tremendous ovation. The Nazi deputies and the Nazi audience in the galleries leaped to their feet and raised their arms in the Fascist salute.

The reichstag functioned as if it were a military machine and Capt. Goering its drill master. In nine minutes its organization was completed and within 25 minutes the first business session was adjourned until Thursday.

Germany tonight was a jubilant nation to all appearances. Bonfires flared and torchlight processions were held in every city and village. Eighty thousand cheering persons paraded in Berlin. Impetutous Nazi youths sang their battle song:

"When hand grenades burst all around
Our hearts' contentment knows no bounds."

Amnesty for Political Prisoners.

Shortly before midnight the government decreed amnesty for persons imprisoned "for past excesses committed in the heat of battle for national resurgence." The decree warned that clemency will not be extended beyond March 21 and that excesses after that date will be punishable by prison terms at hard labor.

The decree also provides penalties for the wearing or possession of uniforms or insignia of political parties without proper authorization. The death penalty may be inflicted upon unqualified wearers of party uniforms "who terrorize the people or cause difficulties with foreign governments." Germans, who commit such acts abroad, are also liable to punishment.

Another decree provides imprisonment for malicious dissemination of reports damaging to the prestige of the nation, the government or the political parties supporting the government.

Rise of Hitler to Dictator One of Europe's Odd Dramas

Fourteen years ago Adolf Hitler was practically unknown. Nine years ago he achieved a dubious kind of fame by precipitating with Gen. Erich Ludendorff the ill fated Bavarian "putsch," conceived in a Munich beer cellar. Five years ago he was the little known leader of a National Socialist party which had a puny representation of twelve in the reichstag.

Today this 43 year old Austrian born "house painter," with the dark scowl and the Charlie Chaplin mustache, rules Germany as both chancellor and virtual dictator.

Hitler was born of middle class parents in 1889—the year after Kaiser Wilhelm II. was coronated. Orphaned early in his 'teens, Hitler began to shift for himself in Vienna.

Gassed in War.

He balked at entering the Austrian compulsory military service and left for Munich. When the war broke out Hitler, then 25, enlisted in the German army. He was gassed and was awarded the iron cross.

The National Socialist party was born in 1919 as the Labor party. Hitler, the seventh member, was elected head of the propaganda department. Under his personal magnetism and his passionate oratory the party prospered.

Four years later the party, boasting a membership of 30,000, began to "feel its strength." Led by Hitler, it embarked on the Bavarian putsch and Hitler was jailed. His sentence was brief and Hitler emerged early in 1925. Significantly, it is told that the warden bade his prisoner good-by by saying:

"I, too, Herr Hitler, am now a Nazi."

Builds Up His Party.

Then beganin earnest the building of the National Socialist party throughout the nation. Playing upon every conceivable kind of prejudice, Hitler constructed his Nazi institution out of such emotional appeals as revision of the Versailles treaty, hatred of Jews, capitalism, and poverty.

National Socialism, preached Hitler, would scrap the Versailles treaty, rearm Germany, restore territory lost in the war, end reparation payments and elevate Germany again to its front rank among nations.

National Socialism, he cried, would segregate Jews from persons of other faiths. The Jews were to pay higher taxes, have special baths, and were to be barred from public office. In short, National Socialism would drive Jewry from the country.

National Socialism, Hitler added, would abolish certain forms of interest, destroy the capital hoarded in banks and give the workers a square deal. Mortgage interest and land speculation would be abolished to aid the farmers. National Socialism would assure every German work and bread, he said.

Becomes Religious Movement.

Thus, National Socialism became not a party but a religious movement. Hitler was hailed as Germany's savior. His followers became semi-fanatical in their adoration.

Then came the Nazi storm troops, a semi-military organization composed of youths. It gave them something to do when jobs were scarce.

At first, however, Hitler's movement grew slowly. Germany, still receiving heavy loans from American bankers, appeared to be prospering. In 1928 only twelve Nazi deputies sat in the reichstag.

When loans ceased and the depression settled over the reich, Hitler's speeches began to take effect. His rise to power had begun. In 1930 the Nazis had 107 seats in the reichstag and ranked as the second largest party. At the reichstag election on March 5, this year, the Nazis won 288 seats out of a total of 647. Hitler's party received nearly 18,000,000 votes. His party became the strongest.

Tightens His Position.

Hitler became chancellor last Jan. 30 after having been turned down twice last year. Once in the saddle, with the Nationalists supporting him, he consolidated his position.

In the less than two months there were the following developments:

Communist and Socialist deputies were imprisoned. Many civil liberties were abolished. All newspapers were under rigid censorship and communist and Socialist newspapers were muzzled. Jewish citizens were attacked by Nazis. Stores owned by Jews were picketed. Jewish judges and prosecutors were demoted or discharged. Many Jews fled to other lands. Prof. Albert Einstein, whose home was raided, said he would not return to live under Hitler's régime.

Nazi officials control all German states and practically every important town and city. The republican flag has been discorded for a new flag which combines the imperial black, white and red with the Nazi swastika emblem.

Nazi storm troops have been armed as auxiliary police. Armed storm troops occupied three cities in the demilitarized Rhineland, alarming France and contributing to the European war scare. Hitler is now ready to instruct the reichstag to abdicate and turn over dictatorial powers to his government.

JEWS PROTEST PERSECUTION OF RACE BY HITLER

Louis Lipsky Calls on the League to Act.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

A protest by organized Jewry in the United States against the treatment of Jews by the Hitler government in Germany, using the league of nations as the medium of attracting the world's attention to the situation, was advocated by Louis Lipsky, national chairman of the American Palestine committee and former president of the Zionist Organization of America, in an address yesterday at the Covenant club.

Mr. Lipsky had been scheduled to speak on "The American Jewish Scene," but the swiftly changing scene in Germany due to the Hitler ascendancy and the carrying out of his anti-Semitic program led him to choose instead "The Destruction of German Jewry" as his subject. The protest, he said, should be directed against the "artificial manufacture of homeless, disfranchised Jews by acts of the present German government."

550,000 Jews in Germany.

There are 550,000 Jews in Germany and Mr. Lipsky described the Hitler government actions against them as more bold, ruthless, conscienceless, than anything that occurred during the régime of Bismarck. Word had been received from Jews in Germany, he said, that a protest here might hurt them, but he is against following such a timid policy.

"The reason for protesting," he said, "is not the concern solely of the German Jews.

"We cannot afford to have Jews treated as beyond the law, trampled under foot, treated as dogs. The protest is also for the four and a half million Jews in the United States. They are treated like dogs in Germany, Austria, Rumania. The protest is in behalf of everything fine and holy in Jewish life, in the name of our children. We must assert our manhood and claim the protection of law. We can't have things like this go on. This is an infection. From Berlin to Vienna there is a bond of union, hatred of the Jews. It may spread further and the whole position of Jewish life become endangered.

"Today every Jew feels a sense of antagonism at the German world, although in the past they have been the finest interpreters of everything beautiful and creative that came out of Germany. The rise of Hitler in Bavaria was regarded at first as a comic opera incident. Hitlerism now dominates federal, state and municipal government in Germany.

A Governmental Persecution.

"The terrorism against Jews is not the sporadic effort of unruly elements, but a government affair. The effort is to efface Jews, Catholics, communists, and Socialists. It applies to all Jews, whether liberals, reactionaries, agnostics. It is an attempt on a universal scale to humiliate 550,000 Jews. They are condemned to homelessness, lack of passports, lack of human rights which no people can endure. It is a very serious business. It is a business that concerns the Jewish agencies for Palestine, now engaged in creating a national home, interrupted by the economic boycott in Poland and now by the ruthless action of the German government."

Following the address Rabbi Solomon Goldman, who presided, named a committee consisting of Louis P. Sachs, James H. Becker, Max Shulman, and himself to act upon Mr. Lipsky's suggestion of an appeal to the league. Earlier in the day Mr. Lipsky announced that arrangements had been completed with Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, for the gathering here on July 3 of the largest assemblage of Jews ever held in this country. Soldiers' field has been engaged for the purpose.

French Deputies Fight Plan to Pay Defaulted War Debt

PARIS, March 21.—(AP)—A stiff fight is expected to develop at tomorrow's meeting of the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies, which will take up a resolution urging payment of the $19,261,432 war debt interest which was due the United States last December.

Before the committee makes a decision Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour probably will set forth their views.

Deputies opposed to the resolution, who are waging a vigorous fight against it, assert that it would be a mistake to take any action before the attitude of President Roosevelt toward debt revision is more definitely known.

Edouard Herriot, whose government fell because he insisted the December payment should be made and who is leading the movement for payment now, set forth his arguments before a group of radical socialist deputies. He supported his contentions by letters from New York describing "the deplorable effect" of the chamber's refusal to pay on the due date.

At the same time Leon Blum, socialist leader, told his party group that they should continue to vote against payment until the government has been assured that President Roosevelt's attitude fulfills the chamber's condition that a general conference of creditors and debtors must be held.

The Republican federation, a group of 40 deputies, voted for further postponement of the payment. Louis Marin, leader of the group, strongly opposes payment.

The resolution advocating payment was introduced by Deputy Rene Richard, who said that recent financial developments in the United States made a gesture of friendliness particularly opportune.

ROBBERS DISARM POSTAL GUARD BUT GET NO LOOT

Four bandits, one dressed in a policeman's uniform, disarmed a United States postoffice guard last night in an attempted robbery in back of the Auburn Park postoffice at 7914 South Racine avenue. They lost heart, however, and fled without completing the holdup. Half a dozen shots were fired after them.

The guard, Ferdinand B. Thusing, 9512 South Hamlin avenue, and the driver, Clair Kehoe, 6801 South Honore street, in charge of an armored pickup truck, drove the truck in back of the postal station to collect cash receipts and registered mail. A few feet away they noticed a parked car. Kehoe alighted from the truck and entered the postoffice, leaving Thusing on the truck.

The four men in the parked car stepped toward him, all carrying guns. The man in policeman's uniform was in the lead. They surprised Thusing and took his revolver and shotgun. Then they asked him for the keys to the truck. He replied that his driver, inside the station, had the keys. Without a word the gunmen fled. Thusing hurried into the station, procured a pistol and fired six shots at them.

LAUNDRY OWNER IS BURNED IN MYSTERY FIRE

Burt Klimist, 27 years old, 3952 Addison street, was taken to the Belmont hospital last night with burns received in a mysterious fire in the Hickory hand laundry at 2021 Roscoe street, of which he is owner. Klimist told police that a man came to the rear door of the place and threw a burning torch at him. His clothing was ignited and the laundry was set on fire. The damage was slight. Chief Alvin Brandt of the 13th battalion asked the fire attorney to make an investigation.

Joseph Pavel, 6046 South Francisco avenue, and his brother, Lada Pavel, 6034 South Sarcramento avenue, were held this morning by the police for investigation into a fire which did $2,000 damage to their billiard hall and bowling alley at 5532 South Western avenue. Firemen said fire broke out at three places in the building.

U. S. CONSULS ASK DATA ON HITLER POLICY TO JEWS

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—At the request of a delegation from the American Jewish congress the state department late today directed the American embassy at Berlin to make an immediate inquiry into reports that the Hitler government was mistreating Jews resident in Germany. The embassy was advised to call on American consular officers in Germany for the facts and then submit a report to Washington.

In its communication the state department advised the embassy that the United States was deeply concerned over the reports of mistreatment of Jews. While the embassy was not instructed to make any representations, it is understood American diplomatic officials will acquaint the German foreign office with the fact that the state department was concerned.

The delegation which called at the state department was composed of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, honorary president of the American Jewish congress; Bernard Deutch, New York, president of the organization, and Max Rhoade, Washington representative of the congress. Rabbi Wise asked that the state department take the necessary diplomatic steps to protect the Jews in Germany.

DATO UNFOLDS A STORY OF HIS LOST BUSINESS

Puts Blame for Troubles on John D. Jr.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Edward Ali Dato, engineer, real estate broker, and former trustee of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust, summoned reporters to his offices at 936 Lake Shore drive yesterday and said he had an important story to make public.

Flanked by his confidential adviser, Mr. Dato sat at a big Chinese desk, called for a portfolio of documents, and for two hours unfolded a story showing how, in the final settlement of Edith Rockefeller McCormick's estate, he had lost his business, his trusteeship and the partner of his better days, Edwin D. Krenn. The only tangible thing he could show for his ten years' association with Mrs. McCormick and Krenn, he said, was $703,435 in debts.

Looks Over Vacant Desks.

As he spoke, Mr. Dato cast a melancholy eye over the rows of vacant desks in the once busy office of his firm of Krenn & Dato, former agents for the Rockefeller McCormick properties.

His troubles and those of Krenn & Dato, he implied, were created by Mrs. McCormick's brother, John D. Rockefeller Jr. Professing to feel no ill will toward Mr. Rockefeller, he averred nevertheless that it was Mr. Rockefeller's influence that resulted in his loss of the trusteeship and of Krenn & Dato's loss of the Rockefeller-McCormick real estate agency.

"It was like Pontius Pilate washing his hands after the judgment," he said. "The Chicago Title and Trust company was made executor of Mrs. McCormick's estate. Mr. Rockefeller just washed his hands of the whole thing, and look where I am. When Pilate washed his hands it was as if he thought to drop everything and leave the thirty pieces of silver for the soldiers. That's Pontius Pilate."

3 Sentences and a Shrug.

As for his former partner, Krenn, who was Mrs. McCormick's intimate friend and remains her principal heir if there is finally anything to inherit, Dato dismissed him with three sentences and a shrug.

"Under Mrs. McCormick's instructions," he said, "it was my duty to raise him to the standard of a business man while she was rising him to the dignity of a society man. She raised him into society, all right, but I—well, I do not care to talk about Mr. Krenn. He still has his five-twelfth share of the Rockefeller McCormick trust and I have only debts and a promise of indemnity."

Mr. Dato's glance strayed to the etchings on the wall, etchings which Krenn had drawn and dedicated to Mrs. McCormick when she picked him up as an obscure draughtsman in Switzerland long ago. The pictures carried Dato back to his own youth in the Russian Ukraine, to his Swiss school days with Krenn, and finally to the organization of the Rockefeller McCormick trust in 1923. Even in those days, he said, there was friction between Mrs. McCormick and Mr. Rockefeller.

Wants To Do Great Things.

"It was as if you had a brother, who had entire control of your family's fortune and was doing great things with it," he said. "Mr. Rockefeller was a great philanthropist, and Mrs. McCormick wanted to do great things, too. So she put up $5,000,000 to start the trust with the idea of doing great things in real estate for Chicago. She and I and Krenn were trustees and the provision was that the trust would continue until her death."

It was in June, 1930, seven years after creation of the trust, that its provisions were changed, Mr. Dato disclosed. At that time, he said, Mrs. McCormick had to undergo a serious operation at the Passavant hospital and, fearing she might be in the shadow of death, she had the trust amended so that he and Krenn would continue in control for fourteen years after she died. Mrs. McCormick recovered, but the amendment, he said, was made to stand.

It was in June, 1932, Mr. Dato recalled, that Mr. Rockefeller first introduced the Title and Trust company into the situation. The trust had become embarrassed for cash following the market crash of 1929, Dato explained, and he had signed personal notes for above a million dollars to meet the trust's mortgage payments, being protected by an indemnity agreement.

John D. Jr. Comes Here.

It was early in June, when Mrs. McCormick was feeling the first effects of the malady which caused her death two months later, that Mr. Rockefeller came here from New York to advise his sister financially, Dato said. Neither Krenn nor Dato participated in the conferences between the brother and sister, it appears, but following Mr. Rockefeller's return to New York a letter arrived which acquainted them with a plan to displace them in the management of her affairs. Dato produced a copy of the letter, which, he said, Mr. Rockefeller sent to Mrs. McCormick. It follows:

"Dear Sister: Through friends we have been in communication with the Chicago Title and Trust company, and they are convinced that if you will ask Mr. Pettibone, the president of that company, to call on you he will be able to submit a plan which in the long run should work out more satisfactorily. I hope that you will get in touch with him at once.

"It is needless for me to point out the embarrassment that may come from delay. Affectionately, [Signed] JOHN."

Conference Is Called.

The letter was dated June 23, 1932. Within a few days, Mr. Dato said, Mrs. McCormick summoned him and Krenn to the McCormick home for a conference with Holman D. Pettibone, the official suggested by Mr. Rockefeller. There, he said, a plan was suggested whereby Krenn & Dato might relinquish management of the trust, with stipulations for the protection of Dato and other creditors set forth in a memorandum. Dato produced a copy of the memorandum.

"Adequate assurance must be given that the East (the Rockefeller interests) is financially behind the Chicago Title and Trust company in working out the plan," was one stipulation.

With Mrs. McCormick's illness growing graver the plan languished, Mr. Dato said, adding that no support was forthcoming from "the east." Upon her removal from the mansion to the Drake hotel and with the arrival of her children for a deathbed reconciliation, he added, his attorney and himself were no longer able to visit the sickroom.

Urged to Resign.

"When the family found that the trust amendment gave us control for fourteen years," Dato said, "there was a conference. Some of the lawyers told me I better resign as the creditors wanted new faces in the picture. I resigned and so did Krenn. Then they wanted us to cancel the management contract.

"They kept me in an office from 11 a .m. to 7 p. m. Krenn gave in about 5 p. m. and agreed to resign, but I held out until 7 o'clock. I don't know yet why I agreed to it. They promised Krenn and me $12,000 a year each. We each got $1,000 and then the Title and Trust company told us there wasn't any more."

DRY REFORMER GILDAY GUILTY; GETS $100 FINE

Convicted of Assault in Shooting Case.

Daniel Gilday, 67 year old reformer, who while intoxicated on Nov. 29, 1931, shot and severely wounded a youth who was trying to help him to his home, was found guilty of simple assault and fined $100 last night by a jury in Judge Philip L. Sullivan's Criminal court. The verdict, finding him guilty of a misdemeanor under a minor count in the indictment, acquitted him of the major count, assault to kill, a felony.

Gilday was prosecuted originally during the former Swanson régime, convicted of assault to kill and sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary. The Supreme court, however, reversed the conviction on technical errors and ordered a new trial, which resulted in the minor punishment inflicted last evening.

Young Victim Recovers.

Herman Knol, 19 years old, 7224 South Carpenter street, was the victim of Gilday's bullet. He spent 16 days in a hospital and several weeks in his home before he recovered from his wound.

Gilday did not take the witness stand in his second trial. However, former associates in the Better Government association, of which he was once a director, testified as to his good character.

Knol Takes Stand.

Young Knol testified that just before he was shot he saw Gilday being assisted by Herman Alkema, 19, 7210 South Sangamon street. Alkema, a friend of Knol, was having difficulty in handling Gilday, so Knol went to his aid. Without any warning, Knol said, Gilday drew a revolver and fired. A number of witnesses testified that Gilday was so intoxicated that he could not walk without staggering. Attorney William Scott Stewart in behalf of Gilday was unable to shake the testimony of the prosecution witnesses and he agreed to allow into evidence a pint bottle of whisky found on his client following the shooting.

"We Want Cash"

Five hundred school teachers marched into the office of Acting Mayor Corr in the city hall yesterday, carrying banners and demanding that the city take action to give them pay in cash. Their banner read, "We Want Cash—6½ Months of it."

The march, it was learned, was organized by teachers at Calumet High school, and Miss Frances Donovan of that school headed a committee which was admitted to his inner office to talk with the acting mayor.

"I'm in sympathy with your aims," began Mayor Corr.

The acting mayor then explained to the teachers that lawyers disagree over his powers of office and that legislation to clarify them is now pending at Springfield. He promised to help the teachers as soon as his legal status in office is settled.

Although Acting Mayor Corr authorized the city payday yesterday, both the pay warrants and the tax anticipation warrants which were deposited with City Treasurer Kearns in return for the pay roll funds bore the signatures of Mayor Cermak. The pay checks were prepared and signed last October when the pay roll became due and the tax warrants were signed shortly before the late mayor's death under a proxy which he negotiated on his deathbed in Florida.

LOVE AFFAIRS OF OFFICER BARED IN BRITISH SPY TRIAL

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 21.—Strenuous efforts to protect the proud name of the Seaforth Highlanders were made before Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart of that famed regiment was brought to trial before a court martial. This was revealed today when the lieutenant's trial on ten charges of espionage was resumed.

Lieut. Col. Frederick Syms, who was assigned to question Lieut. Baillie-Stewart before the charges were brought, spent a long session under cross-examination. The rest of the day's hearing was held behind closed doors in order to protect witnesses whose lives might be jeopardized because they are foreigners.

Women Brought into Case.

"Do you remember an occasion some time after Lieut. Baillie-Stewart's arrest when you were present in the room of a witness, who will be called for the prosecution, named Lieut. Cromwell?" Norman Parkes for the defense asked Col. Syms.

"I took a statement from him," was the reply.

In reply to further questioning Lieut. Col. Syms denied that he had told Lieut. Cromwell that Lieut. Baillie-Stewart had been bragging to other officers about his affairs with women.

"What I told him," Lieut. Col. Syms said, "was this: Cromwell wanted to see him and I thought that in Cromwell's own interest it would be better if he didn't until the thing worked itself out and more was known about it. I didn't want Cromwell to know that Baillie-Stewart was suspected of betraying his country and I did not want the name of the regiment brought in. I did tell Cromwell that Baillie-Stewart had said he had been intimate with a woman and had been paid money for it."

Hints at Third Degree.

Parkes switched to the accused man's original examination.

"Did Baillie-Stewart complain at the interview that you were trying the third degree?" he asked.

"He did not," was the reply.

Lieut. Col. Syms denied having cross-examined the defendant, declaring that he had merely asked him for details concerning the mysterious "Marie Louise" who sent Lieut. Baillie-Stewart $450 in cash from Berlin.

Who this woman is or whether she is a woman at all is still unknown. The accused has given no clew except that she is 22 years of age and fair and that the money was sent him "for services rendered" after a romantic incident in a Berlin park, according to the prosecution.

The board has received $3,531,420 in 1931 taxes, of which $2,542,223 is for the educational fund, $949,196 for the building fund, and $40,000 for the school playground fund. The payment of 6 per cent interest on the warrants will amount to more than $100,000.

FINAL O. K. GIVEN BEER BY HOUSE; SALE IN 15 DAYS

Roosevelt to Sign Bill Today.

Bishop James Cannon Jr., the Methodist whose activities have figured prominently in congressional investigations and district courts.

"Bishop Cannon and the Anti-Saloon league mean no more to the prohibition cause than does Fred Britten," retorted the Texan, referring to the scrappy wet leader from Chicago.

A shout of laughter met the sally as Representative Britten jumped to his feet.

"I object," he shouted, "to having my name coupled with that of Bishop Cannon."

Get Down to Action.

Blanton's denunciation completed, amidst the jeers of the wets, the report was approved and congressional action had removed the restrictions on beer sales after thirteen years of national prohibition.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey's brief announcement that the report had passed brought a chorus of cheers, and then the legislators turned to the farm bill.

Inquiries directed to leaders on both sides of the caitol failed to uncover any reason for the series of legislative delays which culminated today in the senate receding without awaiting house action on the beer bill. Had the senate stayed in session last week the bill could have gone to the White House Saturday. Then the house adjourned yesterday just as the senate was approving the conference report, thus delaying action on the bill until today.

In some senate quarters it was said that the lukewarm attitude shown by many of the southerners to the beer program had been in part responsible for the early senate recess today. The net effect of the delay has been to put off the legalization of beer three days and deprive the treasury of estimated revenues amounting to more than $1,000,000.

Mrs. Patten Gives Reward for Extortionist's Capture

Mrs. James A. Patten, widow of the wheat king, yesterday sent $500 to the Evanston police department as a reward for the services of its members in capturing Axel Peterson, who confessed sending her extortion letters demanding $50,000. She suggested that the money be used to buy summer uniforms.

PABST PLANT SPENDS $2,000,000 GETTING READY FOR NEW BEER

Milwaukee, Wis., March 21.—[Special.]—In the last two weeks the Pabst corporation has spent $2,000,000, most of it in Milwaukee, in preparing for the return of real beer. An announcement to this effect was made tonight by Fred Pabst, chairman of the board of directors.

Sixty million bottles, the same number of labels, thousands of barrels and beer cases, fourteen truck trailers and three tractors were included in the new equipment and supply purchases Mr. Pabst said. His company today applied for a permit to build a new tank house with a capacity of 80,000 barrels of brew. The building is to be six stories in height.

The Schlitz company reported that it had already received large orders for the new brew, some of them from Europe, Japan, and Porto Rico. Three thousand men, it was said, have been employed by the city's breweries in the last ten days.

Lettering Company Head Ends Own Life in Garage

George Steere, 62 years old, head of the sign lettering company bearing his name at 434 South Dearborn street, was found unconscious from a bullet wound in his head in a garage in back of his home at 7143 Lafayette avenue last night. A revolver was lying by his side. He died a short time later in Auburn Park hospital. The family said that he had been depressed over financial conditions.

BARKEEPS' UNION READY TO REVIVE A PIOUS CUSTOM

Always Opened Meetings with a Prayer.

Old time union bartenders yesterday predicted that an ancient and pious custom of the profession would be revived with the return of legal beer. It was the practice to open all union meetings with a prayer by the president, who would invoke divine deliverance from the temptations that beset a bartender.

The bartender's union is still in existence and its members are ready to set up the foaming steins, John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago federation of labor, said. The international is known as the Hotel and Restaurant Employés' International Union and Bartenders' League of America and there are locals in all large cities, said Mr. Fitzpatrick. The headquarters of the Chicago local are at 227 West Madison street.

Still Has Union Card.

Edmund J. Butler of 2917 Warren boulevard, a bartender until about 1912, still has his union card, dated 1890.

"Yes," said Mr. Butler, "the president always opened the meetings with a prayer expressing thanks for the blessings bestowed upon us and asking divine aid in our efforts to resist temptations. I believe the bartenders were the only union men who opened their meetings with prayer."

There were many temptations for the bartenders, old timers recalled, and there was need of divine assistance to keep them from the evils of getting drunk [on the house's best liquor], of short changing customers when their wits began to slow up, of pocketing the change, known as "sleepers," left on the bar between drinks, or of "knocking down" on the till.

The union bartenders were strong in the outlying districts, where the saloons were frequented by working men who were themselves union, and the men who demanded service from a barkeep who wore the identifying union label on his coat.

Organize Speakeasy Barkeeps.

In recent years the hoodlum element has organized a considerable portion of the speakeasy bartenders, usually riffraff, and collects from them 50 cents a month. However, the old time union men say they have nothing to do with these upstarts and that most of the respectable bartenders in the old days became waiters or kept on tending bar in legitimate restaurants.

Thirty-six former bartenders in the John P. Harding restaurants have been kept on the job all through prohibition, some of them as waiters, others as cashiers, and a few as bartenders. The Harding bartenders, however, were not union men. They will be ready to serve up real beer as soon as it is lawful to do so, Mr. Harding said.

RETURN MURDER VERDICT.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder by persons unknown yesterday following investigation of the death of Fred Russo, 34 years old, 700 North Cicero avenue, who was found strangled in the rumble seat of an automobile on March 12.

CITY TO GUARD BEER INDUSTRY FROM GANGLAND

Acting Mayor Corr yesterday announced a conference on Friday with Corporation Counsel Sexton, Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court, City Clerk Brady, City Collector Kaindl, Police Commissioner Allman, Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, and the chairmen of all city council committees to draft laws to safeguard the legal beer industry from gangsters and racketeers.

Ordinances similar to those in effect prior to 1919, which governed the operation of the old saloon, are to be discussed. The main idea at present, Acting Mayor Corr said, is to keep the gangs out of the beer business.

Keep Gangsters Out.

"The state's attorney should be given every coöperation to keep the gangsters out of the city," the acting mayor declared. "As far as the mayor and police are concerned the state's attorney will have our help. To help regulate the sale of beer we may ask the legislature to give us supervision over breweries."

The question of bonding beer dispensaries was before the city council finance committee yesterday. The plan had only one defender, Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th], whose political associates are in the bonding business. The bond costs $40 a year and Alds. O'Grady, Nelson, Bowler, and Clark said that the sum is wasted as the bond is not proof of the good character of the licensee, and the bond is no protection to the city or to the patrons of the place involved. Adding unnecessary financial burdens to the beer business will only continue the manufacture and sale of bootleg beer, Ald. Nelson said.

Expect Decision Today.

Many of the aldermen said the best method of ascertaining the character of an applicant for a beer license would be to accept the district police captain's recommendation and to take him before the trial board if his recommendations prove in error. A decision is expected today in the finance committee.

The concern of city officials, it was said, is to provide such regulatory measures as will safeguard beer selling and drinking so that no evils will result to turn the country against the repeal of the 18th amendment. Before prohibition the state and city had laws to curb the liquor traffic and keep it within reasonable bounds.

Five lawyers gave opinions yesterday agreeing that the repeal of the Illinois prohibition law did not revive the laws that previously regulated the sale of liquor. The lawyers are Floyd Thompson, former Supreme court justice, Oscar E. Carlstrom, former attorney general, Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel, Michael Ahern of Nash & Ahern, and Benjamin F. Goldstein.

These attorneys pointed out that the Supreme court has ruled that the prohibition act "was a revision of the whole subject of liquor legislation and intended as a substitute for and to repeal all existing laws on the subject."

Attorney Carlstrom said the cities and villages act still contains the provision that the sale of liquor to minors, known drunkards and others, may be forbidden and it also gives authority to proceed by injunction and abatement against any place termed a nuisance.

Chicago's city ordinances have been repealed, too but new ones may be enacted in one day and become effective in ten days, it was explained. Mayor Corr said he hopes to have them in existence on the day the federal beer act becomes effective which is expected to be April 7.

Willis McFeely, village president of Oak Park, said the suburb has been dry territory since it was first settled although a majority of its citizens voted wet in recent elections. Still, he believes, the residents do not want saloons or beer stores in their midst and he is going to bring up the question soon at a board meeting.

The Berwyn city board by resolution, last night ordered an ordinance to be drafted regulating the sale of 3.2 per cent beer. This will be voted on next week.

Blue Island to Act.

Mayor Frank Kasten of Blue Island said ordinances will be passed there forbidding the sale of 3.2 beer to minors and prescribing qualifications for those licensed to sell beer. Mayor Frank Bruegmann of Harvey said ordinances will be ready by April 6 and licenses restricted to one for each 1,500 of population. Harvey has approximately 20,000 population, he said.

Mayor Daniel Bergin of Chicago Heights said a bond will be required there for each beer license. Mayor Joseph Schwarz of Homewood said the old laws are to be revived and put in force there.

The charter of the village of Winnetka forbids the sale and manufacture of liquors within the town limits. The Winnetka board last night decided that the town must be kept in the same position in respect to liquor that it always has been—absolutely dry.

Ralph Hawxhurst, village president of Kenilworth, said that Kenilworth's only prohibition is the zoning ordinance barring saloons, and that consequently there appears to be no other obstacle in the town against beer.

Wilmette regulations are considered to be anti-beer, but it was said last night that there is sentiment favoring more liberal ordinances.

The Evanston city council on Monday took steps for the regulation of the entry of beer which had been purchased outside the city, but no traffic in the beverage is to be permitted within the city.

$1,200 TAKEN IN STORE HOLDUP.

Four bandits took $1,200 and two watches yesterday in a holdup of the men's furnishing store of Fred H. Bartholemew at 2353 West Madison street. After holding up Bartholemew and his son, Fred Jr., they pushed them out the back door and then fled by the front entrance.

IMPETUS OF BEER ALREADY FELT IN U. S. INDUSTRIES

Long Chain of Businesses Starts on Upswing.

Business is already being helped by the promised return of legal beer sales, according to reports flowing in from all parts of Chicagoland.

Breweries are beginning to spend their receipts from the legal sale of the beverages even before the receipts roll in. Several hundred extra workers have been hired already by Chicago brewing concerns and at least 1,000 others have been promised jobs between now and April 6. These new employés have been chosen from the lists of experienced persons who applied for jobs early.

More Jobs in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, long a center of the brewing interests, has estimated that the return of legalized beer will cut its relief rolls by more than half. Large numbers of workers have already been called back there after a long layoff for prohibition.

The importance of the new deal in beverages is not confined to those directly connected with the industry. One expert yesterday pointed out that steps toward prosperity should be taken by various allied lines.

"In fact," he said, "there has been increased activity among these industries in the last few weeks. The bottle and cap makers saw their stocks leap up on the exchange when it became certain there would be real beer sales. Naturally they will get orders for their products.

Barrels and Bottles.

"Barrels are more in demand than they were and coopers have to work to make them. Glass makers have to have sand and coopers have to have wood. So the chain of events moves back to mining and lumbering. And remember, the railroads and the trucks and waterways have to haul the raw materials.

"If beer consumption reaches the amount we believe it will there must be work for trucks and chauffeurs. Beer is bulky and if the people are weaned away from gin and magic whisky, taking to beer that is fifteen times as weighty, there is bound to be an increase in transportation business. That works back as an aid to the automotive companies.

"It can't be said that beer will bring back prosperity, but it will help a lot. Besides, the various governments will receive handsome increases in revenue."

Berghoff Starts Advertising.

Brewing concerns are seeking retail customers and retail representatives. The Berghoff Brewing corporation at Fort Wayne, Ind., which manufactured German type brews from 1887 to 1920, and has maintained its organization through the prohibition era, today starts advertising the merits of its product in THE TRIBUNE.

Berghoff has planned a series of advertisements, describing its new improved methods of manufacture. Other breweries are planning to follow at once.

KILLS WIFE WITH BLOW.

ROOSEVELT ASKS IDLE RELIEF TO COST 2 BILLION

Urges Congress to Take Quick Action.

tary allotments from such compensation may be made to the dependents of enrolled men in such amounts as the President may direct.

The enrolled men are to be housed in camps and employed on the forestation of national and state lands, the prevention of soil erosion, flood prevention, repair and maintenance of roads and trails in national parks and national forests and other national reservations. Wherever skilled artisans or expert laborers are required, as in the construction of camps, the President may authorize their employment at the prevailing wage rates of the locality.

Fears Wage Depression.

"Labor will be greatly alarmed because it will fear that the imposition of a form of compulsory service, under military control and army rates of pay, will depress and lower wage scales and wage standards paid and established for similar work," said Mr. Green.

"The inauguration of a reforestation and reclamation program on as large a scale as possible, sufficient to employ many thousands of idle workers, is laudible in itself, but labor believes that such work should be carried on through the use of ordinary business methods and that workers employed should be paid the prevailing rate of wages for the work performed and should be permitted to work as free men under normal, ordinary working conditions.

"The enlistment feature, with time of service circumscribed, the substitution of the military code for the control of civil units, the lower grade of pay wherein workmen enlisted in the civilian conservation corps would compete with free labor and would render valuable service at a rate of pay much lower than their training and qualifications warrant, the enforced separation of the breadwinner from his family or the locality in which he lives are some of the outstanding features of the proposed legislation which are highly objectionable and to which labor must in self-defense interpose its objections."

Text of Message.

Following is the text of Mr. Roosevelt's message to congress:

"It is essential to our recovery program that measures immediately be enacted aimed at unemployment relief. A direct attack in this problem suggests three types of legislation.

"The first is the enrollment of workers now by the federal government for such public employment as can be quickly started and will not interfere with the demand for or the proper standards of normal employment.

"The second is grants to states for relief work.

"The third extends to a broad public works labor creating program.

"With reference to the latter I am now studying the many projects suggested and the financial questions involved. I shall make recommendations to the congress presently.

Relief Money Gone in May.

"In regard to grants to states for relief work, I advise you that the remainder of the appropriation of last year will last until May. Therefore, and because a continuance of federal aid is still a definite necessity for many states, a further appropriation must be made before the end of this special session.

"I find a clear need for some simple federal machinery to coördinate and check these grants of aid. I am, therefore, asking that you establish the office of federal relief administrator, whose duty it will be to scan requests for grants and to check the efficiency and wisdom of their use.

"The first of these measures which I have enumerated, however, can and should be immediately enacted. I propose to create a civilian conservation corps to be used in simple work, not interfering with normal employment, and confining itself to forestry, the prevention of soil erosion, flood control, and similar projects.

Calls Work of Practical Value.

"I call your attention to the fact that this type of work is of definite practical value, not only through the prevention of great present financial loss, but also as a means of creating future national wealth. This is brought home by the news we are receiving today of vast damage caused by floods on the Ohio and other rivers.

"Control and direction of such work can be carried on by existing machinery of the departments of labor, agriculture, war, and interior.

"I estimate that 250,000 men can be given temporary employment by early summer if you give me authority to proceed within the next two weeks.

"I ask no new funds at this time. The use of unobligated funds, now appropriated for public works, will be sufficient for several months.

Called Established Policy.

"This enterprise is an established part of our national policy. It will conserve our precious natural resources. It will pay dividends to the present and future generations. It will make improvements in national and state domains which have been largely forgotten in the last few years of industrial development.

"More important, however, than the material gains will be the moral and spiritual value of such work. The overwhelming majority of unemployed Americans, who are now walking the streets and receiving private or public relief, would infinitely prefer to work. We can take a vast army of these unemployed out into healthful surroundings.

"We can eliminate to some extent at least the threat that enforced idleness brings to spiritual and moral stability. It is not a panacea for all the unemployment, but it is an essential step in this emergency. I ask its adoption."

HENRY B. WARNER SEEKS TO DIVORCE HIS ACTRESS WIFE

Hollywood, Cal., March 21.—[Special.]—Henry B. Warner, veteran movie star, filed a petition for divorce today in which he accuses his actress wife, Rita Stanwood, of staying away nights and refusing to explain where she had been. Warner asks a decree of grounds of mental cruelty. The pair were married in Chicago in 1915 and separated March 4, 1931, according to Warner. A property settlement has been reached, attorneys said, and it also was said that the couple had agreed on dividing the time of their three children, Joan, 14; H. B. Junior, 12, and Lorraine, 10.

Former Bank Teller Sent to U. S. Prison for Theft

Carlo Pizzorno, 34 years old, former exchange teller of the closed Alliance National bank, 1604 West Chicago avenue, yesterday was sentenced to three years in prison by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on a plea of guilty to embezzlement. According to Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton, Pizzorno failed to appear for work Sept. 31, 1932. The same day officials of the bank received a letter from him confessing the theft of $7,600 in exchange funds, which he said he had lost betting on races.

CANADA BOOSTS TAXES; NATIONAL DEFICIT GROWS

New Budget Puts Levies on Many Articles.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., March 21.—New and increased taxes estimated to yield $70,000,000 were imposed on Canadians today in the 1933 budget presented to parliament by Edgar N. Rhodes, finance minister.

The budget shows a deficit of $53,608,000, estimated revenues being $310,817,000 and expenditures $364,425,000. The national deficit for this closing fiscal year was $156,000,000, including a $60,000,000 Canadian National railway deficit.

The most direct new touch on the ordinary Canadian pocketbook is effected by a new income tax schedule, which, along with a lowering of old exemptions, makes the smaller wage earner a substantial contributor to the federal treasury. Under its provisions the income tax of a married man earning $2,500 a year jumps from $2 to $15; the taxation on a $10,000 a year married man jumps from $355 to $546.

Big Business Hit.

Taxation on corporation incomes is raised from 11 per cent to 12½ per cent and exemptions are removed; a 5 per cent tax is imposed on interest or dividend disbursements to nonresidents; a 5 per cent tax is imposed on foreign interest or dividends cashed in Canada at exchange premium; a host of articles are removed from exemption from the 6 per cent sales tax; special new excise taxes are imposed on cosmetics and toilet preparations, automobile tires and tubes, cigaret papers, and malt extracts. Sugar is taxed two cents per pound.

An excise duty of $2.50 per proof gallon is imposed on distilled spirits for proprietary medicines, extracts, and pharmaceutical preparations, and $1 per proof gallon is imposed on spirits used to fortify native wines.

Provides Aid for Farmers.

Through an agricultural stabilization fund the government will protect food producers from the unsettling effects of the British exchange. From this fund will be paid on exports the difference between the price received and the pound sterling at $4.80. Beginning tomorrow the British pound will be valued here for purposes of special or dumping duties at $4.25 instead of $4.40, as at present.

The new budget leaves the Canadian tariff practically as is pending researches by the recently appointed tariff commission.

Plan Cut in Interest Rates.

Finance Minister Rhodes announced a move to reduce interest rates, with the government leading the way by curtailing interest on deposits in government postal savings banks. A new Canadian conversion loan to effect interest savings will be floated this year on a basis, Rhodes said, "to keep faith with investors."

The government's financial estimates show a pruning of expenditures all along the line and an estimated surplus next fiscal year, commencing April 1, of $2,000,000, leaving out of account certain deficits on the publicly owned railways.

Rhodes concluded with the declaration that he saw no cause for Canadian despair in the present situation. He lauded the impending world economic conference as a hopeful event leading toward better times.

ROOSEVELT PLAN ON FARMS STIRS PRESS COMMENT

Some Attack It, but Others Defend It.

Editorial comment on the farm bill, offered as part of the program of the Roosevelt administration, follows:

BALTIMORE EVENING SUN [Ind. Dem.]—The farm bill may or may not have been a good bill as it came from the White House, but it certainly was not a good bill as it came from the house agriculture committee for the committee struck out the provision that all jobholders employed under it should be subject to civil service rules. The President himself admits this farm bill is pretty dizzy legislation even if it is administered honestly and intelligently. The risks involved are serious.

BOSTON HERALD—There is little disposition in New England to protest against either the principle or the details of the farm bill. New Englanders are willing to suspend their judgment and to give the bill a fair trial-and-error eriod before interfering much with the policy which Roosevelt has outlined. In short, they are in a "take-a-chance" mood.

BOSTON POST—This farm relief plan is a price fixing scheme. It is admitted that the cost to consumers will amount to at least $500,000,000 a year. The history of price fixing schemes is a sad one. This domestic allotment plan seems a very costly, highly doubtful remedy. Yet, something of the kind must be given a trial.

BOSTON TRANSCRIPT—The secretary of agriculture is told that, whatever he does for the farmer, he must somehow see to it that the average urban consumer is also enabled to buy at least as much for his money in the near future as he could during the blessed period from July, 1909, to August, 1914. How this marvelous two-way result can be brought about, except by some process of magic, we confess we are skeptical. Let the federal government concentrate on the sound idea of reducing crop acreage by renting land from the farmers, and let the cost be spread at large among all the taxpayers. This at least would be in the line of common sense, and would not invite urban ruin in the name of rural relief.

DETROIT FREE PRESS—The sensible thing for the sponsors of the President's agricultural relief bill to do will be to invite frankly any reasonable amount of clarifying criticism and discussion with a view to finding out just what may be the excellencies and defects of the measure and for the purpose of correcting errors and making improvements in it. Farm legislation is urgent, but not so urgent that congress should pass a complicated measure without thoroughly understanding all it contains and what it is likely to produce of good or evil.

KANSAS CITY STAR—President Roosevelt, in submitting his farm plan to congress, made this very significant statement: "I tell you frankly that this is a new and untrod path. If a fair administrative trial of it is made and it does not produce the hoped for results I shall be the first to acknowledge it and advise you." This statement gave another striking "line" on the new President. Roosevelt is not to be bound by pride of authorship or record of committment. He has assumed leadership with boldness and confidence, but not as one who thinks himself infallible. . . . Should this sweepingly inclusive measure, with its radical departures from precedent, be classed with such pressing emergency measures as those pertaining to banking and the budget?

MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE—The bill grants to the secretary of agriculture powers that may rightly be termed dictatorial and it is upon his use of these extraordinary powers that we must depend for success or failure. Powers so great and varied can be used for weal or woe. It is an experiment that should be given a fair trial. For this reason we can see no reason for any substantial amendment to it.

MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL — For four years farm relief programs have been shunted about in Washington. Conflicting elements have played hob with farm problems—the conviction has grown that this is a one man job. . . . anxious as are all persons concerned in the farm problem to uphold the hands of the President, they can not fail to meet his implied invitation to aid him in exposing the dangers and eliminating defects.

MINNEAPOLIS STAR—The farm bill in itself does not offer a solution of anything. It simply directs the secretary of agriculture [which is Washington's way of saying the President] to solve it along any or all of a dozen lines. President Roosevelt has fully earned the right to ask congress to have faith that he will make intelligent and effective use of the power he now asks to experiment with the agricultural dilemma.

NEW YORK TIMES [Ind. Dem.]—The bill requires the government to perform an especially difficult task. In order to restore the ratio of 1909-'14 it would be necessary, on the present basis of nonagricultural prices, to increase the price of wheat to about 88 cents a bushel. . . . As the general level of prices rose it would be necessary to keep farm prices advancing continuously. . . . "Parity" would thus be reached only when the government overtook a moving goal, and would be maintained only so long as the government kept abreast of it.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE [Rep.]—The reception accorded the administration's farm relief bill shows at once that the almost complete unanimity of opinion which swept the banking and economy bills to enactment has vanished. There is a slightly curious touch in the comment; if it is difficult to discover anywhere a thoroughgoing opposition for the measure it is almost as hard to find anything even approaching enthusiastic support. . . . Nor is the administration's own policy in the matter entirely frank and well reasoned.

OMAHA WORLD-HERALD—The plan is flexible. It combines various methods with the one purpose of vesting in the government every proper power to bring about the desired end at the earliest possible moment and increase in farm prices to a parity with other commodity prices. For that reason and because in all probability it is this plan or nothing and because the entire country has full confidence in Roosevelt as the farmers have confidence in Secretary Wallace and because the plan has the endorsement of the great farm organizations as well as of the ablest farm economists it should not be opposed for slight reasons or in ignorance.

PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER—This measure goes entirely too far in conferring dictatorial powers on the President and his secretary of agriculture, in marking the most extensive invasion of private business and industry yet proposed and in placing a new and heavy burden on every consumer. . . . As it stands, this is the worst farm bill ever written. It sets up a dangerous dictatorship bolstered by a new bureaucracy and vastly extends the government's invasion of private business. The justifiable sympathy of congress for the unfortunate farmers should not blind it to the follies and perils contained in this extraordinary measure.

ST. PAUL PIONEER PRESS—As President Roosevelt declared when he laid his farm program before congress, this legislation contemplates an experiment along new and untried paths, it is accordingly fortunate that it does not attempt at the outset to prescribe rigidly the kind of conveyance that must be employed in negotiating roads as yet unseen and unexplored. The administrative officers are left free not only to pick the most feasible of alternative methods for each crop but to change from one to another system if such change seems advisable.

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE—The fourth of President Roosevelt's "commandments," the farm relief bill, presents problems, both political and practical, which were not found in the simpler ones that preceded it. A large share of the new members of congress come saying "our people sent us here to get relief and we are going to get it." Left to themselves they might stampede congress into ruinously radical steps. Perhaps only a presidential measure radical enough to keep these extremists from going too far can protect us from something much more radical.

SAN FRANCISCO DAILY NEWS—A new note has been struck. We read these words in the President's message on agriculture: "I tell you frankly that it is a new and untrod path." Here we have a President who admits he might be wrong, who is willing to go into the laboratory, try the experiment, find out whether it will work and recant and try again if he is mistaken. That is the scientific method. Let us fervently hope that among his many other accomplishments Franklin D. Roosevelt will continue to inject that method into politics.

Found in Alley

A small postoffice safe, which had been blown open and the contents removed, was found yesterday in an alley in the 2300 block of North Austin avenue. Postal inspectors took the safe to the federal building. Chief Inspector K. P. Aldrich said that no report of a postal safe burglary had been reported in the Chicago district.

ESTIMATES LOSS OF FARM BOARD AT $350,000,000

Morgenthau Says Assets Only $150,000,000.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—(AP)—Henry Morgenthau Jr., new farm board chairman, today estimated losses from the board's stabilization and other operations during the Hoover administration at about $350,000,000.

Of the original $500,000,000 fund placed in the hands of the board, Morgenthau explained there is a balance of about $38,000,000 in cash and "good loans" which he said former Chairman James C. Stone, who retired March 4, had estimated would bring the assets of the board to from $140,000,000 to $150,000,000.

In revealing portions of the new administration's policy Morgenthau presented a detailed analysis of the old board's cotton operations, which he said indicated a loss to date for that commodity of $159,254,349.

Will Continue Coöp Aid.

The balance from the revolving fund will be sufficient to carry out the board's new loan policy under which it will continue making advances to coöperatives that are able to quality. Each coöperative seeking aid hereafter will be examined thoroughly to determine its financial responsibility, Morgenthau said.

He will require that it present a budget, and added that the payment of "high salaries" would not be approved.

"No loans will be made available for speculation," he declared.

Morgenthau reported that the Cotton Stabilization corporation, set up by the board to "peg" cotton prices, would be abolished when its present holdings are disposed of, as will the Grain Stabilization Corporation of Chicago.

The latter organization, which has had approximately 100 employés recently, will have around four on April 1, Morgenthau said.

Cotton Coöp Owes $71,015,748.

As of Feb. 28 last the American Cotton Coöperative association owed the board $71,015,748.31, he said.

"It is estimated," he asserted, "that if the 1930-'31 operations of the American Cotton Coöperative association were entirely liquidated, the loans of $60,424,979 could be decreased by about $3,375,000, indicating a deficit of about $57,000,000 to the farm board as of Feb. 28, 1933."

The house of representatives, acting under White House orders, today began its job of putting through a farm relief measure more radical and far reaching than the one that failed.

The house debate on the new Roosevelt farm dictatorship bill commenced amid cries of "Gag rule!" on the part of the bill's opponents.

"I admit it," retorted Representative William B. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] on behalf of the rules committee, from which came a resolution limiting debate to four hours and prohibiting all amendments. "You are going to vote the bill as it is, up or down," said Mr. Bankhead, and the house by a vote of 184 to 102 adopted the resolution and proved that the final vote tomorrow will be "up."

ROOSEVELT PLANS UNIFIED CONTROL OF TRANSIT IN U. S.

Bill and Message Expected Soon.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—The cabinet toiled with President Roosevelt this afternoon. Most of the discussion, it was learned, concerned the administration's plans for reviving the railroad industry.

A definite program will be completed within a week or two and presented to congress, according to Secretary of Commerce Roper. He is in charge of drafting the plan. Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, despite his arduous duties in the banking emergency, also has kept in touch with the railroad situation. He believes the President will submit his railway plan to congress within the next fortnight.

For Unified Control.

It is expected that the first step will be to merge the various federal transportation agencies into one, with rails, high roads, air, and water interstate transit under its control. Part of that can be done under authority recently granted to the President, but legislation will be required to grant Mr. Roosevelt the power to abolish or change the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission.

Secretary Roper said the administration plan is being submitted today in Chicago to members of the railway executives' association by a committee of three railway presidents.

Those rail officials have been working with the commerce department and in the next day or two will report the views of other executives to Secretary Roper. From that point progress is expected to be rapid.

Won't Ask Debt Delay.

On behalf of the President it was stated at the White House that he has no intentions of asking congress for authority to defer war debt payments, such a report having been published in New York. The White house expects payments, it was declared. Before the adjournment of the present session of congress the President will ask the appointment of an advisory committee drawn from both houses to advise the President during the pendency of the debt negotiations.

The general belief in administrative quarters is that the President will effect a postponement of the debt payments due on June 15 pending the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements with the debtor nations, but for the present the President is unwilling to stir up dissension over the debts, either in congress or over the nation.

The President was represented at today's cabinet meeting as satisfied that the farm relief bill sponsored by the administration will be passed without necessity for his putting any direct White House influence to bear.

BACK ROOSEVELT, TAMMANY CHIEFS TO CONGRESSMEN

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Uncompromising orders to support every measure on the Roosevelt administration's legislative program have been sent to the members of the house of representatives from Manhattan and Brooklyn by Tammany Hall and the McCooey organization, it was learned today.

The order is understood also to extend to the representatives from Queens and Richmond.

Thomas H. Cullen of Brooklyn, assistant floor leader of the house, received the orders. Immediately upon receipt, it was learned from Washington, he called the New York City delegation into conference and explained to them what the city leaders had decreed.

The first test of the efficacy of the instructions will be furnished tomorrow when the house votes on the farm relief bill sponsored by the President.

CRUZ ALTA, Argentina, March 21.—(AP)—Ricardo Pignon, 5, shot and killed Pedro Bernaola, a tax collector, when the collector visited his grandfather's home. The boy said he heard the visitor demand money and believed him to be a kidnaper because he heard much discussion recently of abductions and killings.

LIMITED FUSION IN PROSPECT FOR COURT ELECTION

Democrats Talk of Backing Some Republicans.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Coalition on a bench ticket for the judicial elections June 5 remained in the fog yesterday. Sentiment among the Democratic leaders seemed to be against fusion on the terms suggested by the Republican committeemen. The Democratic organization had held the question in abeyance until its program for legislation on the Chicago mayoralty has got under way at Springfield, but the general talk yesterday was that any fusion agreement would have to be of a limited kind.

Of the 20 Circuit judges whose terms expire this year, twelve were indorsed in the primaries of the Chicago Bar association last month. Endorsement was refused to six, and two other judges are not candidates for re-election.

Talk of Indorsing Republicans.

Of the 12 Circuit judges indorsed seven are Democratic and five are Republicans. In the preliminary gossip, many of the Democratic ward committeemen hold that any coalition should be confined to the indorsement by the Democrats of Republican judges in view of their high standing and records and their indorsement in the bar association primaries. Among Republicans spoken of in such connection are Circuit Judges Hugo M. Friend, David F. Matchett, Kickham Scanlan, Daniel P. Trude, and William V. Brothers, who were among the nine highest judges in the bar primaries.

One proposal from Republicans is for coalition on a basis that would give the Democrats 11 places on the Circuit court slate and the Republicans 9. It proposes that Judge John Prystalski, Democrat, be slated by both parties for reelection to the Superior court, that the Democrats get the Horner vacancy on the Probate court, that the Taylor vacancy on the Superior bench go to the Republicans, and that Justice Frederic R. De Young be slated by both parties for the Supreme court. There are several varieties of fusion proposed, but such is the one most in the Republican gossip yesterday.

Democrats Debate Proposals.

Among Democratic ward committeemen and the patronage officeholders there was considerable talk of putting up a full Democratic ticket. Some of the leaders, however, are counseling that in the general interests of the bench it would be well to indorse some of the leading Republican judges, and they argue it would strengthen the prestige of the Democratic party. Considerable study was given the line-up of the Circuit court judges as they finished in the bar association primaries. It was as follows, the numbers denoting the order in which they ran:

INDORSED AT BAR PRIMARIES.

Democrats.	Republicans.
1—Wilson	2—Friend
4—Burke	3—Matchett
8—Sullivan	5—Scanlan
10—Lynch	7—Trude
11—Finnegan	9—Brothers, Wm. V.
12—Biseck
13—Normoyle

NOT INDORSED, FAILING OF MAJORITY.

16—Caverly	14—Rush
18—Fisher	15—Feinberg
	17—Brothers, D. M.
	19—Klarkowski

Judges Thomas Taylor and Mary M. Bartelme are not candidates for re-election.

Methods of obtaining a better judiciary were discussed yesterday noon at the City Club forum. Three speakers favored appointment instead of popular election for some of the courts.

Andrew R. Sherriff, chairman of the committee on coöperation of the press and bar of the American Bar association, outlined a bill he is sponsoring at Springfield for the selection of Municipal court judges in Chicago by the mayor from a list submitted by the state Supreme court, the city council to have power of concurrence.

SUIT IS FILED AGAINST KIRK AND DAUGHTER

Walter R. Kirk and his daughter, Beatrice, who was recently adjudged bankrupt, were accused yesterday of "entering into a conspiracy to cheat the creditors of Miss Kirk." The charge was made in a suit filed in the federal district court by Arthur C. Wick, trustee in bankruptcy for the estate of the society girl.

The suit seeks to enjoin Kirk from disposing of a wrist watch and a ring which, Miss Kirk testified at the bankruptcy hearings, she sold her father for $150. The jewelry is valued by Mr. Wick at $3,600.

TAXI ORDINANCE DRAFTING IS PUT OFF FOR A MONTH

Offer Amendments to Aid Independents.

Any solution of the city's taxicab license problem was delayed for at least a month as a result of action taken yesterday by the council local transportation committee and traffic regulation committees.

The committees' action took place at a crowded session in the transportation committee's small hearing room. After more than 150 persons had jammed into the room Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the local transportation committee, was asked to move the hearing to the council chambers, but he refused.

Returns to Subcommittee.

The result of the meeting was to refer back to a subcommittee all amendments suggested for the present taxicab code. The subcommittee will not be able to report back during the life of the present council, which expires April 5, the day following the aldermanic run-off elections. The new council will probably not be organized and ready to do business until after the middle of April.

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] attempted unsuccessfully to get action on an ordinance which would take up the unused licenses now held by the large taxicab companies and issue them to independent drivers who have been trying, unsuccessfully, to get licenses to operate.

Ben Samuels, vice president of the Yellow Cab company, told the committee that that concern has 2,350 licenses, 150 more than the number of cabs it owns. Michael Sokol, president of the Checker Taxi company, said that his company has 1,500 licenses and is operating only 1,200 cabs.

Provides for Appeals.

Ald. Bowler proposed an amendment providing for appeals to the city council from rulings of the public vehicle license commission in taxicab license cases. Ald. Nelson objected, asserting that it did not remove the inherent difficulty in the present "monopoly ordinance" under which the applicant for a license must demonstrate to the commission, over opposition from attorneys for the large cab companies, that public convenience and necessity require another taxicab on the streets.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], suggested, in place of an amendment offered on Monday by Ald. Nelson which would allow no company or individual more than 50 per cent of the taxicab licenses outstanding, a provision that independent cab operators be given 10 per cent of all licenses. The Checker and Yellow companies, which are connected through holding companies, now have about 80 per cent of the taxicab licenses.

Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], advocated reduced taxicab fares, holding that the reduction would stimulate business.

Now! the flakes used in the finest homes at the LOWEST PRICE in HISTORY

AMERICAN FAMILY FLAKES

In the Wash Bowl—Make thick suds in warm water and cool to lukewarm. Soak silk stockings, lingerie, and other delicate fabrics for a few moments and squeeze the suds gently through them. Rinse in lukewarm water and roll in a towel to dry.

Caution—Colored garments should be tried in clear water before being placed in suds to be sure they are made from fast colors. American Family Flakes will not affect fast colors.

For Dishes—American Family Flakes dissolve at the touch of hot water. Dump a few flakes into your dishpan and turn on the water, and you will have rich instant suds that will get the greasiest dirt quickly without harm to your hands.

NOW, and from this day on, American Family Flakes at the lowest price in history! The same pure flakes that are used exclusively in Chicago's finest homes!

Long ago we made these flakes so pure that they give rich double-suds ... do twice the work. —By creating them especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region.

Now we have reduced the price of this famous Chicago product to so low a figure that you'll find it—more than ever before—"the greatest bargain of them all."

Today, buy this purest of flakes—Kirk's American Family —and put it to work for you. You will use less flakes. Because it is all pure soap. You will do less work. Because it makes a rich double-suds that floats out the dirt without hard rubbing. You will have more time ... your clothes will wear months longer ... and you'll have more money! Look for the new low price in your dealer's advertisements.

BOLIVIAN ARMY SURROUNDS FOE IN JUNGLE WAR

Paraguayans Fight with Backs to Wall.

For nearly a year an undeclared war has been raging in the jungleland called Gran Chaco, in South America. The "war" is between Paraguay, a tiny state, and Bolivia, one of the larger nations of South America.

Official statements by the two governments have told briefly from day to day of this struggle which, diplomats fear, may involve the entire continent. These statements have given little of the real color and tragedy of this strange war.

A Tribune correspondent, after a difficult journey across Brazil, has finally succeeded in entering the actual battle zone of the Gran Chaco. He herewith presents the first real story from a neutral of this jungle war, which the United States, South American neutral nations, and the league of nations have sought, in vain, to settle.

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PORTO SUAREZ, Bolivia, March 20.—[By Courier to Corumba, Brazil.]—Paraguayan forces are today fighting with their backs to the wall at Fort Nanawa (Ayala), the Verdun of the Gran Chaco wilderness. Yesterday 2,000 Paraguayan troops retreated from the Fort Jordan sector, which includes Forts Saavedra and Alihuata, for new positions at Forts Gondra and Falcon, enabling the Bolivians to tighten further their viselike grip on Fort Nanawa.

A Bolivian victory at Fort Nanawa will, neutral military observers believe, mark the beginning of the end of the undeclared war which has been raging since last June for possession of this swamp land.

Recent Bolivian successes are attributed to a combination of German military strategy and restored a slipping morale. The Paraguayan advance last October and November had bent the Bolivian lines westward past Forts Toledo, Loa, and Platanillos and it was expected that Paraguay would quickly end the conflict. The Bolivian army plainly was disorganized, weakened, and discouraged by sickness and the hard climate.

Calls on German Militarist.

It was at this critical point that the hard pressed Bolivians called upon Gen. Hans Kundt, former German army officer, to take command. What is believed to be the final stage of the war, at Fort Nanawa, has thus developed into a duel between German and French tactics, for Gen. Jose Estigarribia, the Paraguayan leader, fought with the French army during the world war.

The Fort Nanawa phase really had its inception early last December when the Paraguayans, fresh from victories in the northern sector, turned to the task of subduing the last remaining Bolivian strongholds in the southern Chaco.

Their objective was Fort Munoz, Bolivian headquarters, but first they had to break through a ring of three protecting forts, Saavedra, Aguarica, and Murguia. They were apparently well on their way to penetrating this defense when the Bolivian defense tightened and piled back attack after attack with heavy losses. Gen. Kundt had arrived.

Forts Are Recaptured.

Not only was the Paraguayan advance arrested in the Saavedra sector but in the north the Bolivians recaptured Forts Platanillos, Loa, and Corrales and advanced along the all-important roads to the east with the object of effecting a junction with the southern armies before Fort Nanawa.

(Practically all fighting in the Chaco must occur near or along the network of roads, for elsewhere the swamps and jungles are virtually impassable.)

Then, late in January, despite the distance from the Bolivian base of supplies and despite the fact that the rainy season was on, Gen. Kundt ordered a counter-offensive. Fort Nanawa, east of Saavedra, Aguarica, and Murguia, was the objective.

The strategy was successful. Plowing through lakes of soft mud, the Bolivian troops, possessed with a new offensive spirit, battled their way east. Lacking a plantiful supply of drinking water and depending on uncertain communications with the rear, the Bolivians, mainly through sheer confidence inspired by Gen. Kundt, carried out the encircling tactics mapped out for them by their commander.

Hem In Paraguayans.

The right wing of the Bolivian army, starting from Fort Munoz and crossing Fort Cuatro Vientos, launched an attack from that direction on Fort Nanawa. The northern wing of the army is bearing down from Plantanillos and Corrales. And the center, having driven the enemy from Alihuata and the rest of the Fort Jordan sector, is preparing to push eastward from there.

If the Paraguayans collapse under this three-ply pressure there will remain no fort of any consequence between Fort Nanawa and Concepcion, second largest city in Paraguay proper, just across the Paraguay river.

Paraguay, however, still holds several advantages which may again turn the tide. Its troops are close to their supplies. Fresh troops will be able to go to he defense of Fort Nanawa provided the roads do not become impassable. And, Paraguayans point out, the Bolivians are far from home and will soon have exhausted their food, water, and ammunition.

PARAGUAYAN ARMY'S LAST STAND

Arrows on larger map show (1) Forts Saavedra and Jordan, from the vicinity of which Paraguayan troops were hurled back by Bolivian army in the Gran Chaco on Monday, and (2) Fort Nanawa, the present scene of battle. Dispatches said the Paraguayans are fighting desperately to prevent being driven from this position which blocks the road to Concepcion, second largest city in Paraguay. The shaded portions on both maps show the disputed land. The smaller map indicates the area in relation to Bolivia and Paraguay.

VETERAN TEACHER DIES.

SITUATION TENSE AT TIENTSIN; FEAR SINO-JAP CLASH

TIENTSIN, China, March 21.—(AP)—The situation has grown tense here again and indications are accumulating that a crisis is approaching between the Chinese authorities and the Japanese military command.

Today it was reported that the Nanking government had instructed Yu Hsueh-Chung, commander of the Chinese forces in the Tientsin area, to delay no longer in replying to the latest Japanese protest against the fortification of Taku, at the mouth of the Peiho river, and gainst the presence of Chinese troops within the Tientsin protocol zone.

Yesterday a Japanese staff officer called on the governor of Tientsin, but the nature of their conversation was not disclosed. Later, however, several cannon shots were fired by Japanese gunners. This was contrary to practice and the Chinese said it was without warning.

M'DONALD BARES PLAN TO GET U. S. IN PEACE SCHEME

Wants America to Assist Europe in Troubles.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 21.—Premier Mussolini's plan for a four power agreement among Great Britain, France, Italy, and Germany struck a snag today.

Following an all day conference with Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon of Great Britain, who arrived here this morning from Rome, Premier Daladier announced that before France can accept the scheme important modifications must be made. He said France would accept the plan "in principle."

PREMIER DALADIER. [Acme Photo.]

Among the modifications Daladier had in mind was one that Poland and the little entente (Rumania, Czechoslovakia, and Jugo-Slavia) be included in the agreement as equals.

Reveals Snare for U. S.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister MacDonald revealed the hopes of Europe to enmesh the United States in its plan to keep peace on the continent. Following his long conversation with the French premier, MacDonald told the press that the "moral support" of America is "ardently desired."

"We are thinking as Europeans," he said, "but we feel that there are many open ears in Washington and throughout the United States listening to what is being said in Europe about disarmament and peace.

"I am sure that many of these people would gladly spring to our assistance in what we are trying to do in a peaceful spirit, consistent with American policies."

France Outlines Views.

Premier Daladier following his conference with the British statesman issued a communique in which he said:

"The French ministers thank their colleagues for the information they furnished, which will enable them to proceed with a closer study of the proposals put before them. They will communicate further with each other without delay."

The French premier declared the nature and extent of the proposed revision of the peace treaties under the Mussolini plan must be defined more clearly, and he insisted that whatever plan may be adopted, it must be within the limits of the league of nations covenant. He said Poland and the little entente must be treated as equals and that France would never consent to their affairs being regulated by the big powers without consulting them.

U. S. ELECTRICAL FIRM DISCUSSES ITS STATUS WITH SOVIET TRUST

MOSCOW, March 21.—(AP)—Various phases of the International General Electric company's work in soviet Russia were discussed in general terms today by representatives of the company with officials of the All-Union Electrical Trust.

The conversation was the result of the recent arrest of 35 Russian electrical engineers, with some of whom the International General Electric company was more or less closely connected in the course of its operations here. These engineers now are facing trial on charges of sabotage in power stations.

DISARM PARLEY PLANS TO RECESS FOR ONE MONTH

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, March 21.—Officers of the disarmament conference decided today that at next Thursday's meeting, called to discuss the British disarmament plan, the delegates would discuss instead demands from several sides for adjournment of the conference for four or five weeks, over Easter.

It is probable that such an adjournment will be adopted for several great powers, including the United States, want more time to consider privately and discuss the British draft treaty and the Mussolini plan.

Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese delegate, unexpectedly returned to Geneva today with the mission, it is understood, of reminding the conference that Japan submitted a naval plan before the British did, and demanding that it be discussed first. It is reported that Mr. Matsudaira also will serve warning that Tokio does not intend to renew the London naval treaty.

Chilean Ship Sends S O S from Magellan Straits

VALDIVIA, Chile, March 21.—(AP)—The steamer Chiloe, anchored in nearby Corral bay, intercepted a distress signal tonight from the steamer Tarapaca, which said the Tarapaca was stranded at Point Munoz Gamero in the straits of Magellan and was urgently in need of help. The Tarapaca, a Chilean vessel of 3,841 gross tons, was bound for the east coast with a cargo of lumber, sulphur, and peas from Chilean ports.

Swarms of Bees Kill 11 Horses; Man May Die

ALICANTE, Spain, March 21.—(AP)—Huge swarms of bees today attacked the drivers and horses of three wagons on a highway near here. Two of the drivers fled. The third remained trying to unhitch the horses. He received stings which may prove fatal. Eleven horses were killed. Only one escaped.

China Extends Court Pact with Powers Three Years

SHANGHAI, March 21.—(AP)—An agreement reached in February, 1930, between China and the United States, Great Britain, France, The Netherlands, Norway, and Brazil, relating to the reorganization of the former provisional court in the Shanghai international settlement, was extended today for three years beginning April 1.

THAT KIND OF PEOPLE

You know certain people, perhaps several, of whom you can honestly say, "Whatever that man might manufacture, I would be glad to buy it."

In no merchandise is that quality of character so vitally important as in shoes.

In no merchandise is that quality so difficult to identify as in shoes.

This applies with equal force to people who sell shoes. For 44 years this store has been building a shoe business. Today it is looked upon by shoe manufacturers, leather concerns, style authorities, as the largest, most complete shoe section in the world.

The tremendous physical size is gratifying to us; but it doesn't interest us half as much as understanding why it has grown to such importance.

We explain it thus: Any store which makes a religion of quality, which knows its facts, which puts its customers' interests first, which strives to make itself an indispensable service to its community—such a store is destined to grow great.

That's our attitude toward our business.

CONOCO

FOUND! the "hidden quart"* THAT STAYS UP IN YOUR MOTOR AND NEVER DRAINS AWAY

...Mechanic Elder Schaffner Found the Hidden Quart... Also that Without it, Motors Show 50% to 60% Greater Wear ...So He Switched to Conoco

* The Germ Process (exclusive Conoco patent) imparts to this motor oil that peculiar ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces. Of the first filling about one quart will "hide" itself up in your motor's precious working parts. This hidden quart n-e-v-e-r drains away. It becomes a part of the motor itself, worth its weight in gold.

MECHANIC SCHAFFNER REPORTS ON DISCOVERY:

"I never did believe what Conoco Germ Processed oil would do; not until an Essex owner, with 25,000 miles on his speedometer, asked me to check his motor and put in new parts where necessary. It surely surprised me; clearance of pistons was only four 1-thousandths; of bearings only three 1-thousandths of an inch.

"This owner said he had used Conoco Germ Processed oil since the car was new. I have overhauled many another Essex at 25,000 miles, which has not used this oil, and found the wear 50% to 60% greater. Now I recommend Conoco Germ Processed Oil to my friends, and have changed to it in my own car."—Elder Schaffner, Highland, Ill.

Stop Cruel Motor Wear . . . Escape its Painful Cost

Don't Wait Another Day to Drain and Refill With Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil

To a motor, lack of lubrication is cruelty indeed. You are too "humane" to permit it, if only you knew the truth. But motors suffer in silence till costly damage is done. Then you pay . . . and pay . . . and pay.

50% of motor wear occurs in the moments following a cold start. Ordinary oil drains back into the crankcase and leaves the motor dry, till it is pumped back up again. Not so, with Conoco's hidden quart. It stays up in the motor and never drains away.

This is proved. Even with the crankcase empty, due to accident, users of this oil have driven many miles, without damage, on the *hidden quart alone.

Isn't it smart and thrifty to have a *hidden quart up in the parts of your motor, where you are sure it cannot fail? It is so simple to be safe! so foolhardy to be in doubt. Tend to it today. Go now, drain and refill with the *hidden-quart oil. Do it for safety's sake.

ILLINOIS HOUSE SHIES AT MAJOR ECONOMY BILL

Minor Portions of Plan Approved.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—[Special.]—Some progress toward cutting the costs of state government was made in the Illinois house of representatives today. Four minor bills of the Burns' economy program passed but a major plank—slicing the salaries of Supreme court justices—became entangled in a maze of opposition.

Democratic and Republican votes alike caused postponement of this measure, which is a key bill in the all inclusive plan suggested by James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee], who claims that its passage would save the commonwealth 15 million dollars annually.

Six Dodge Voting.

The vote was 71 to 61, or a total of 132 cast. When the roll of attendance was called earlier in the day 138 members answered their names. Thus six or more representatives "ducked" their votes; that is, failed to answer or were in the cloakroom.

The Horner floor leader—Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island—opposed passage of the Supreme court bill in its present form. He advocated delay until some "systematic economy plan" could be presented. The Republican leader—Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago—also voted against considering it immediately, so with both chieftains in league against the measure, it failed of passage.

Later action in the house passed four minor bills of former Judge Burns' program. They would cut the salaries of assistant attorneys general, shorthand reporters employed by judges of Circuit, Superior, and city courts, secretaries to Appellate court judges, and the state librarian.

Will Continue Efforts.

"I am, of course, glad these bills passed," said Mr. Burns, "but they are not primary planks in my program. The Supreme court bill is a cardinal bill. I intend to call it again tomorrow."

Supreme court justices' pay would be reduced from $15,000 to $10,000 if the Burns bill finally passes. As originally proposed the slice would only have been to $12,000. Mr. Burns reminded his colleagues today that they had gone him one better by an amendment extending the cut to $10,000.

But, instead of standing with their own action, the members voted to postpone consideration, following Sennett's lead.

Former Judge Burns was bitter when the Sinnett motion had been made and seconded from the Republican side.

"This motion comes from those who stand against any kind of economy," he declared. "It is poppycock, bunk, and hypocrisy to attempt to prevent a vote on this bill."

New Bill Gives Horner Powers.

If the action indicated today is to be the fate of part, or perhaps all, of the Burns program—and the sponsor has hopes that he can eventually put through a goodly portion of it—then those proponents of economy may be forced to put their faith in another bill now on second reading in the senate.

This measure was sponsored by Senator Ritchie V. Graham of Chicago, the president pro tempore. It would give Gov. Horner, the other elected state officers, and members of the cabinet broad powers in effecting economies without the necessity of legislative procedure.

Specifically, it would give them authority to reduce the wages of clerks, typists, and other employés of their departments at will. It does not bind them to pay the amounts set aside for such personal service through department appropriations.

Might Reduce Salary Scales.

Thus, if an appropriation bill allowed the employment of six stenographers in a department at a wage of $150 monthly, the department head could slice this to $100 if he saw fit, in the interests of economy.

The section of the proposed measure containing this delegation of power reads as follows: "When an appropriation is made for personal service for specific positions at a fixed rate or at a rate not to exceed a certain amount the incumbents of such positions shall be paid as such rate in full or a smaller rate may be paid."

The bill carries an emergency clause and if passed would become effective immediately. It now rests on second reading.

Burns Cites Roosevelt Plans.

Action on the Burns bill today began when the sponsor took the floor to advocate its passage and reminded his colleagues that President Roosevelt had won the confidence of the people because the major plank of his platform called for sufficient reductions in the cost of government to enable the taxpayers "to see some light."

"The President," Burns declared, "has sponsored tax reductions never before dared, but have we done anything in Illinois? We have made no sincere effort and we can't pass the buck any longer. We have prated about economy; today there are 138 members present. This bill requires 102 votes. Let's pass it."

First opposition came from R. V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago], who called the bill "gymnastic arithmetic," "a bad measure," and a bill which would "undermine the integrity of the judiciary." He added that it would create a situation wherein judges of the Circuit and Superior courts of Cook county, whose salaries are now $15,000, would be receiving more pay than members of the high bench.

Schnackenberg Opposes Cut.

Schnackenberg, the Republican leader, opposed the bill, because it levied a one-third pay cut on "overworked judges."

"Are you in favor of any sort of reduction?" asked Burns.

"I'm afraid I'm opposed to any cut at all for these men," replied Schnackenberg.

Mr. Sinnet then came forward with his postponement suggestion.

"If we pass this bill," he said, "the five justices to be elected in June would be receiving only $10,000, while the two others not up for reelection would continue to draw $15,000—one of them until 1939. We should have a postponement until some system can be applied to an economy program."

"Put the bill back to second reading," counseled Sol P. Roderick [Rep., Chicago]. "Let's agree upon a reasonable reduction."

"You've had that opportunity already," Burns retorted, "and you reduced my out from $12,000 to $10,000."

The roll call on Sinnett's motion to postpone then began.

When his name was reached John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon] presented what many regarded as a sensible suggestion. He proposed leaving the salaries at the present figure, but abolishing the $5,000 appropriation for secretarial hire allowed each judge. Each would then be required to hire his own clerks and stenographers.

A tally of the roll showed that 45 Democrats and 26 Republicans composed the 71 votes postponing consideration of the measure.

G. O. P. REFUSES AGREEMENT ON CHICAGO MAYOR

Horner's Effort to Get Accord Fails.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—[Special.]—More than a two hour effort to effect a harmonious agreement for the election of a Chicago mayor with the full powers of the office came to naught today.

After spending most of the afternoon in Gov. Horner's office spokesmen for both the Democratic majority and the Republican minority in the general assembly, together with representatives of both party organizations in Chicago, emerged with the announcement that no agreement had been reached.

Thereupon Rep. Benjamin S. Adamowski, one of the Democratic spokesmen, went to the capitol floor above and introduced the party bill intended to give full powers to an acting mayor, under slight protest from Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Republican floor leader. It was advanced to second reading and will be up for consideration as a regular order of business tomorrow [Wednesday] at noon in the house.

Result Not Unexpected.

The result of the conference with Gov. Horner was not a surprise. Long before it opened the Democrats had expressed a desire for an immediate primary followed closely by an election. On the other hand, the Republican organization had voiced the demand that the entire matter be put off until fall. Almost no likelihood of an agreement was admitted when the conference began.

With Gov. Horner the naturally dominant figure, the Democrats also were represented by A. J. Horan, proxy for P. A. Nash, the newly elected national committeeman; William H. Sexton, corporation counsel of Chicago, who has more or less held the destinies of the city in his hands since the fatal shooting of Mayor Cermak; Cornelius J. Harrington, counsel for the Democratic organization of Cook county; Controller M. S. Szymczak of the Chicago city unit, Speaker Arthur Roe, and Majority Leader Thomas M. Sinnett.

The Republican group included the veteran former speaker, David E. Shanahan of Chicago, Minority Leader Schnackenberg, John F. Tyrrell, counsel for the Cook County Republican Central committee, and Representative David I. Swanson.

Neither Side Jubilant.

As they emerged from the conference neither element glowed with the signs of victory. Gov. Horner made the official announcement that no agreement had been reached and Adamowski gave out copies of the revised bill he intended to introduce a few moments later.

"In cities having a population of more than 500,000 inhabitants," read his proposed new section of the cities and villages act, "the city council shall elect a mayor from its own membership or not, as the council shall determine, to act as such and exercise and possess all the rights and powers thereof until his successor is duly elected and qualified."

In other words the Democrats stood pat on their proposition that an acting mayor should have full powers of his office. The Republicans, on the other hand, argued that such complete powers could not be conveyed except through a special primary and election, which they designated for 1934, and that any interim legislation would be faulty.

The Republican proposal was that if a new mayor is elected in 1934 he not only would serve out the remainder of the Cermak term, running to April, 1935, but a full four year term in addition.

MRS. M'LAUGHLIN CALLED TO STAND IN DAMAGE SUIT

Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, wife of Maj. Frederic McLaughlin of Lake Forest, was called to the stand and questioned about her finances yesterday at the hearing of the $10,000 damage suit in which she is the defendant. The case is being tried before a jury in the Circuit court of Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan. The plaintiff, William Schroeder, Lake county farmer, charges Mrs. McLaughlin with false arrest and malicious prosecution.

When Mrs. McLaughlin took the stand she was asked by Attorney Richard L. Miller, representing Schroeder, to tell what she possessed of value.

"I own nine $1,000 bonds and two saddle horses," she replied.

Mrs. McLaughlin caused the plaintiff's arrest in May, 1931, for alleged ill treatment of hogs on his farm. He was found guilty and fined $10 by a justice of the peace, but appealed the case to the Criminal court of Cook county and won a verdict of not guilty.

On the stand yesterday Schroeder, who weighs 270 pounds, said that Mrs. McLaughlin had visited his farm many times as the representative of a humane society and had "pushed and bruised him." He asserted he had always treated his hogs well.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE CONGRESSIONAL QUICKSTEP.

Thus far President Roosevelt and his advisers have found congress responsive to the quick tempo set by the White House. The work on Capitol hill has proceeded with the machine gun rapidity recommended as necessary. The questions immediately presented were such as contained the time element as the first consideration. Great emergency was on the doorstep and the people of the country needed reassurance that their social and political structure could be shored up. Furthermore, there was a pretty general agreement regarding the principles and provisions of the legislation proposed, and in considerable part it had been thoroughly discussed before the extra session.

The President had a working majority of his own party in both houses and the support of the minority was available when needed. Party pledges covered some of the legislation and house and senate were disposed to yield privileges of debate in favor of quick action. No one would contend that quick time is essential or advisable for the normal course of government, and certainly Mr. Roosevelt would not expect it. Some of the congressmen are now beginning to protest and say they must not be expected to vote blindly on bills they have not read, with the terms and details of which they are unfamiliar. Such a protest is too reasonable to be ignored.

As emergency recedes, more deliberation is not only permissible but is even mandatory. The President's influence is strong and for some time to come he will be able to avoid undue delays and calculated obstruction. The time also approaches when he will find congressional opposition taking its usual course. He will not find it so easy then to carry through his recommendations. The political honeymoon has its time limit and the normal habit on Capitol hill is not complacent. Fortunately, the emergency legislation has handled some very important issues, including preëminently the disposal of the all important question of reducing the bureaucracy and its oppressive costs.

Manifestly the time now comes when questions must take the normal course, allowing criticism to develop its points and compelling the advocates of measures to defend them against all reasonable objections. Opinion will divide because the wisdom of proposals will not be transparent, nor will the consequences be so plainly seen as unquestionably to sustain the proposals. A slower pace will soon be required by considerations of national security which up to now have been arguments for quick decision and action.

UNDERMINING THE FIGHT FOR ECONOMY.

The resistance Gov. Schmedeman is meeting from Wisconsin jobholders to his economy budget can only be explained on the theory that they are inhumanly selfish or utterly ignorant of the state of the nation or the pockets of the people.

Gov. Schmedeman and the new members of the legislature were elected on his pledge to reduce state expenses by not less than 25 per cent. In the governor's message and in the legislators' support all have given evidence of honesty of their purpose to make good their campaign promises.

They have been met with the united opposition of department after department. From the heads of offices down, and not least through the schools, the public employés have supplemented argument and persuasion with implied political action until the legislature is bewildered and confused. Each department holds itself and its pay roll sacred, and in doing so all have demonstrated how completely they have lost contact with the people and the inability of the government to pay its bills and the taxpayers to pay their assessments.

Local tax groups in Wisconsin have shown what can and what must be done. The counties since 1928 have reduced their taxes by more than $3,000,000, and the towns, villages, and cities by more than $8,000,000, during which time the school boards have increased their levies by more than $2,000,000. The state in 1931 made a virtuous gesture and a political campaign on assessing no state tax, a triumph made possible by the fact that it imposed that year $16,000,000 more income, inheritance, gasoline, and other special taxes than in 1928.

Former legislatures are largely responsible for the increased county, local and school taxes because of increased and additional functions they have legislated on those units. These include the numerous state aids and special services. The present legislature clearly has the power and the duty to relieve these units of all or a large part of the burdens imposed in previous days.

Even if it were possible to present a sound reason why these activities should be continued, the tremendous current tax delinquency shows the present rate of spending cannot be continued. The expenses of the counties for general government have increased from less than $2,000,000 in 1912 to more than $7,500,000 in 1931. The cost of charitable and penal expenditures in the counties has grown from $2,000,000 to $12,000,000 in the same period. These are only typical. The increased cost of general government in the cities has grown even more rapidly than in the counties.

Gov. Schmedeman has set a good mark in determining what public activities need be carried on. He and his legislature have gained in public esteem since election by the courage and understanding they have shown of the taxpayers' plight.

Right now they need desperately the support of every one lest the combined attack of the jobholders overwhelm them against the expressed will of the voters who elected them.

The 1933 legislature can make a great record for good government or it can surrender and become just one more session which the state servants dominated and controlled.

DOWNING STREET ACTS.

The promptness and vigor with which the British government has acted to protect the British engineers imprisoned by the Gay-Pay-Oo is characteristic of British diplomacy. If our apologetic Americanism could be impressed by it we might be thankful. Our diplomacy, which is so sedulous and respectful in the presence of British condescension and insistence on the British point of view in controversies, would be the better for imitating the spirit expressed by Downing street in this affair. Emphatic protest has been followed by swift action of a kind the Kremlin can understand. There has been no interminable diplomatic fencing with buttoned foils. Downing street knows the Kremlin through experience. It does not substitute for its sharp lessons the sentimental assumptions which at Washington in recent years have taken the place of realities.

The Russian bear has bared his claws. The British lion has not been content to roar. He strikes back and with force. Amid ominous signs of degeneration in the spirit which carried the British ensign around the earth and kept it where it came, the action of the British government may be taken as a heartening reminder that its force is not spent.

IT'S SPRING.

Annually the versatility of Spring in these parts compels the admiration even of her victims. This garlanded dryad, with dancing feet, with a rose face and perfumed hair, lies in ambush around the corner until she sees the first robin plump down on the lawn, hears the first meadow lark out in the field, and knows that a flock of grackles has been reported north of South Chicago. Thereupon she turns loose with everything Old Man Winter has been kind enough to keep in his closet. She pelts the astonished face of Nature with sleet, snow, and hail. The migrants sit in clammy huddles, with the winter wind ruffling their feathers. Fair and warmer is banished from the prospect. The householder lives in alarm for the safety of his most cherished shrubs and trees.

If surprise is to be regarded as the spice of life, spring in these parts will be perennially interesting. The first task of the gardener is to dig himself out of the drifts and order more coal. His first spring pleasure is dodging falling icicles and shaking out the snow that's gone down the back of his neck. Winter sports start up briskly about the time the first hepatica looks up to see what the weather's like and finds that as weather it has everything. Spring hereabouts is a series of dramatic arctic surprises. At least it's never monotonously balmy.

BOMBING CONTINUES.

Bombing continues and it is not confined to the municipal limits of Chicago. The latest case occurred in McHenry county, five miles north of Woodstock, the county seat.

Bombing continues because it seldom, almost never, results in the punishment of its perpetrators.

Yet bombing is not an offense with which honest and efficient police work would find it difficult to deal. It requires the planning and cooperation of several individuals. Its motive is almost always easily discoverable and its motive points directly where the conspirators are to be found. Energetic investigation, free from influence or corruption, would in most instances put all the evidence necessary to conviction in possession of the authorities and of the public.

A few successful prosecutions would end bombing. It continues because it is tolerated by authorities sworn to enforce the law. It is tolerated because there is a working alliance between corrupt politicians and lawbreakers. It is tolerated because racketeers have influence to bully or means to corrupt the official representatives of the law.

Editorial of the Day

SENSITIVE AMERICANS.

[Charleston, S. C., News and Courier.]

C. A. Alington, headmaster of Eton, famous English school, who was in Charleston not long ago, has returned to England and is thus quoted:

"It should never be forgotten that the Americans are very sensitive. Anything in the nature of an attempt to lecture them is promptly resented, and the conditions of their press make them unduly resentful of anything approaching criticism. Some papers are ready to exploit any phrase or picture which, taken out of its context, can appear to suggest that America is either ungenerous or avaricious.

"It is easy to say that such oversensitiveness is unworthy of a great nation, but we on our side are very apt to forget how very little interest in European affairs can naturally be expected from all that vast population which lies west of the Mississippi. We forget also that many Americans took their money out of savings banks to invest in Liberty bonds, from motives of pure good will, and that they naturally resent the imputation that only a Shylock could expect any interest."

Mr. Alington, in this quotation, does not develop his reason for saying that Americans are very sensitive. If he bases it on their resentment of an attempt to lecture them, wherein are they different from the Etonian's compatriots? The fact is that Americans merrily accept many lectures from visiting foreigners. They cheerfully pay to hear themselves lectured.

The latter part of the quotation is gracious and graceful, a recognition that Americans should be paid by foreign nations who borrowed their money during the world war and after it. The behavior of the American government toward its foreign debtors has been the opposite of Shylockian. The debts were scaled down some time ago. The American people must pay the bondholders the difference. It is bred in the British bone to pay debts and Mr. Alington reflects the attitude of millions of his compatriots.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gaps fall where they may.

IF YOU WANT to feel sure that the depression is all over, prosperity has come with a rush from around that corner, everything is looking up, and we're practically back to normalcy, all you have to do is to ask the agent of the flat for a reduction in the rent for the coming year.

A SCHOOL BOARD member walked into a high school class at Rochester, N. H., and caught 'em with the goods on. Yessir, right in defiance of the "Learn American" movement the class was reading and studying George Eliot's "Silas Marner." The school board member shrieked so loudly at the sacrilege that the teacher was taken home in hysterics and the class escaped somehow, probably by climbing out of the windows. Well, since George Eliot goes, because it wasn't made in America, then we have to say good-by likewise to Dickens, Shakespeare, Tennyson, Kipling, Thackeray, Jane Austen, and a lot more. All right, we won't say a word if everybody else is satisfied. But one book that comes from overseas we will not give up even if they put us in jail for treason. When they try to wrest "Treasure Island" from our hands—then we'll just put our back up against the wall and we'll fight as long as a breath's left in us.

THE OLD RAG CARPET.

They called this pattern "hit or miss"—
Runs first that way and then this.

The brown stripe like Cecelia's hair
Is next to old red underwear.

And that is gingham from a shirt
By flannel lace from grandma's skirt.

The black stripes are from wedding clothes
Of the second husband of Aunt Rose.

But pink percale . . . yes, ain't it pretty?
I brought it once from Traverse City—

When you was down with tonsillitis
Before they had appendicitis.

Around that strip . . . the one you hold—
With warp a-runnin' into gold

Is a border made of carded wool
That covered Lincoln's praying stool;

The one he threw out in the spring,
Said "Knees were made for counseling!"

And this strip from the Lacey loom
Was nailed to the floor of our front room

The winter I wove the homespun coat,
When your father had the quinsy throat.

That pretty red where the blue looks new—
Was a flag the time that Lee came through;

The gray border, as you have heard,
Was found on the field at Gettysburg.

RACHEL MACK WILSON.

VACATION PLANS are all up in the air until people find out what states are going to allow them to drink legal beer in peace and happiness and which states will still shoot their rear tires full of holes if they are suspected of having a bottle of beer in the old suitcase. It will be awkward to have to drive clear around a dry state, but it will be worth it. And think of the ecstatic joy of driving up to within ten feet of the boundary line of a dry state and opening a few pints of real beer. Now, that's something really worth looking forward to. Gesundheit!

"SOCIETY GIRLS Take Positions as Stewardesses on Ocean Steamers."—Headline. Well, there doesn't seem to be any place left to escape to. We were thinking of seeking the deepest depth of the deepest coal mine, but about the time we got ready for our vacations we would probably see a headline reading: "Society Girls Get Jobs as Mule Drivers Down in Coal Mines." Gosh! what's the use?

SCAT!

Esteemed Sir: As a critic, you usually know your potatoes, and your opinion generally coincides with mine (I'm bragging), BUT—says you, in Ye Line Saturday: "Catfish aren't good to eat . . ."

SAYS YOU! Say, brother, if you've never eaten a catfish steak then you've got a treat coming! Not good eating? My dearly beloved Aunt Lucinda's pink panties! You ain't et nothing yet. And, by the way, I agree they're not "respectable fish that want to lead quiet, decent, orderly lives," and if you ever have one grab on to your bait you'll have to admit they're anything but "quiet."

You'd better be careful about trying to give a self-respecting catfish a "kick in the pants"—they tote a couple of horns that would probably make you start moanin' low.

Catfish forecast earthquakes? Hell! They start 'em!

Yours considerably, BADGER PETE.

ONE OF THE SAD FEATURES of the return of beer will be that it will cause gentlemen after a few steins to put their heads close together and burst into the mellow strains of "Adeline, Sweet Adeline." The younger generation, of course, don't know that venerable old song; but they will, they will. And then they, too, will lift up their happy young voices and join in: "She's the darling of my he-art [hold it! ho - ld!], Sweet Ad-e-line."

FUGITIVE.

My heart is now a fugitive from love.
With broken chains and bleeding wounds he fled
Out of the prison walls that held him slave
Within the city of the lonely dead.
But now at night, when gray owls moan and hoot,
Where wind-blown shadows dance above a grave,
My heart returns to watch the lonely dead—
A fugitive from love—but yet a slave!

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

IT'S A PERPLEXING question these days as to what necessities of life the last dollar in the house should be spent for—jigsaw puzzles or beer steins.

BENT BACKS.

THERE is more than one kind of arthritis of the spine, a group of disorders far from infrequent, especially when we accept the truth that most of the cases of chronic lumbago, chronic sciatica of the kind that hangs on indefinitely, and many of the cases of low back pain belong in the group.

The kind we are considering in this story is that which bends the back and fixes it in a curved position, a common name for it being spondylitis deformans. It is the disorder that is responsible for the deformity in the many we see whose backs are bent nearly double and are stiff as well.

It generally begins in young persons, and males are affected far more frequently than females. The name signifies that it is a chronic inflammation of the joints between the spine, and that it causes deformity.

The cause of the inflammation is not known. In fact, we are wholly in ignorance as to why it attacks one man rather than another. We know of no reason why it should attack the reader of this article, and today rather than some other man and on some other day.

It is easier to understand why it causes the back to bend out of shape. The normal spine is not straight. There is one curve in the neck, another in the chest, a third back of the abdomen, and a fourth in the pelvis. Because these curves are there the head and upper part of the body get fewer jolts than would otherwise be its portion. If any one of several things goes wrong more than one of these small curves becomes larger and some degree of deformity results. In the case of spondylitis deformans the curving, and especially that in the chest region, becomes so exaggerated that it seriously interferes with breathing, and girdle pains and other pressure pains often result.

The objective of treatment is to prevent the development of excessive curving. Efforts to stop the progress of the disease and to prevent stiffening and locking of joints are not very satisfying, but if directions are carried out the body can be kept reasonably straight, interference with free breathing can be prevented, and pressure pains can be warded off.

When the disease is in an earlier stage the patient must go to bed and remain there for a considerable time. No pillows are allowed under the head, though they may be used under the shoulders and lower back. A better plan is to remain in bed in a plaster shell with the upper spine bowed back slightly. There are daily exercises in deep chest breathing and in turning the head from side to side.

Later on the sick man sleeps in a half cast as above but goes about during the day wearing a spine support. The weight is to be kept off the spinal column as much as possible and the back is to be kept straight.

The breathing exercises are for the purpose of lifting and lowering the ribs. Therefore, they must not be abdominal. Passive motion, massage, and use are effective in keeping the neck straight and able to rotate and bend.

SMALL HEART.

Miss B. D. writes: I have been told by different doctors that I have a small heart. My height is 5 feet and I never go above 110 in weight. I have had a rapid heart since childhood. I am now 24 years old. Does it mean that I have a weak heart because it is small?

REPLY.

You are a small person and you should have a small heart. You do not need a large one. Nothing in your letter indicates that your heart does not fit or is wrong in any way, or ever will be.

NOT UNUSUAL.

M. L. A. writes: When I have my hands in cold water for any length of time, as in washing my car or handling snowy or wet wood with wet gloves or mittens, I have a mild attack of bronchitis. This is not imagination because we have tried it enough times to know. How do you account for this?

REPLY.

Nothing peculiar or odd about it. Many people catch cold when they get their feet wet or cold. Bronchitis and the common cold are variants of the same infections. Anatomically and physiologically the feet are double first cousins to the hands.

RENT COLLECTIONS.

Chicago, March 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can the owner or agent of a first mortgage collect rents on a building when the owner refuses to pay interest due on account of not receiving sufficient rents? The owner has not received any notice from any court, but the agent has notified the tenants not to pay any rent until further notice. 2. Can the owner, who furnishes them with heat, collect the rents until he is notified by the court? 3. If the tenants refuse to pay can the owner dispossess them or make them pay? J. J. C.

1. You should pay to the landlord named in your lease until the adverse claimant shows an assignment from that landlord or a court order. We suggest that you notify him that he will have to exhibit his authority if he expects you to pay.
2. See 1.
3. If they do not pay to the person who is entitled to pay they can be put out.

CORPORATION FUNDS.

Chicago, March 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two officers of a corporation, a vice president and the secretary, obtained a sum of money. Both signed notes against the corporation without the knowledge of the corporation and used this money for their own personal affairs and not for the corporation. 1. Can the corporation be held liable for this money? 2. Can criminal charges be preferred for obtaining this money due to fraud or embezzlement? A. J. L.

1. If the corporation had held these officers out as having authority to bind the corporation on such obligations then the holders of the obligations would be entitled to collect from the corporation.
2. If the circumstances of the employment were such that the officers were entitled to treat the money as theirs for some purposes then the mere fact that they took a larger amount and spent it for other purposes would not necessarily be criminal. If you seriously contemplate action then you should go over all your facts at the state's attorney's office.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

LONDON.—"According to private telegrams from Berlin to the Amsterdam bourse, it is expected that a state of war with the United States will be an accomplished fact within forty-eight hours," a dispatch from Amsterdam says. "American journalists in Berlin," the dispatch adds, "have been warned to this effect by the foreign office."

WASHINGTON.—When President Wilson appears before the congress at the opening of the extraordinary session, summoned today by presidential proclamation to meet on April 2, he will lay before the joint houses a summary of the long series of crimes and plots by Germany against this country. This statement will serve two purposes: First, it will demonstrate to congress, the war making body, why the executive is convinced that a resolution should be adopted either declaring war or, at least, that "a state of war" exists as a result of the acts of the German government. Second, it will aim to enlighten the people on many German intrigues which hitherto have been kept secret by the American government and to unite the people behind the administration. It is probable that the indictment of the German government will be embodied in a "white book" to be issued, covering fully the developments of the American-German crisis.

WASHINGTON.—The administration has under consideration plans for a new revenue act conscripting all personal incomes in excess of $100,000 a year during the period of war with Germany. It is estimated that such a law combined with the increased supertax on other large incomes would produce between $2,000,000,000 and $3,000,000,000 a year, which the administration believes would be adequate for the necessities of this country. Drastic increases in the tax rates on incomes under $100,000 are also provided, ranging from 5 per cent on the smaller ones to 50 per cent on the larger ones between $50,000 and $100,000 a year, and heavy taxes on corporation incomes.

PETROGRAD.—An order for the arrest of Nicholas Romanoff and Alexandra Feodorovna, former emperor and empress of Russia, has been issued by the provisional government. Gen. Alexieff has been charged with the duty of guarding the prisoners until members of the duma arrive with an escort to take them to Tsarskoe-Selo.

LONDON.—The German retreat has mystified the allies and both London and Paris are at high tension over the counter stroke which Gen. von Hindenburg is expected to launch. The French and British forces encountered the first aggressive opposition to their advance on the hundred mile line between the Scarpe and the Aisne yesterday. While they continued to drive ahead at nearly every point and made great progress along certain stretches of territory the resistance of the German rear guards was stiffer. Air scouts report great fires burning forty miles behind the German lines. This fact, coupled with the French statement that "most of the villages before our lines in the neighborhood of St. Quentin are in flames," lends color to the theory that the German retreat possibly may extend to the frontier.

WAR SUMMARY.—Russian troops driving southwestward from Sakkiz have crossed the Mesopotamian border into Turkish territory. The Norwegian ship Davenger, bearing one American, was sunk by a German submarine. The British admit the loss of twenty-four ships and twenty-one fishing craft. The British recaptured forty more towns in France. The allied advance threatens to flank the entire German line in the Champagne.

CHICAGO.—The will of Mrs. Julia B. Stewart, filed for probate, leaves an estate of approximately $7,000,000 to her two children—Marion, aged 15, and Jeanne, aged 5. J. K. Stewart, the father of the children and former head of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer corporation, died ten months ago, leaving the estate to his wife, who died last week.

THE FARM BILL.

Chicago, March 18.—Amazing, tragic, humiliating. An outright and complete indictment of the intelligence of the American people. No Chicago paper has protested this monstrosity.

You criticize Mr. Stalin, yet we are about to give to an inexperienced young man, a typical University of Wisconsin socialist, more power than has Mr. Stalin. This unbelievable thing gives him complete control of the economic lives of 126,000,000 people; it wipes the principles of individualism out of existence; it makes this dictator, as chief of the department of agriculture, a tyrant levying at will billions on the people of the nation who are not engaged in agriculture.

He is assisted in his autocratic power by three other young radicals who might be rated anywhere from communists to socialists. Young Morgenthau has taken over all finances in connection with farm loans, farm relief, and various other government relations with the farmers. This volume runs into billions annually. Young Tugwell, another inexperienced radical youth, together with Wallace, wrote this bill; Mordecai Ezekiel, another unheard of, is listed as an "expert."

There is national tragedy, ruin, in this measure, or any other that will satisfy these radical youths. It is a step that if taken cannot be retraced. It will cost the consumers of the nation more than a billion annually and this excess will be largely squandered in foolish waste by these youths. This is not farm aid, it is farm destruction.

The people should set their foot down decisively on any price fixing scheme; if we are going to begin it there is no end to it and it means the end of the economic independence of the individual. There are other people in this country who are suffering more than the farmer. No farmer need go hungry, or is without a place to sleep, while the unemployed in the cities suffer.

I beg of you to not only defend our national interests, our national ideals, and our constitution but the millions of people in your city to whom you owe a certain loyalty. No political loyalty or agreements will justify your neglect of your city and your nation in failing to fight this thing with determination, even if you lose. W. M. CARSON.

UP AGAINST IT.

Chicago, March 17.—A friend of mine, with a wife and a boy going to school, has been unemployed for over a year. At this writing he is entirely without any income, having lost the small income from a boarder on which they have been living for some time. Now, faced with a ten day eviction notice, gas and electricity due to be shut off this week, with no money and no food, a grocery order three days overdue, a welfare job far overdue, all the satisfaction he gets from the immature, half baked workers at the welfare station is a cold blooded suggestion to establish credit or borrow, both of which are impossible. READER.

INSTEAD OF A MONUMENT.

Zion, Ill., March 16.—Mayor Cermak will live forever in the memory of the American people without a monument, and I believe that he would much prefer to have the $23,000 used to pay Chicago school teachers or to buy lunches for hungry school children. S. M. B.

SECRETARY WALLACE'S ADVISERS.

Chicago, March 20.—The Tribune mentions Assistant Secretary Tugwell in its yesterday's issue, the inspiration back of the administration's farm program. Prof. Tugwell visited the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and is quoted in the January, 1930, issue of the Communist, official monthly magazine of the communist party of the U. S. A., as having advanced the idea: "It is necessary to study a planned system not at a conference of New York and Philadelphia engineers and economists, but in the Moscow Gosplan, where it is actually functioning." Tugwell, Stuart Chase and Robert W. Dunn, the leading communist in the United states, were co-authors of the book "Soviet Russia in the Second Decade," which is most laudatory of the soviet régime and in which can be found a complete chapter on Russian agriculture.

Thus we have the new economic adviser to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Prof. Mordecai Ezekiel, a recent visitor to Russia, proposing the farm program of our country; and sitting back of the scenery, an assistant secretary, Tugwell, who is associated with another protagonist, Stuart Chase, and an actual communist leader, Robert W. Dunn.

ECONOMICS AS IT IS TAUGHT.

Evanston, Ill., March 13.—On Friday, March 10, you printed a letter from a disgruntled student at the University of Illinois who complained that, although he was in the school of commerce, not one of his professors had discussed the banking situation of the last few weeks and that none of them ever gave the student anything but antiquated economic theories instead of the practical, up to date information that he needs and would be interested in.

What's the matter with the educational system at Illinois? In the commerce school at Northwestern we have been discussing the banking situation ever since the Michigan moratorium was declared, and, although not one of my professors thought of quite as good a solution as the new banking bill, at least they gave us an understanding of the situation and were willing to discuss it freely, even to the extent of neglecting some of our routine work. In my opinion one of the few good points about the depression is that it has given students of economics plenty of practical applications for their theories, but where college professors don't keep up to date even this small gain would be lost. N. U., '34.

CRYING FOR WINE IN THE STREETS.

Ottawa, Ill., March 16.—"There is a crying for wine in the streets; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone" [Isaiah xxiv., 11]. So the Jews cried for wine till they got it. And as a nation they passed from history. Today we should profit by reading the record of what happened to them.

Now, while you feel good over the seeming victory in your championship for those who have cried for wine in the streets, you should publish something about the successes of drunkards, the joy and happiness of families wherein are drunkard fathers, sons, and brothers, and the progress and improvement in human society that will come from use of intoxicants and from drunkenness.

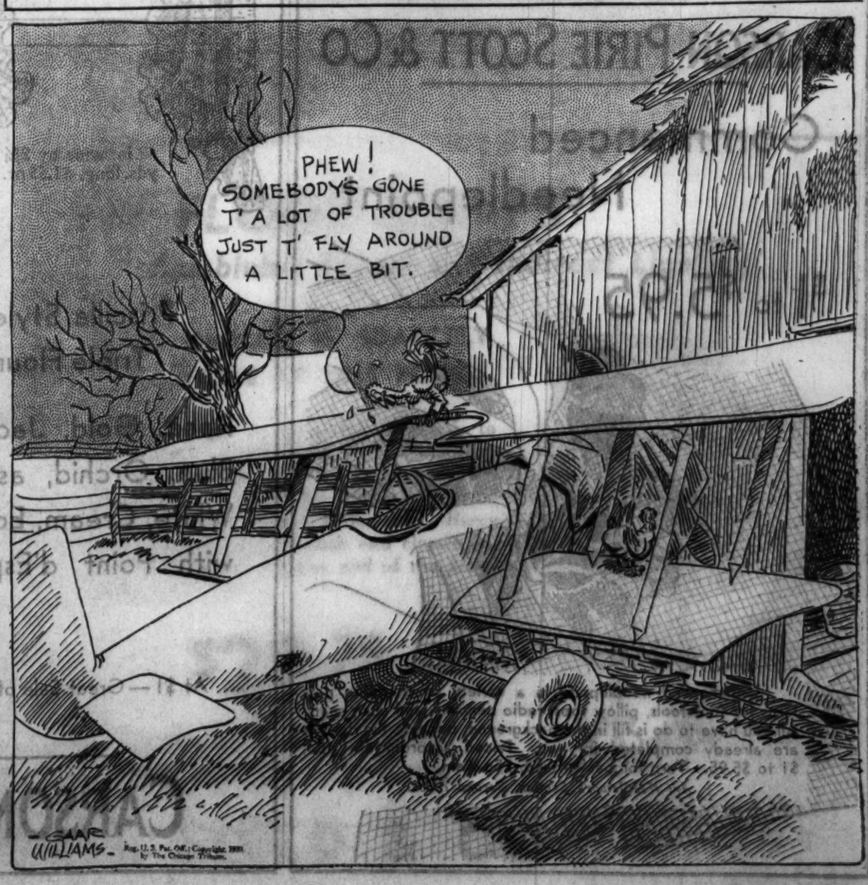
WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!



DIPLOMAS DON'T MAKE TEACHERS, SAYS OTTO AKEN

New County School Head Doesn't Miss Degrees.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Otto F. Aken, who was appointed on Monday to succeed the late Edward J. Tobin as county superintendent of schools at $10,000 a year, explained yesterday that he was not at all disturbed because he does not have a Ph.D. or even an A.B. after his name.

"Persons who criticized me for not having diplomas and degrees wanted the county board to postpone the appointment and ask in professors from De Paul, Loyola and Northwestern universities and the University of Chicago to suggest a man for the job," Mr. Aken said. "But I think I know more about teaching school in the country than a man with a Ph.D. would."

His Wife a Teacher.

The eyes of the 59 year old superintendent twinkled in his broad, ruddy face. He was seated in an armchair in the living room of his home at 1342 Henry avenue, Des Plaines. With him was his wife, Mrs. Addie D. Aken, who for years has taught school and done other educational work. She is now principal of the Riverview school in Des Plaines, where she has taught for 10 years.

"Teachers are born, not made," continued Mr. Aken. "Out of the 129 teachers under me as assistant superintendent of schools in the county, the six natural teachers—my best—had no college training."

Mr. Aken branded many of the new ideas in education "fol-de-rol." He declared that under him no fads and frills would be introduced and no experiments made with the public school children of the county.

Sketches His Experience.

He sketched his own education and early teaching experience. He was graduated from the eighth grade in a one-room school in Elkville, Jackson county, Ill., where his father, a farmer who became a miner, lived. He was 14 years old then, and that summer went into the mines, where he worked for the next three years at 65 cents a ten-hour day.

He had a disability in three fingers of his right hand, so that all he could do was ladle water out of the low places in the mine, dumping it into a tank drawn by mules.

"I saw because of my handicap that I could never do much in the mines, so I began to study at home," Mr. Aken said. "When I was 17 I attended a summer normal course at Murphysboro. Then I passed the examination and taught in a one-room school in Elk township. That was in 1892.

He Becomes a Principal.

From there he went to teach in a one-room school in De Soto township, where the girl who became his wife was one of his pupils. When she was graduated from the eighth grade she was hired to teach in a two-room school in an adjacent township, and Aken was made principal of that school. They promptly married.

Since that time Mr. Aken has been in educational work continually except for six years in the postal service in Murphysboro. He became superintendent of schools in Jackson county in 1914, his wife being made his assistant.

In 1923, three months before he was scheduled to get a diploma from the Southern State Teachers' college at Carbondale, Mr. Tobin sent for him and he came to Cook county without the diploma to be assistant superintendent.

LOUISIANA ELECTION QUIZ TO BE RESUMED BY U. S. SENATORS

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—Senator Huey Long, and the part his Louisiana political machine played in the election of Senator John H. Overton, will again be in the spotlight of a senatorial investigation within the next fortnight.

The special senatorial committee, which opened its inquiry in Louisiana several weeks ago, voted unanimously today to resume the investigation. Senator Sam G. Bratton [Dem. N. M.], who succeeds the late Senator Robert B. Howell [Rep., Neb.] as chairman of the investigating group, declared that the members of the committee felt that "the evidence and information thus far secured justified such action."

The reopened hearings are to be held in Washington. Senator Bratton said, because of the necessity that senators remain close to the capital with many important matters in the offing. He indicated that he, as chairman, will not tighten the lax rules regarding admissibility of evidence, set up for the investigation by Senator Howell.

BIRDS IN COUNTY FORESTS ARE FED IN SPITE OF SNOW

Birds lured northward by the promise of spring and caught in the Cook county forest preserves by the recent snowfall, as well as the birds who regard the preserves as a likely winter resort and only depart to fly northward in late spring, have not been going hungry in the snow. Their meals have been served to them regularly.

Pheasants, bluejays, blackbirds, chickadees, sparrows, and others flocked yesterday to their favorite sanctuaries in the 33,000 acres of forest preserves. They are the McGinnis slough, 143d street and Southwest highway; 95th street and Willow Springs road; Thatcher Woods, Chicago and Thatcher avenues, and Cummings square in River Forest.

Private individuals, members of the Prairie club, ornithologists, and Emmett Whealan, president of the board of forest preserve commissioners, have seen to it throughout the winter that when snow covers the ground the birds are fed regularly.

Picket Goes on Trial for Slaying of Milk Producer

FRANCES PERKINS REVAMPS LABOR DEPARTMENT

Fires Some Doak Men as "Ballyhoo" Aids.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins today began her spring house cleaning program by abolishing the alien secret service organization set up by former Secretary William N. Doak. Her explanation was that the service cost too much and was largely "ballyhoo."

Abandonment of this phase of the department's activities was a part of a sweeping reorganization plan announced by the new secretary. Other items in her program include a drastic renovation of the United States employment service, also begun by Mr. Doak, and a centralization of naturalization and immigration activities.

Likewise, Miss Perkins stated, she will effect an entirely new set-up for the statistical bureau of the labor department which compiles food, employment and other indices on a monthly and weekly basis.

Murray W. Garsson Fired.

Miss Perkins said she has dismissed all the agents employed by the department in the alien secret service. Among these is Murray W. Garsson, special investigator with a salary of $9,000, who toured the country during Mr. Doak's administration investigating alien racketeers in Chicago and other large cities. Mr. Garsson's last assignment was to Hollywood, Cal.

There he inquired into the immigration status of imported film actors.

Calls Situation Alarming.

The new secretary termed it an "alarming situation," and pointed out that in the eight months' period $107,574 had been paid out in salaries to 55 men; $62,695 was itemized in the books as expense funds, and $8,243 was accounted for under the heading of "confidential expenses."

The large expense accounts, Miss Perkins said, "were turned in by agents in this country and abroad. She intends, she said, to toss aside the "ballyhoo" with which the secret service activities were surrounded.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In the report of the address on March 16 of M. M. Leighton, chief of the Illinois geological survey, Mr. Leighton was incorrectly quoted as saying that importation of West Virginia coal into Illinois had resulted in imposing the West Virginia standard of living on Illinois miners. Instead he said that low West Virginia wages and low freight rates were seriously affecting Illinois mines.

WOMAN, 66, SHOT BY ROBBERS; HER HUSBAND BEATEN

Mrs. Nanna Hurst, 66 years old, was shot and seriously wounded last night by one of two Negro robbers who broke into her home at 1948 West Austin avenue.

With Mrs. Hurst was her husband, Patrick, 83 years old. One of the robbers struck Hurst, flung him to the floor, and, roughly stating that he knew there was plenty of money hidden in the house, demanded that he be shown where it was. The other man, carrying a pistol, threatened Mrs. Hurst.

Fearing that her husband would be killed, Mrs. Hurst showed the bandit $12 in a pantry. Then, seizing what she believed was a favorable opportunity, she tried to run out the back door. The robber fired twice, one bullet striking her in the back. She was taken to St. Mary's of Nazareth hospital, where it was said she had a chance for recovery.

Kills Self as Sweetheart Waits for His Graduation

Philip Gran Pre, 24 years old, a Negro student, shot and killed himself yesterday in his room at 6409 Langley avenue while his sweetheart, Frederica Jones, and another woman were attending the convocation at the University of Chicago in the belief that he was among the graduates. His name was not on the list of graduates, however, and the women told the police they believed Gran Pre had ended his life because of despondency over failure to get his degree. They said he was a student in the university's school of commerce, but last night no one could be found there who knew him.

Blonde and Two Men Rob Two Women of Fur Coats

Miss Grace Hall, 5510 Sheridan road, and Mrs. G. Magnusson, 619 North Wabash avenue, were robbed last night by two men and a blonde who forced their car to the curb at Dearborn and Chestnut streets. Miss Hall lost a $600 fur coat and Mrs. Magnusson gave up her $350 coat and $12. At the same hour three gunmen forced the car of Mrs. Lee Lavin, 5518 Jackson boulevard, to the curb at Harrison street and Lavergne avenue and took her $2,000 fur coat.

THOUSANDS FLEE OHIO RIVER FLOOD REGION; TEN DEAD

Cold Blast Adds to Plight of Homeless.

Cincinnati, O., March 21.—[Special.]—The Ohio river flood, which has taken ten lives to date and caused millions of dollars' worth of property damage, was expected to reach its height here tomorrow with a stage of 64 feet. Meanwhile the water was rising steadily down river, with fresh damage expected in "the pocket," that portion of the Indiana lowlands lying between the Ohio and the Wabash.

In Cincinnati and a score of neighboring communities on both banks of the Ohio the Red Cross was today coordinating efforts to care for thousands of refugees forced from their homes by flood waters. Their suffering was increased by a return of winter. The cold blast curbed the heavy rains of the last fortnight, but it made more pressing the problem of providing food and shelter for the homeless.

Richmond Hardest Hit.

The rising waters threatened two dikes protecting the east end of this city and at one point broke through and flooded an unused portion of the municipal airport. There are no residences near this point. Meanwhile, in the western suburbs of the city, far from the river, the waters of Mill creek had spread beyond the banks.

New Richmond, O., is one of the hardest hit of the flooded towns. There were only five buildings in the town of 1,500 left dry and every road leading from the town but one was impassable. The National Guard and Red Cross are in charge there.

At Portsmouth, O., upstream, the flood peak is passed and the efforts of several hundred men to hold the levee and save the town are believed successful.

Down in the "pocket district," the Ohio waters at Madison, Ind., were only ten feet below the stage of the disastrous flood of 1913, and were still rising rapidly. Red Cross and other relief organizations in that territory are already coördinating plans for their expected tasks, while word of outside relief efforts came from as far away as Boston, Mass., where a coast guard amphibian plane is standing by for orders to fly for relief work here. Locally police and firemen equipped ten boats for relief work, some of them with fire fighting apparatus.

On the Kentucky shore across from Cincinnati water crept across the river flats to leave some 3,000 homeless and isolate their towns of Newport, Bellevue, Dayton, Fort Thomas, and Southgate from Covington. Only one road remained open to the Cincinnati bridgeheads.

The Cincinnati suburbs of Mount Washington and Sedamsville are isolated, and in the center of the city water edged up Third street and lapped at the new union terminal. Street car service was halted on some lines, and boats were necessary for progress through the warehouse district.

Tennesseeans Apprehensive.

Memphis, Tenn., March 21.—[Special.]—Dwellers in the lower Mississippi valley today watched with apprehension reports of flood conditions on the Ohio and elsewhere. However, Maj. Brehon Somervell, chief war department engineer in this district, expressed doubt that serious damage or loss of life would result when the flood crest moves down the Mississippi.

ENGLISH ACTOR PLANS TO MARRY EX-FOLLIES GIRL

Reno, Nev., March 21.—(AP)—Carlyle Blackwell, actor in English and American films, and the former Ziegfeld Follies beauty Avonne Taylor, plan to be married here Saturday following Blackwell's expected divorce from Leah Barnato Blackwell, British "queen of diamonds."

Blackwell today confirmed reports of his pending marriage to Miss Taylor, divorced in Mexico more than a year ago from Thomas Manville Jr.

Blackwell will be eligible to file his complaint for divorce late this week. The present Mrs. Blackwell, now in London, is the daughter of Barney Barnato, one of the discoverers of South African diamond mines.

C. E. MITCHELL UNDER ARREST BY ORDER OF U. S.

Ex-Banker Is Accused of Income Tax Fraud.

from which large bonuses were paid to Mr. Mitchell and other executives. It was said there was some question whether these payments, authorized by the board of directors, were legal.

Explains to Senators.

At the senate committee hearing, when talking about "the wash" sale, Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart of Iowa asked Mr. Mitchell:

"That sale was just really a sale of convenience to reduce your income tax?"

"Yes," Mr. Mitchell answered. "It was a sale frankly for that purpose, where you hoped the buyer would be able to make a profit. And it was bought with the idea of making a profit. But the accumulated loss was so great that I offered and did buy the stock back this year at what had been paid for it. And I hold that stock today."

Mr. Mitchell further testified that in addition to his salary of $25,000 a year he received in bonuses from the bank and its affiliate, the National City company, for the years 1927, 1928, and 1929 about $3,500,000.

On Feb. 26, not long after his testimony before the senate committee, Mr. Mitchell sent the board of directors of the National City bank his resignation. He explained that "as the chief executive officer of the National City company as well as of the bank, I personally have been brought under a cloud of criticism from which I conceive that the institution should not be permitted to suffer by my continuance in office."

The next day the board of directors accepted the resignation and chose James H. Perkins, president of the City Bank Farmers Trust company, a National City affiliate, to be chairman of the board.

Sketch of His Career.

Mr. Mitchell is 55 years old. He was born Oct. 6, 1877, at Chelsea, Mass. He was educated at the Chelsea public schools and at Amherst college. He entered the employ of the Western Electric company in Chicago in a minor clerical capacity.

Six years later he had risen to the post of assistant manager and attracted the attention of Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America.

At Mr. Thorne's suggestion, Mr. Michell entered the banking field early in 1906 as an officer of the Trust Company of America. His first banking experience covered the panic of 1907. After spending five years with the company he resigned and went abroad to study foreign financing. Upon his return to the United States he organized his own investment banking business under the name of Charles E. Mitchell & Co.

Joins National City Company.

The interprise was successful and in 1916, when the National City bank decided to form an investment affiliate, Mr. Mitchell was asked to become vice president. He liquidated his own company and accepted. In October of that same year he became president of the National City company.

Mr. Mitchell became president of the National City bank in 1921. Since that time he had been the chief executive of that institution. He became chairman of the board in April, 1929. In June of that year he was made chairman of the three principal National City organizations, following the affiliation of the Farmers Loan and Trust company with the City bank under the title of the City Bank Farmers Trust company.

During the three years from 1929 to 1932 Mr. Mitchell was a director of the Federal Reserve bank of New York. He first received widespread public notice in March, 1929, when he supplied funds to the call money market in defiance of a federal reserve warning in order to avert a money crisis.

BANKRUPT, SAYS WIFE OF ARRESTED BANKER HARRIMAN, IN SUIT

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Augusta B. Harriman, wife of Joseph W. Harriman, former president of the Harriman National bank, now under arrest, charged with misappropriation of its funds, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today in the federal District court.

No total of assets or liabilities was set forth in the petition, which was filed with the court for Mrs. Harriman by her attorney, George S. Leisure.

The principal creditors, however, are department stores and physicians—Mr. Harriman is critically ill—and the assets include money on deposit in the bank, which is now in the hands of a conservator.

In the petition, Mrs. Harriman called herself a "housewife" and gave as her address the Harriman home at 2 East 70th street, where her husband recently was arrested on his sickbed.

Among the assets she listed is $1,118 on deposit in the bank, 11,882 shares of the J. A. M. A. Realty company, and 500 shares preferred shares of the Bowman Biltmore corporation.

HEARING TODAY TO FIX FEES IN NOEL BANK CASE

The final hearing will be held this morning before Master in Chancery George Gorman on the question of allowing $105,000 fees to the law firm of Judah, Reichmann, Trumbull & Cox for legal services furnished in connection with the receivership of the Noel State bank.

The law firm has already collected $65,000 and has now offered to cut its original fee of $105,000 to $85,000, it was learned. The attorney general's office has approved this offer, it was revealed.

HIDING OF LOAN FOR POLITICIAN CALLED FORGERY

New York Bond Broker Is Indicted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Horace C. Sylvester Jr., a vice president of the National City company, was indicted today and surrendered at the New York district attorney's office.

In general sessions, Judge George L. Donnellan set bail for Sylvester at $2,500. That was furnished promptly. Counsel was granted a week in which to make motions.

The charge against Sylvester is that he caused a false entry to be made on the books of the company. The offenses alleged involve $10,020 and are forgery in the third degree, and causing a false entry to be made as an officer of a corporation. The former is a felony, the latter a misdemeanor.

Resigns from Job.

Sylvester submitted his resignation to the directors of the National City company, before going to the district attorney's office. No action was taken on it, and none is expected until the board's committee completes an investigation which it is now making.

John E. Ramsey, general manager of the Port of New York Authority, received $10,020 from the National City company as a loan in 1931, soon after that company had received the contract to handle a $66,000,000 Port Authority bond issue. Instead of being noted on the books as a loan, the money was charged up to expenses in connection with the bond flotation.

Sylvester is accused of being responsible for that entry.

The indictment, containing two counts, was filed with the court yesterday, but its existence was not made public until today. Then Sylvester, accompanied by two attorneys, came to the district attorney's office and surrendered. The lawyers were Mark Eisner, law partner of George W. Olvany, and Siegfried Hartman.

Conviction on a charge of forgery in the third degree carries a penalty of from two and a half to five years' imprisonment.

TWO FORMER OFFICERS OF NEW YORK BANK BEGIN PRISON TERMS

Ossining, N. Y., March 21.—[Special.]—Bernard K. Marcus, former president of the Bank of United States, and Saul Singer, who was vice president, entered Sing Sing prison tonight to serve sentences of from three to six years for misapplication of funds.

Singer gave his age as 51 and said his home was in Larchmont. He turned over $22.60 in cash.

"To what do you attribute your criminal act?" he was asked. The question is put to all newcomers to Sing Sing.

"I do not care to discuss my case," he replied, heavily. "I am here to do my time."

Marcus said he was 42 years old.

Oglesby Banker Starts Serving Prison Sentence

Ottawa, Ill., March 21.—[Special.]—L. B. Koons, 41, former cashier of the Oglesby State bank, which has been closed since December, was taken to the Illinois state penitentiary at Joliet to start serving a one to ten year term for embezzling bank funds. Raimund Badeke, former bank president, and H. M. Salisbury, former cashier, were jointly indicted with Koons for a $25,000 shortage of funds.

LONG POSTPONED BANK CASE GOES TO TRIAL TODAY

Fifty veniremen yesterday were summoned to appear this morning before Superior Judge Francis Allegretti, where selection of a jury will be begun in the case against former officers and directors of the closed City State bank. The case has been continued 49 times since the eight defendants were indicted two years ago on charges of accepting deposits while the bank was insolvent.

One of the defendants, Frank D. Hobinson, former vice president of the bank, pleaded guilty yesterday and it is expected that he will be a witness for the state. All the defendants appeared before Judge Allegretti and demanded a trial late in the afternoon after Chief Justice Prystalski of the Criminal court had assigned the case to Judge Allegretti.

The Chesterfield FORMULA—what is it?

The formulas and processes which make Chesterfield a milder and better-tasting cigarette are secret—to prevent others from copying them

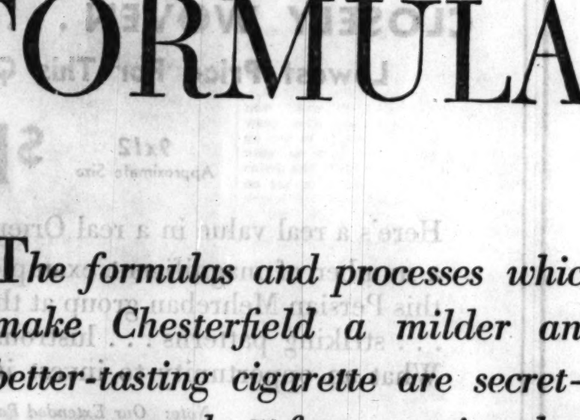
If every person knew the method and processes of tanning leather, it would be of interest; but what people want to know is: Is it a good shoe? Is it comfortable? Will it wear longer? Is the price right?

So it is with Chesterfield Cigarettes. If smokers, men and women, knew all of the formulas and processes of manufacture, it would be of interest to them; but what smokers really want is the result.

Everything that goes into Chesterfield Cigarettes is as good as money can buy.

Every process has in it all that science knows about cigarette manufacture.

The formulas are secret to prevent others from copying them. The mildness and the better taste you may prove for yourself. May we ask you to try Chesterfield?



Wherever you buy Chesterfields, you get them just as fresh as if you came by our factory door

English Best Seller Is Tale of Train Ride

"Orient Express" Written by Graham Greene.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Orient Express," by Graham Greene. [Doubleday-Doran.]

Flaunting banners of immense popularity as the latest English best seller, "Orient Express" comes to us with "love, death, horror, romance, drama" promised to a public harassed by realities. It is by a young man whose first novel, "The Man Within," published in 1929, won for him great critical acclaim as a strange psychological echo, in the story of the smugglers of the English coast, of the tales of adventure of his kinsman, Robert Louis Stevenson.

GRAHAM GREENE.

"Orient Express" is utterly different from "The Man Within." It is a swiftly moving, cinematic tale of events, not thoughts. It is a marriage of "Grand Hotel" and that bad moving picture which Marlene Dietrich just saved from banality, "The Shanghai Express." Most of the events in "Orient Express" happen on the train from Ostend, bound for Istanbul. The technical defect of the book lies in the fact that they do not all happen there. Every event converges in the train, however. Naturally, the presence on the train of all the characters must be explained, and the German murderer must be accounted for as a passenger, but the author could have done it with explanation rather than a chapter of action, as he got the newspaper correspondent, "Dizzy Mabel" Warren on to the train, for instance, logically present in the station to see the girl she loved depart and leaped onto the last platform because she saw the face of a famous political leader whom the world thought dead.

Even grisly drunk Mabel knew a good story when she saw it, and, a good newspaper trouper, dogged her story to its conclusion. Dr. Czinner, masquerading as an English school teacher, on his way to lead a communist uprising in Belgrade from which he had mysteriously disappeared five years before, Coral Musker, a variety dancer bound for Istanbul, shunted by fate into love and tragedy, Myatt, a Jew sensitive about his race, who found her easy to talk to, are the principal characters, with Janet Pardoe, Dizzy Mabel's ex-love, and Quin Savory, a Cockney novelist, Coral's compartment companions, a woman with whose stomach the beer didn't agree, and her husband, who had an investigating eye, and inquisitive fingers, and all of the casuals of a transcontinental train as the dramatic personnel.

It is pure melodrama from cover to cover, exciting in the tension of emotions keyed up by the hurtling through space and the supercharged reactions of human beings cut off from their normal restraints and backgrounds. It would make—and is probably destined to make—a throbbing super movie.

In it are samples of every type of human being from idealist to murderer, all of the emotions popular in modern fiction, and it is written by some one who is a master of the subtleties of English so that the reader may be deluded into thinking that it is a gem of the first water literarily. I wouldn't say that it was "spinach," nor, on the other end of the slanguage pendulum, "Q." It is just swell melodrama glitteringly gold plated with a gifted and at times brilliant style.

As a novel, however, it bears much the same relation to real literature that a jig-saw puzzle bears to a problem in higher mathematics. It gives you hours of amusement without taxing in the slightest any of the brain cells.

Czechoslovakia to Erect Pavilion for World's Fair Exhibit

Announcement that Czechoslovakia will be represented with a pavilion at the World's Fair this summer was made yesterday by exposition officials. News of the Czech participation was received in a telegram from Prague.

The efforts of the late Mayor Cermak during his visit to Europe last summer on behalf of the exposition resulted in the decision of the land of his birthplace to participate, officials declared.

The Czechoslovakian building will rise on a plot of ground 10,000 feet square just south of the 23d street bridge and north of the Old Heidelberg restaurant. The structure will be of wood and will embody native architecture. Exhibits will be largely industrial in character.

Predict Busy Stage Season for Fair Time

Shubert Plans Revue for Early Summer.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

J. J. Shubert, who returned to New York after the closing of his latest musical comedy production, "The Red Robin," at the Grand Opera house, sends word that he has by no means abandoned his plans for creative activity in Chicago. He intends to stage a revue for a spring or summer run here that will be a blend of the best parts of two recent Broadway shows, "Americana" and "Ballyhoo." He is now recruiting players for this company and names Fannie Brice and Harry Richman as possible stars.

Another item on Mr. Shubert's Chicago schedule is an operetta by Franz Lehar, the "Merry Widow" composer, which will be new to the American stage. Two singers of national reputation will have the leading rôles.

In addition to making these promises, Mr. Shubert passes the word that the Chicago theaters are due for a lively spring and summer season. He has been probing into the minds of the New York booking agents—mysterious fellows who have adopted a policy of secrecy of late—and has made many discoveries. For example:

"Autumn Crocus," with Francis Lederer, a new matinée idol, and Dorothy Gish as stars, is coming to the Harris. "Dinner for Eight," the dramatic hit of the year, is scheduled for the Grand Opera house. "The Gay Divorce," a musical comedy with Fred Astaire as its star, is a prospect for the Apollo.

Other engagements that may be counted on for May and June are: Ethel Barrymore in "An Amazing Career"; Walter Hampden in "Caponsacchi" and "Hamlet"; "Twentieth Century," with Eugenie Leontovitch; "Flying Colors," Max Gordon's latest revue, and "Walk a Little Faster," with Beatrice Lillie and Messrs. Clark and McCullough. In addition, Katherine Cornell is contemplating a tour in her current New York success, "Alien Corn," which may bring her into Chicago next summer.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

THE MAN IN THE WHEEL CHAIR.

"One of the students told me a humorous incident about old Mr. Harvey the other day. By the way, that man can manipulate a wheel chair faster than any invalid I ever saw!" Prof. Fordney was talking to some of his fellow members at the club.

"Groves, Harvey's male nurse, had parked the wheel chair outside a drug store and gone in to make a purchase. He was delayed some time because of slow service and when he came out Harvey had disappeared!

"The old gentleman's doctor had forbidden him the use of tobacco, to which he was addicted in all its forms. Therefore, when Groves spotted a tobacconist three doors away he hurried in to inquire if Harvey had been there.

"Yes, he had. He purchased two cigars, a plug of tobacco, a package of cigarets, and wheeled out with a speedy flourish.

"Groves left the store and stood outside a moment trying to decide in which direction Harvey had gone. The tobacconist had not noticed.

"There was a group of people gathered at the corner to the right. No, they hadn't noticed the old gentleman. Then Groves, after running about a bit, made a discovery which sent him scuttling down the side street after his charge."

"I know," interrupted Charles Esdale, "the wheels left tracks!"

"No," laughed the professor, "there weren't any wheel tracks. Chumsford, you look unusually intelligent this evening! HAVE YOU THE ANSWER? AND, HAVE YOU?

Spring Straws on Display at Hat Counters

One Designer Presents Champagne Model.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's rather breath taking, we imagine, to certain of our male critics, how we, as shoppers, have kept fabric and other reasonable and seasonable hats tilted over our shopping eyes? Once upon a time we used to plunge into the snows and blizzards of January with trick new spring straws pulled over our shivering brows, and great was the roar of the razzers.

This year we seem to be delightfully different, for January and a good part of February went down into oblivion without scathing digs from the spectators concerning the females who flirted with pneumonia by topping a fur coat with a giddy straw lid.

But the spring straws are out now and going up, in all their crisp and crackling splendor . . . and that is as it should be . . . it's time for straws, time for the old head to have some air after being engulfed in felts and thick fabrics for a season. And straws this year are straws . . . frankly and openly just what they are supposed to be. Look for the high hats of straw, fine smooth straws, rough, hand woven affairs, and the good old milans that everybody can wear any place.

One very optimistic designer has presented the champagne hat . . . a wide, floppy, shadowy brimmed straw creation of a purplish-blue shade, appropriately called grape . . . it is effectively simple, with three grape or wine shades of ribbon banding the rather low crown. To match this intoxicating headpiece, a lovely chiffon frock, duplicating all these lovely colors, could be fashioned by some clever person with a decided opinion as to the eternal fitness of things.

Merry-widow sailors are staging a grand reunion . . . flat but flattering models that lots of shoppers are going to buy. You will find them in black, navy, white, and colors . . . the brims are wide and straight and the crowns are flat and squared.

Small skimmer-type hats are abundant. You will see them festooned with flowers or simply graced with an artful bunch of feathers or a cockade of ribbon. These are the hats you perch on your head, way down over the right eyebrow, and wear with all your new street frocks.

Another small hat is the swanky new white satin sailor, designed to wear with dress-parade clothes that go out of nights. They are as stunning as they are severely sophisticated, and what grand things they will do for your sleek, black dinner and dance costumes that are composed of a one piece dress elaborated with white, and the long knee length matching coat trimmed with fur!

A new small hat that will take the town by storm is the small turban-like straw in black, blue and colors, fitted with a long, elbow length veil. It is called the mystery veil and is the exact color of the closely molded turban straw hat and is quite the most flattering hat of the year.

The shoppers who search for hats with quality, hats with an air of experience, hats that are hats, not airy trifles, should see the well designed models that no mere flapper could dare wear. They have adoitly turned brims, sophisticated crowns, with flat flowers deftly tucked around the crown in several shades of one color. A stunning gray creation features three subtle tones of gray zinnias, a navy blue has three shades of lighter blue, and there are other equally interesting combinations awaiting the knowing hat buyer.

Star of the Sea.

BY NANCY CABOT.

A bit of the sea seems caught in the soft blue prints and the deeper blue center of this "Star of the Sea." This is one of the oldest designs in quilting history, dating back to earliest colonial days. The originator of the design was a young woman who lived in a little village on the rocky Maine coast, close to the sea that she loved.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send five cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

List Qualities for National Beauty of '34

Convention Crowns Queen for Next Year.

New York, March 21.—(AP)—To be beautiful in 1934, the experts say, you should have blue eyes and chestnut hair, be five feet five inches tall, weigh 116 pounds, and "not be extreme in anything."

Your hair should be done in a short bob, with soft waves curled on the ends.

That is a picture of "what American women will want to be like next year" painted by 32,000 beauty shop owners in answering questionnaires sent out by the International Beauty Shop Owners' convention.

After getting the composite picture convention officials set out to find a girl who came the closest to the description. They searched Broadway theaters, business offices, schools, and night clubs.

And tonight they announced they had found her.

That was how Ethel Hampton, native of New Haven, Conn., who has her first "bit" in a Broadway show, came to be crowned "Miss 1934" at the convention tonight.

Her eyes are hazel instead of blue, her hair is hazel instead of chestnut, and she is one pound under the "composite" weight, but in every other way she answers the description to the inch, the ounce, and the dot.

Her bust is 33 inches, her hips 35 inches, and her waist 26 inches. She is 20 years old, a high school graduate, and until she got a small speaking part in a Broadway show she had spent her time playing in dramatic clubs and stock companies.

There was some consternation among the assembled beauty shop owners when she confessed quite frankly that she rarely went into a beauty shop—"only to get my hair done."

While the "beauticians," as some of them call themselves, are introducing many odd "thing-a-ma-jigs," designed to make women beautiful, Miss Hampton said she used none of them.

She scorns, for example, such innovations as the new artificial finger nails which a woman can glue over her own, and lotion which crystalizes a woman's hair, and the metallic powder to turn the hair golden or silver, and the demountable eyelashes, and also demountable noses for women who don't like their own.

"She's just a natural girl, not extreme in anything," explained a convention official, but the demountable and artificial gadgets will be popular, he insisted, with women who don't look like Miss Hampton but want to.

Stand Erect and Overcome Faulty Posture

a. Take the position of attention. Bend the head slowly and forcibly downward until the chin rests on the chest. Recover.

b. Bend rearward and recover.

c. Turn right and recover. Then left and recover.

d. Roll the neck around slowly.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A fortune teller confessed that she learned about people from the way they carried themselves; chiefly, in the way the head is poised.

If one is depressed and blue the head is lowered, the chest flattened; there is no buoyancy in the step.

Professor James said: "Whistling to keep up your courage is no mere figure of speech; sit in a moping posture and your melancholy will linger."

Another authority notes it is instinctive to stand erect to overcome fear; the first step in resisting defeat is to lift the chin.

We can all, at this moment, use a little more of the stamina needed to "take it on the chin," to resist fear, defeat, the blues. If a strong, erect posture will help—which it will, both physically and psychologically—who is going to deny him or herself the tonic? Anyway, I know of no better way of putting up a front than whipping one's body into a strong, erect posture. Nothing is truer than that a fit of the blues cannot withstand deep breathing and an erect carriage.

In the well poised body all the organs are held in position for the proper performance of their functions. This must necessarily mean better health, increased mental and physical power. Circulation, digestion, the nerves are affected with a relaxed posture, drooping shoulders, depressed chest, protruding abdomen. It's almost suicidal not to avail oneself of the benefits that accrue from looking and being the alert, well set-up individual.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Here's a lightweight melodrama with comedy angles. It doesn't contain a kitchen stove, but has just about everything else from Palm Beach to Reno.

Gold diggers dig and gangsters plot,
Rascals ras-cal all o'er the lot;
Police! Police! A beauteous bride
Is kidnaped (?) from her husband's side;
A murder, too! Which proves to be
A suicide? Now don't ask me!
A gigolo smiles, so sleek and slim
At what he hopes will come to him,
And, lo! two crafty, fair chorines
Who gum up works and spills beans!
One's a tough bebby. One is swate,
But kind hearts 'neath their brassieres bate (just a little Irish for good measure).

There are parents (???), hotel clerks, Orchestras, waiters—ALL the works . . .!

The action starts in Palm Beach, where you discover the bait chorine (Mary Brian—and she's no blonde this time, praise be!), experiencedly avoiding the pawings of a fatuous and wealthy old stage door Johnny (Mr. Kibbee). He has found Kay and June on their uppers in New York, taken pity on 'em, developed a crush on June, and brought the girl friends to Palm Beach, there, supposedly, to have his way with the fair Miss Dale. But he is not wise in the maneuvers of women who ask all and give nothing. He learns his lesson, however, and departs in a huff, leaving the not-so-far-sighted maidens stranded and owing a hotel bill of some $700.

A-hunting they go for new conquests and get all mixed up in a skin game, the principals of which are a reprehensible chorine acquaintance, her slimy lover, a noble and nice and, what is e'en more to their liking, rich young man, a couple of oily old folks who turn out to be pretty much amateurs at the game of bunk'em, and a sinister fellow who goes to meet his God sooner than he had expected.

The picture is fairly suspenseful. It boasts a few laughable situations and lines which fall mostly to the lot of that clever Glenda Farrell—blonde composite reminder of Lilyan Tashman, Mae West, and other hard-boiled good-lookers—who has a definite and winning something or other that is all her own.

The acting is all capable and the director did considerable with flimsy material. Photography and the ladies' gowns are hotcha.

See you soon.

Bowling Wins Large Crowd of Followers

Young People Enjoy Game Every Sunday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SUNDAYS might be called fun days for a certain crowd of young near north siders. The day starts about 2:30 o'clock for the feminine members of the group who get telephone calls asking, "Are you going to play basketball with us this afternoon?" The girls are dying to play, of course, and they agree to be ready by 3. It takes quite a while, however, to get the crowd together, so it is 5 or 5:30 when the young people finally reach the bowling alley.

There seldom are enough for two basketball teams, and it is too late, anyway, for that game, and anyhow it is strongly suspected that they intended to bowl all the time. John Brittingham is the ranking player of this group, and with his first ball he always bowls a strike—which means that all ten pins are knocked down. When a beginner (nearly all the girls are just learning the game) bowls a strike, it is a wonderful thrill.

Miss Margaret Chapman bowls in waltz time and is very successful with her peculiar timing. On the count of one she raises the ball high in front and thrusts one foot forward. Two, and she swings the ball behind her, executes a double shuffle with her feet, and at three the ball is rolling merrily down the alley.

Winifred Wheeler Bets on Skill.

William Alden Little is speed personified. He takes a running start and with a terrific swing launches the ball. When not playing overly seriously he allows the momentum to carry him halfway down the alley, but this is a little wearing on the seat of his trousers.

Miss Winifred Wheeler never costs the boys a cent as far as bowling goes, for when given a 100 point handicap she will bet the cost of the game that she gets a higher score. Unfortunately, she has been betting Mr. Brittingham. Miss Mabel Gordon has a steady hand and a keen eye and won a movie from Richard K. Juergens. Of course he was "off his game."

Brayton Harrison Slade is another bowler. Although he has beautiful form he has not been so far right up at the top. Mason Wells, who comes from the east and has set up a bachelor establishment on Cedar street, has an accurate way with the ball.

Tea Today for Julia Peterkin.

Julia Peterkin, whose soft voice and delicious southern drawl, as well as what she says, give her listeners an indication of how peaceful and different from our busy city life, life at the Peterkins' plantation, Lang Syne, in South Carolina, must be, is to be the guest of the Friends of American Writers at a tea this afternoon in the red lacquer room of the Palmer house.

Tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock Mrs. Peterkin is to talk at the Arts club on "The Art of Living," after which Alfred E. Hamill will entertain at luncheon at the club for her.

Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Arthur Meeker is giving a small tea at her residence, 1100 Lake Shore drive, for Mrs. Peterkin, and Friday the P. E. N. club, of which Mrs. Peterkin's hostess during her Chicago visit, Miss Fanny Butcher, is president, is giving a luncheon at the Casino for the author of "Scarlet Sister Mary," which won for the author the Pulitzer prize in 1928.

Friday night the Walter S. Brewsters are entertaining at dinner at their residence on Lake View avenue for Mrs. Peterkin. Mrs. Brewster will arrive at home that day from New York, where she went for the international flower show. Mrs. John Stuart, Mrs. John W. Gary, and Mrs. Howard C. Phillips accompanied Mrs. Peterkin east for the show, the foursome leaving last Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Mark W. Cresap and Mrs. William H. Colvin are other Chicagoans in New York this week for the show.

Pick Store for Junior League Sale.

After a week of visits to every vacant store building in the loop the provisional members of the Junior league have found a place that meets the requirements for their annual spring second hand clothes sale. Tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock they will open shop at 169 North Wabash avenue . . . a building with a doorway big enough to allow two lanes of traffic, yet small enough to save a rush.

In spite of this safeguard, however, there will be three or four mounted policemen on hand "just in case." Forty-five provisional members are to work as salesgirls and cashiers . . . among them Miss Ethel Dixon, Miss Virginia Winston, Miss Margaret Wiley, Miss Margaret Wilder, and, of course, the chairman of the sale, Miss Jean Armstrong . . . and others will wrap bundles.

The prize among all the things rummaged out of gold coast closets the last several weeks is a black caracul coat . . . in remarkable condition. And then, too, Miss Isabel Gordon explains, there are some rare bargains in baby shoes and gentlemen's "full dress."

Another Party for Miss Lunt.

Miss Cornelia Gray Lunt . . . a nonagenarian ever since Sunday . . . is to have another birthday party today with Mrs. Raymond L. Redheffer as her hostess. At her apartment at 1430 Lake Shore drive, Mrs. Redheffer will entertain 80 friends at tea and music between 4 and 7 o'clock.

It was five years ago, when Miss Lunt was four score years and five, that Mrs. Redheffer gave her a party on the 19th, but ever since then Miss Lunt has felt that she should remain at Anchorfast on this day of celebration with her friends and relatives. Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Redheffer accompanied Miss Lunt on her annual European trip. And as Mrs. Redheffer

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons, Meryl and Margaret, sisters; Flint, their brother, and Andrew, the father, have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior, after losing their fortune in Chicago. Andrew went to pieces after the death of his wife. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girls' school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past. Flint and his friend, Ned Bremner, hope to build up a great export business. Ned is in love with Meryl, but she dreams of a better future. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. Blake is in love with Greer's wife, Christine, and is glad to have two weeks in seclusion with the Hendersons while his broken ankle mends. Meryl falls in love with Blake, who is fond of her, though still enamored of Christine.

INSTALLMENT IX.

DISCONTENT.

It was their first exchange of personal comment. Perhaps, Blake thought, it was because Meryl knew that in a few days he would be leaving the Point, very likely forever.

"Well," he said slowly, "maybe—eighteen."

She did not smile. "Eighteen—and three," she replied.

"Twenty-one! And free—and white."

"Twenty-one—and white," she observed, looking broodingly out upon the lake. "And I mean to be free—some day."

"What more freedom could any one want than—this?" he asked, waving his hand toward the lake.

She shrugged impatiently. "If you really thought that," she said, "you wouldn't be leaving it so soon."

"If I didn't have business elsewhere——"

"I mean to have business elsewhere, too," she interrupted him. "I shall always have this, of course—because it's in my blood, I suppose. But I want something else, too. My father went native—that's what Flinty calls it—twelve years ago, when everything crashed about him. He's become a philosopher. I'm no philosopher. If I must settle down here I want to convince myself first that there's nothing else in the world for me except this. Just now, at any rate, it isn't enough.'

"I didn't mean to bother you with all this," she said, faintly, hostile. "I must go."

"I know," Blake said, and surprised himself. "I heard you talking to Ned the other night—after the dance."

Meryl glanced at him quickly and he was a little sorry when he saw her flush. "O, you heard us?"

"I didn't mean to," he apologized. "And I covered my ears as fast as I could."

She picked up a pebble and toyed with it. "That's just it," she said slowly, "if I don't leave here soon I shall marry Ned—and that will be the end."

"He's a fine, upstanding young fellow," Blake observed stoutly.

"And when you marry," she replied quickly, "I suppose it will be because you have met a fine, upstanding young lady. I need a better reason than that."

Blake studied her half averted face and then suddenly she turned her head and looked at him. The widening and darkening of her eyes set up within him an unexpected and acute discomfort.

"In most marriages," he argued, "there is a large element of—well, of compromise."

"And most marriages fail—because of that," she retorted.

Blake flicked the ash from his cigaret and frowned, staring at the gray rock beneath him. "What are you going to do, then?" he asked quietly, watching the swift flight of emotion across her face.

"I am not going to stay here," she replied. "I can go somewhere—and wash dishes, if necessary."

"That's quite ridiculous, of course," Blake said.

"Not quite as ridiculous as it sounds. There's nothing else I can do until I learn how. I haven't the proper qualifications to take a teaching position. I have no business training. I don't know any one who could recommend me for library work or anything ladylike. I've had no experience with small children, so nobody would take me as a nursemaid. It just about narrows down to dishwashing."

Blake felt profoundly at a loss. Had she been anything but the straight, arrowlike creature that she was, so haughtily young, and with that unmistakable air of being well born, the problem would have been simple enough.

"I can't quite see you washing dishes, Meryl," he confessed.

"I'm not afraid of work," she assured him. "I could go to night school and learn something useful."

A distinct feeling of humility struck Blake Lawrence. The girl had a quality which he had never been obliged to prove in himself.

"Well," he said at last, "where do you intend going?"

"Far enough away so that I won't be tempted to come running home the first time I'm miserable. Probably the Twin Cities or Chicago." Her lashes swept naively over her eyes. "Perhaps—eventually, New York."

Blake laughed. "You're setting forth to be quite an adventuress, aren't you? A regular bold, bad woman!"

Her eyes flashed in retort. "I'd rather be a bad one than a dull one," she declared. "I have not forgotten all I saw before we came here. Our mother took us about a good deal the year before she died—to concerts and art galleries. I want those things again—and people who know something besides fish."

He ventured a narrow look at her, not quite sure of what it was he was feeling. He hoped she would not turn and gaze at him with those great, solemn, disconcerting eyes of hers.

"When do you plan to leave?" he asked her.

Meryl suffered momentary disconsolateness. "That depends," she said with a return of her old reticence.

"It depends upon what your people out there are getting in their nets, doesn't it?" he asked bluntly.

A light flush glowed through the transparency of her cheeks. "It does," she admitted simply.

He leaned toward her impulsively. "I could help, Meryl," he said, "if you would let me. I owe it to you for the care you have given me."

It hurt him more keenly than he could have dreamt it would when she started back from him in amazement.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I couldn't."

He knew now what it was about her that made her so remote. It was a fay quality that placed her definitely beyond his reach.

"I shouldn't have said that, Meryl," he apologized. "I wouldn't offend you for the world. But——"

He paused as she got abruptly to her feet. "I did not mean to bother you with all this," she said, faintly hostile. "Please don't speak of it to the family. I think I see the boat coming in. I must go."

For the remainder of the day and evening Blake felt that an estrangement had come between them which threatened to undo the friendliness they had established in the beginning of their morning's talk.

Ten days later came the end of Indian summer. The sun went down, leaving a baleful pallor above the scarred and blackened ridge where the fire had been, and a wind descended from the northeast, from the wild promontories of Thunder bay, flashing long, white blades up out of the livid waters of the lake.

At the early supper Blake spoke of leaving, probably the day after tomorrow. Although he addressed his remarks chiefly to Andrew and Letitia Gaylord, he presently found his eyes drawn to Meryl's face. Again that widening and darkening gaze of hers filled him with a puzzling discomfiture.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Why do my jelly rolls crack?"

So many, many sponge roll questions like that come our way each week that its plain we need a lesson if we're not to feed our families popped open jelly rolls with all the inner goodness exposing itself through the cracks.

The trick lies in the recipe for the jelly roll, in the way we bake it, in the way we treat it when we take it from the pan, and on how we roll it. For instance, while we certainly won't stand for any toughness in our roll, too much tenderness and crumbliness in the cake is likely to cause splits.

Usually, therefore, the recipe containing an extra egg will stand the strain on its backbone better than will its fewer egged neighbor. Likewise, cream of tartar is likely to set to work on the proteins in the eggs and flour and make them additionally tender, so that this ingredient is seldom used in a roll sponge cake.

Next, too often the sponge cake roll is baked in too thick a layer, making it much harder to roll without splitting the cake. Different recipes call for different sized pans, but the batter should always be spread thin in a shallow pan lined with a greased paper. The layer of batter should be of equal thickness to the corners, or perhaps a little thinner in the center. It should never exceed ½ inch in thickness and may measure slightly less.

The next sin against a jelly roll is too long baking. The oven should be hot [about 400 degrees F.], but not hotter, or a hard bottom crust will form and the cake will dry out and crack when rolled. The baking should take no longer than 13 minutes.

When baked the sheet of cake should be turned out at once onto a large clean cloth which has been wrung out of cold water. Strip off the paper from the bottom, cut off the crusty edge with a sharp knife and spread the sheet with softened jelly.

Let the cake stand a minute longer on the cloth, then raise the cloth at one end with one hand, and with the other gently but quickly bend over the end of the sheet to start the roll. Quickly, with one motion, draw the cloth upward, automatically rolling the jelly spread cake out of the cloth and into a complete roll. Wrap in a dry cloth sprinkled with powdered sugar and cool on a rack. Slice to serve and top with whipped cream if desired.

But while you're rolling your cakes don't always make them jelly affairs. Fudge, just at the creamy, beaten stage, may be spread over a sponge cake sheet before rolling. Or if you have substituted ¼ cup of the flour in the recipe, making a chocolate sponge, spread a fluffy marshmallow icing over it before the rollup. Powdered sugar sprinkled over the outside is always in order.

Finally for a jelly roll recipe which I have found to be the most rollable and delicious.

OLD TIME JELLY ROLL.
4 eggs.
¼ teaspoon salt.
¾ teaspoon baking powder.
¾ cup sugar.
1 cup soft jelly.

Add the baking powder and salt to the eggs and beat with a rotary beater until the mixture is thick and light yellow. Now gradually sift in the sugar, beating all the while. Fold in the sifted flour and the vanilla and turn out into a shallow pan—about 16 by 10 inches—which has been lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderately hot oven [400 degrees F.] for 13 minutes.

Turn out at once onto a cloth which has been wrung out of cold water, let stand a minute on the cloth, then roll quickly. When rolled, wrap in a dry cloth sprinkled with powdered sugar and let cool on a rack.

Patou Ensemble Smartly Checked for Town Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Checks are being put on all kinds of clothes coming out of Paris this spring. Evening gowns with cross barred checks of velvet are chic. Sports coats and capes made of broken shepherd plaid which is really checked are the last word in verve and style. Daytime dresses are being made entirely of checked silk, or have their details all checked up.

The Jean Patou ensemble, shown here today, carries the smartest amount of checking for town clothes. Patou is the Paris dressmaker who has done most to make checks fashionable, and this ensemble shows how he uses his checked materials.

The coat, shown in the background, is made of a fine black silk and wool material. It is semi-fitted and trimmed with bands of black astrakhan down the front. It also has astrakhan piepiece godets on the cloth collar and on the sleeves.

The dress that goes with this coat is made of a black silk crêpe material exclusive with Patou. It has a corset-like inset of black and white checked foulard from bust to hipline, crossed by a black belt at the normal waistline. A black shoulder yoke in bolero effect is crossed in front and held by a bow of checked silk.

Film Author Can Boast of Own Adventure

Wallace Smith Ponders Next Career.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 21.—[Special.]—One of the independent spirits that has refused to capitulate to Hollywood and its pet activities is Wallace Smith, former Chicago newspaper reporter and artist.

A lad who never got farther than the grammar grades in the Knickerbocker public school in Chicago, who became successively newspaper office boy, correspondent for a Chicago daily in Washington, D. C., when 20 years of age, and later became an art student, Smith still is hurdling over, or crashing through the conventions which obtain wherever he finds himself.

He quit a profitable contract to write stories for the movies last summer because he felt the urge to pen a new novel. Now that the novel, "The Captain Hates the Ship," is about to come out, Smith isn't certain what's next. He doesn't think he's going back to the films until he has made a trip to the big tennis tournaments of the season in the east. The reason for that is solely that he has a fancy that Frank Parker, youthful mid-western net star, will prove the coming American tennis champion, and he wants to see Parker play against outstanding competition in the big meets.

Smith's record as a film writer is as good as any one's, and it's unique in one respect because besides writing his scenarios, he draws them. His scripts always contain marginal drawings of the way a set should look and the way the hero or heroine should wear a makeup, or costume, in enacting a situation. It was this double facility with the word and the picture that caused Douglas Fairbanks to single Smith out to write—and draw—"The Gaucho" for Doug, and the Fairbanksian hit proved only one of a series of big successes in which Smith, as writer, figured for United Artists producers.

He wrote the situations and drew the costumes for Norma Talmadge's "The Dove." He did the screen adaptations for "Two Arabian Knights" and "Bulldog Drummond." His last one was "The Lost Squadron." He retired from a contract at Radio-RKO to write his current novel.

There's no one exactly like Smith in the film center. He's lived a couple of full careers already, and each of them in a different occupation and a different corner of the world. He went to Mexico as a newspaper correspondent during the Madero, Carranaza, and Villa wars, became an officer both for and against Villa; outraced the bullets back to United States soil; collaborated with Ben Hecht in drawings and helping write "Fantasius Malaire," illustrated Bodenheim's "The Black Guard"; turned out the novels "Little Tigress," and "Are You Decent?" Lived a couple of years and made money as an Oregon rancher; found the only girl in the world whose first name is Echo and married her, and still thinks that was the smartest and most exciting thing he ever did. And in between these chapters of an active life, he's taken passage on tramp steamers to out of the way ports as the whim struck him, interspersing these adventures with tuxedo clad life in Paris and New York.

What does a man like that think of Hollywood?

When I asked him he meditated. "Well it wouldn't be so bad, if I could find more than one good place to eat when I want to dine out."

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From Germany's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll bring out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

recalled yesterday, "It was all I could do to keep up with her though I suppose I have about a third as many years to my credit."

There will be an hour of music this afternoon, from 5 to 6, with the artists all friends of the birthday guest—Mrs. Louise K. Boysen, Mrs. Gilbert Smith, Mrs. Morris E. Feiwell, and Tsianina, familiarly known as the Indian "princess." Pouring at the tea table will be Mrs. Americus F. Callahan and Mrs. Lunt Gardner, a niece of Miss Lunt who makes her home at Anchorfast.

Tonight at the Casino club about seventy-five young people will enjoy dining and dancing at the party that Miss Edith Behr is giving for Miss Florence Carr and Edgar Lewis Marston II., who are to be married Saturday.

Lighthouse Aids Plan for Dance.

The Lighthouse Volunteer Aids are to have their annual luncheon at the Casino on April 7 to make plans for their dinner dance on May 13 at the Old Heidelberg inn at A Century of Progress. That beer will be legal by that time is causing the young women in charge of the party great glee, for think how well a stein of beer will go with the sort of dinner one will have at a German inn.

Some of the comeliest of the aids are to act as mannequins in a fashion show at a South Michigan shop next Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind. Miss Alice Bremner, Mrs. Franklin G. Clement, Mrs. Jane W. Clark, Mrs. Philip A. Copenhaver, Miss Julia Kramer, Miss Ethel Dixon, Miss Jane Fortune, Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Marion Gordon, and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler will model.

Writing of beer reminds us that we heard that the Opera club is getting its old silver champagne buckets out of the basement and shining them up in preparation for the time when beer can be served to members at the Saturday dinner dances. Goodness gracious! Hasn't beer come up in the world during the years when it was banned officially?

Party Tonight for Fair Official

Around a large oval table with a garden gay with tulips and daffodils in the center 100 members of the Dante Alighiere Society of Chicago will gather this evening to meet and exchange patriotic notes with that distinguished Italian, Baron Alessandro Sardi di Revisondoli, one of the two royal Italian commissioners to A Century of Progress. The hour is 7 o'clock, the place the Belden-Stratford hotel. After demi-tasse Baron Sardi is to tell something of the progress being made on the Italian pavilion to be erected on the World's Fair grounds.

Dr. Italo F. Volini will introduce the guest and the Italian consul general in Chicago, Giuseppe Castruccio, will speak. Others who will have places round the oval are Col. Tryggve Siqueland, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins, Charles Hackett, Mrs. Wentworth Field, and Miss Cornelia Fairbanks.

Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift will open her residence at 1551 Astor street to the Juniors of the Alliance Française for their April meeting. This will take place on Tuesday, April 11, at 3:30 o'clock, when Mrs. John Storrs will give a talk in French on "Ménage et Ménager." Mrs. Swift's daughter, Geraldine, is a member of the Juniors.

Mrs. Frank S. Sims, who was temporarily in charge of publicity for the Service club, has withdrawn from that task, and with her sister, Miss Caroline McNair, has taken over other club duties. Miss McNair and her father, Frank McNair, sailed last February to spend a month in Egypt. Mrs. Sims has received a cable from them, saying that they are sailing home April 1 on the Bremen, so Chicago will be seeing them very soon.

Mrs. Herbert H. Kennedy is now in charge of publicity for the Service club. Although there have been some directors' meetings, nothing has been definitely decided for the show this fall. Mrs. Kennedy returned last week from Florida, where she went with Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. and her daughter, Nancy, who had been so ill with pneumonia. The child is now in the best of health and she and her mother will be at home again the first of the month.

Dr. Dandy Guest at Chadwick Villa.

Our Palm Beach correspondent writes that a noted visitor there now is Dr. Walter E. Dandy, the brain specialist of Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, who is visiting one of his former patients, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick. Dr. Dandy has asked his hostess not to entertain for him for he wants to enjoy the surf bathing and sunshine and to rest, so the Villa today is not the scene of any large parties for this distinguished guest.

Our informant goes on to say that everyone still is laughing over the remark of a winter colonist who, upon being asked, "who is Mrs. Jacob Baur?" when Mrs. Baur was visiting Mrs. Chadwick, replied, "why, she's a very clever woman from Chicago who thinks there still is a Republican party."

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chester Otis Jr. have another little boy. He was born Monday morning at the Passavant hospital, and although they are not definitely decided on his name, they think it will be John. His brother is Ralph Chester Otis, III.

Travel notes: The Edward A. Cudahys are back from Pasadena. . . . The Herbert P. McLaughlins and the Robert S. Piries have returned from a motor trip to Florida. . . . Mrs. Laird Bell and her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, will return on Friday from three weeks in Arizona. . . . Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr. has returned from Florida. . . . The Albert F. Madleners are just back from Pasadena. . . . Mrs. Charles T. Boynton and her daughter, Mrs. Everett L. Millard, have left for three weeks in Camden and Charleston. . . . The Thomas J. O'Garas and their son, Alfred O'Gara, left last week for a trip to Miami and the Virginia Hot Springs.

Rash Claims of Psychiatrist May Be Untrue

Mothers Warned Not to Take Alarm.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I've lost the news clippings I was saving, but it said something like this:

"Phychiatrist in conference states that the indulgent mother really dislikes her child. She wants to get rid of it.

"Frequent analyses have proved this to be true. Women today want their freedom and careers. Children hinder them. The over-indulgent mother is covering a guilty conscience," etc.

Whenever I read statements like that I always tremble a little for the mothers who are going to take them much to heart. Just as they did the pronouncement of several years ago that if you were demonstrative with your children you would over-develop them sexually. These glittering generalities coming from the lips of those in authority do a great deal of harm. A mother, distrusting herself, becomes self-conscious when she kisses her small son good night—or when in a wholesome gust of affection over a cherubic infant, she sweeps him into her arms.

She need not doubt herself. All she needs for reassurance is the casual way in which children usually treat such marks of affection, or even struggle from them to get back to their play.

So, about this more recent alarm. I can see young mothers thinking with a scared look. "I did say I had missed my music since the baby had come!" and "I wonder if that's why I complain so about the baby's wash and the condition of my hands when I used to take such pride in them." I can think of a dozen similar thoughts which could make a mother ask herself, "Is my child only in my way? Do I really dislike him?"

Stop right there and from now on use your common sense on the extreme generalities emitted in connection with children and parents. It's only human to want some time for yourself as a person. It's only human to find some of the routine of housekeeping drudgery. If you're absolutely tied down by housework and baby and lack of money it's only natural you should want a little freedom and a little fun. That doesn't mean that you recent the existence of your children—or that you indulge them to compensate subconsciously for a guilty conscience. They may play a deep and satisfying part in your life and yet you may want some other interests, or a little time to yourself.

And as for the rest of the statement: the mass of women don't hitch their wagon to a star, meaning careers and a free foot. Most women want, instead, the three satisfying eternal verities—a husband, a home, and children.

Take with a grain of salt the extreme and sweeping statements about child guidance that occasionally gain public notice.

Schoolgirl, 16, Declares She's Very Unhappy

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a high school girl of 16 and very unhappy. I try terribly hard to be content, but when I am not permitted to go out often with boys to dances or to go out alone I simply find life impossible.

"I have discussed the matter with my mother in a quiet manner. She lets me have a good deal of liberty, I'll grant. She's not like some other mothers who won't let girls go out with boys at all. Still, I am discontent. What is wrong with me?

SALLY."

Go and diagnose your case, "Sally." It's just a case of growing pains mixed with the usual upsetting emotions of 16 years. Maybe a little too much concentration on study and not enough outdoor life. Again it may be not enough concentration on study and too much eagerness for boys!

Prescribing for you, we'd tell you first, "Sally," that it's a common condition of 16. It's not serious at all. And with you, last of all, to be taken seriously. It's just a phase through which most girls go, in one form or another.

It helps, of course, to keep yourself occupied. One sure way to develop the symptoms into a real ailment is to sit down and nurse the discontent until it begins to look like something real. Only thinking it so, little Sally, will make your discontent a burden.

We're all more or less discontented, you know. Up to a certain point it's a healthy sign. It's when you let it get beyond that point that it becomes a vice. At 16 you're discontented because your mother can't get over thinking you're still her little girl. You're discontented because you can't go and come as a seasoned older sister does. You're discontented because you can't have the same clothes, beaus, dates as older girls. I know, Sally. Been through it all myself. As haven't most of us women? But recovery is sure, providing you don't sit around and moon and sink yourself in gloom.

Like a lot of us older ones one day you'll sit back and say to yourself: "Goodness, but my mother had a lot of patience with me! What an unruly, inconsiderate little beast I was around 16! What I needed then was to be taken over my mother's knee and treated like the little girl I acted."

In the meantime, Sally, you might save yourself these regrets by not looking upon your mother as your worst friend and severest critic.

DESERTION SOLE CHARGE BY WIFE AGAINST WALKER

Testifies at Hearing in Miami.

Miami, Fla., March 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Janet Allen Walker wept at intervals today as she testified in a divorce hearing that her husband, former Mayor James J. Walker of New York, deserted her more than four years ago and has since refused to live with her.

Desertion is the sole ground on which Mrs. Walker bases her appeal to the court for freedom. No charges of unfaithfulness were made against the ex-mayor, now in self-imposed exile at Cannes on the Riviera, and no mention was made of Betty Compton, former movie actress, who has been frequently seen with him in France.

Hearing Before Master.

The hearing was held before Master in Chancery T. J. Dowdell, who will make a recommendation to Judge W. W. Trammell. Several witnesses besides the wife testified, all corroborating her statements. No witnesses were put on the stand by Walker's attorney, Benjamin Cohen, although on behalf of his client he made a general denial of the charge of desertion.

"He just left," was Mrs. Walker's way of explaining the actions of her husband. "I don't know that there is anything else I can say. Mr. Walker has left me—that's all."

Her first tears fell when she was asked to tell the date of her marriage. Composing herself as she dried them, Mrs. Walker replied:

"April 11, 1912, in St. Joseph's church in New York."

Again Mrs. Walker wept.

"I—I think he's 53," she said. "I know his birthday is the 19th of June."

Next the witness told of the ex-mayor of New York leaving her in October, 1928, and refusing to return to her.

"He promised to come to visit me," she added, between sobs, "but he never has. Even this winter I begged him to come down here, and he refused."

Mrs. Walker told the master she was not asking for alimony and said Walker had always been generous with her in paying her expenses.

One of the corroborating witnesses was Mrs. Cornelius Fellowes, with whom Mrs. Walker has lived in Miami Beach since the separation. She characterized Mrs. Walker as "a marvelous woman and wife," and declared she had made many efforts to get Walker to return to her.

Testifies to Character.

Mrs. Fellowes also testified to the excellent character of Mrs. Walker during the period of the separation. Two real estate dealers who followed her to the stand asserted they had handled business affairs for Mrs. Walker and that the former mayor had not been with her in Miami.

Mrs. Walker, wearing a green raincoat over a black silk dress and with a rope of pearls around her neck, appeared for the hearing at 10 a. m. with her attorneys.

Under Florida law, the recommendation of the master of chancery is usually followed by the court in granting or denying a divorce. After the testimony was taken attorneys for both sides said that Mrs. Walker appeared to have proved her case.

U. S. LOSES NEW EFFORT TO BRING INSULL TO TRIAL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, March 21.—A further effort by the United States government to extradite Samuel Insull to answer charges in Chicago of embezzlement and larceny has been made and defeated. This was revealed today. The American legation admitted that Charge d'Affaires Morris had made an informal plea several weeks ago to the foreign minister.

Today the official legal journal, Themis, published a 2,500 word opinion on the case by G. P. Choidas, prosecutor of the Arios Pagos, which is the equivalent of the Supreme court, and addressed to the ministers of justice.

Prosecutor Choidas, in passing on the double question of whether the decision of the court refusing to extradite Insull could be appealed and whether the case could be renewed on the presentation of new evidence, described the verdict as juridically inviolable. He said an appeal is impossible because the evidence was rejected and "furthermore, there is no other court able to receive the case."

Thieves Take $300 from Wheaton College Office

Thieves entered the office of Joseph M. Weaver, treasurer of Wheaton college, at noon yesterday, knocked open a locked cash drawer with a chisel, and stole between $300 and $400. Wheaton police said they suspect two men and three women who were seen driving about the campus Monday and again yesterday morning in a large blue sedan.

JUDGE PONDERS SUIT AGAINST CANAL DISTRICT

Municipal Judge John J. Rooney yesterday took under advisement a suit filed against the Sanitary district for supplies delivered during the whoopee era of 1927-1929. The suit was brought in the name of L. G. Reese, head of a printing company at 610 Van Buren street, who has assignments of the claims of the Simplex Printing company, the Superior Loose Leaf company, the Continental Supply company and the Illinois Supply company.

Attorney Meyer Edelman, appearing in behalf of the Sanitary district, charged that gross overcharges were made against the district during the period. He cited instances in which he said $60 a dozen had been charged for galvanized pails, $410 for a filing cabinet and $415 for 36 yards of rubber matting.

Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district, and Frank J. Link, former trustee, are under conviction for alleged graft during the whoopee régime.

POLICEMAN SHOT TO DEATH AS HE BATTLES BANDITS

Policeman Roscoe C. Johnston, 42 years old, of the Wabash avenue station, a Negro, was shot and killed early yesterday in a revolver battle with three robbers in the offices of the Gordon Baking company, 5324 Federal street. The robbers fled to a waiting automobile without loot.

Johnston, detailed to guard the offices, which were robbed of $5,000 last summer, was standing behind M. H. Axelrod, cashier of the company, when the bandits entered. As they commanded Axelrod to give them a money bag containing $200 Johnston opened fire. One of the bandits returned the fire, a bullet striking the policeman in the head.

Dropping the money bag on the floor, the three men ran to the street, where a fourth bandit waited for them at the wheel of an automobile. Johnston lived at 324 Garfield boulevard.

TWO ALLEGED POLICE KILLERS PUT ON TRIAL

The trials of two alleged slayers of policemen were started yesterday in the Criminal courts. In each case the prosecution is asking for the death penalty.

Jerry Kane, 31 years old, is on trial before a jury in Judge Harry Lewis' court on a charge of killing Policeman Frank J. Cunningham of the Maxwell street station. Policeman Cunningham was shot when he surprised Kane during the robbery of a restaurant at 2025 Laflin street last July 4. Kane's two accomplices escaped. Taking of testimony will start in the trial this morning. The jury was completed yesterday.

Henry Severino, recently arrested in New York, is on trial before a jury in Judge James F. Fardy's court for the murder of Policeman Martin Knudson of the Austin station. Witnesses for the state yesterday described the effort made by the policeman to prevent Severino and two companions from robbing a newspaper depot at 856 North Trumbull avenue several months ago.

Pick Jury to Hear Suit Against F. X. Bushman

A jury which will hear a $50,000 personal injury suit against Francis X. Bushman, star of the early motion picture days, was selected yesterday before Judge Harry B. Miller in the Superior court. Mrs. Margaret O'Malley Brand, 300 South Hamlin avenue, is the plaintiff. She charges that she was injured on Dec. 1, 1931, when the automobile in which she was riding was struck in Jackson boulevard by Bushman's car, driven by the actor's chauffeur.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS SLAYER SLAIN ON VENGEANCE 'RIDE'

Gun Justice Catches Up with Killer-Bandit.

Last Thursday night Daniel Nardi, 24 years old, was shot and killed by a gunman who held up the service station of the Peterson Oil company in Chicago Heights, where Nardi was employed. Early yesterday the body of a man, later identified as that of the bandit who killed Nardi, was found lying in a prairie near the old Sauk trail, half a mile east of Chicago Heights.

Body Riddled with Bullets.

The body, apparently cast out of an automobile after being riddled with bullets, was identified as that of "California Joe" Hanley, who until five weeks ago had lived in a rooming house at 1223 Otto boulevard, Chicago Heights.

Chicago Heights police said Nardi had many friends, and they believed that the slaying of Hanley, although committed in typical gangster fashion, was an act of vengeance for Nardi's murder.

Witnesses Identify Body.

Identification of Hanley's body was made by John Knagge, manager of the Peterson Oil company station, and Edward Ohrt, an employé, who witnessed the shooting of Nardi.

Police questioned James Fallors, operator of the rooming house where Hanley lived. He said Hanley had come to Chicago Heights from California.

DROPS DEAD SHOVELING SNOW.

August Kowalewski, 60 years old, 1516 Dickson street, an unemployed sheet metal worker, dropped dead of heart disease last night while shoveling snow in front of his home.

SENT TO JAIL

DR. ABRAHAM KALMAN.

Arrest Realty Broker on Confidence Game Charge

Edwin Manasse, 42 years old, head of the H. Manasse Sons real estate brokerage firm at 3944 Lawrence avenue, and a former commissioner of the Albany Park district, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with confidence game in connection with the sale of a real estate mortgage. His bond was set at $5,000 by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan. The warrant was obtained by Assistant State's Attorney James J. Cherry on complaint of Mrs. Leona Wideman, 4718 North Hamlin avenue.

ELLER KIN GETS 6TH JAIL TERM IN ALIMONY CASE

Dr. Abraham Kalman, dentist and nephew of Morris Eller of the old 20th ward, who has served five county jail sentences for failure to pay alimony, was sentenced for the sixth time yesterday by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan. The sentence yesterday was for contempt of court on a charge of perjury.

It was Dr. Kalman's sixty-eighth appearance in court in his long alimony struggle with his ex-wife, Mrs. Mabelle Kalman, 646 Cornelia street. He owes her $2,300 in back alimony, she claims, and he is trying to have the $100 a week payments reduced.

Sentence was pronounced despite the protests of the ex-wife after Attorney Harry X. Cole told Judge Finnegan that Kalman wished to admit that he had perjured himself at a previous hearing when he testified that he was receiving only $100 a month as the employé of a chain dentist concern.

Attorney Cole then withdrew from the case, giving as a reason his lack of faith in his client's credibility, and Judge Finnegan pronounced a sentence of six months in the county jail. In protesting against the jail sentence Mrs. Kalman told the court that while her husband's contributions had been small, he paid something toward the support of herself and their four children whenever he was out of jail.

ROSS FIGHTS PETROLLE FOR TITLE CHANCE

34 NEW YORK BOXERS OFF FOR CHICAGO TODAY

Golden Gloves Team on Special Train.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—Aboard their own special section of the Broadway Limited, New York's squad of 34 Golden Gloves boxers will leave tomorrow afternoon for Chicago where next Wednesday night they will battle the Chicago Golden Gloves team.

CHARLES GREEN.

Four coaches, a trainer, a doctor and Golden Gloves officials will bring the party up to 45. Two stops will be made en route, one tomorrow, just before dinner, to let the boys do road work before eating, and again Thursday morning before breakfast.

It's an exciting expedition for all the boxers, a journey they fought hard to make. Most of them are making their first trip on a Pullman and none has ever ridden on a train especially made up for a trip. Consisting of seven cars, the Golden Gloves special, will include a lounge car, observation car and a recreation car equipped with a complete gymnasium and shower baths.

Guests at Dinner.

Today's training period was another smashing session with all boxers doing an average of 12 rounds, including floor work, bag punching, body exercises and boxing. Charles Weise, hard punching middleweight, who lost to Henry Dalsamo in the 160 pound finals, turned in an impressive performance in a three round drill against Jimmie Conroy.

Tweedy Bears Down.

NO MORE DESSERT

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Golden Gloves fever, which annually seizes a great number of the citizens of Chicago and New York, shows signs of starting another epidemic. The height of the epidemic will be reached next Wednesday night when the amateur boxing champions of New York face the Chicago Golden Gloves in the Stadium ring.

All signs, most important of which was yesterday's sales at The Tribune Public Service office and room 530 of Tribune Tower, point to a large crowd that night. Undoubtedly this sixth annual series of matches with New York will be the greatest. Both cities are tied in number of bouts won in five years, 40, and in team victories. Then, too, had you seen the drill yesterday afternoon at the Illinois Athletic club, you would have concurred in the frequently expressed opinion that Chicago has its greatest squad in the six years.

New York Is Improved.

New York also boasts of an improved squad. The New York team of 35, which includes at least four boxers in each of the eight weights, leaves the east today. They will arrive in Chicago tomorrow on a special section of the Century, and will continue preparations for the intercity fights at the Medinah Athletic club. New York possibly doesn't need an improved team to give the Chicagoans all the trouble they can handle, for last year at Madison Square Garden, with several of the boys who have successfully defended their 1932 honors on the squad, New York whipped Chicago, 12 bouts to 4.

Tickets for the intercity scrap are $1.10, $2.20, and $3.30. All ringside seats and the center sections of the mezzanine are $3.30. The other mezzanine locations and the first balcony seats are $2.20, while the top balcony tickets are $1.10.

Pacek Turns Up Late.

After the daily physical examination yesterday all the Golden Glovers were removed from the hospital list. As it was Jack Kranz, who did not work out in the ring in the afternoon because of an injured wrist, was the only casualty. John Pacek, the heavyweight champion, did not box yesterday because he returned from Lindblom High school a bit too late.

Freddie Caserio, the middleweight champion, went through his first workout in the ring. He protected his eye with a special covering on the front

TALKING IT OVER.

BY ARCH WARD.

If you think the Irish no longer develop fighting men you are due for a surprise at the intercity Golden Glove bouts in Chicago Stadium a week from tonight.

New York plans to send a heavyweight into the ring that night whose nationality cannot be questioned. He's a freckle faced, red haired, rip tearing Irishman from Buffalo, where they really have Irishmen. You have heard of Joe McCarthy, haven't you?

This boy's name is Walter Brennan. The name alone might be a tipoff, but you can't tell about names these days. Jack Sharkey might be an Irishman, judging from his name, but of course his name isn't Sharkey and he isn't an Irishman.

Brennan is a heavyweight. He had the misfortune to draw Steve Dudas, who carried on to the championship, in the semi-finals of the New York Golden Gloves tournament. He gave Dudas a harder fight than Winthrop Rutherford, the Princeton athlete who moved into the final round, so in all probability the New York coaches will choose him to fight Adolph Wiater of the Chicago team in the heavyweight runnerup match.

Brennan, an iron worker, won the Buffalo Golden Gloves meet sponsored by the Courier Express. He then wanted a chance to whip the world, so he entered the New York tournament. There was only one man, Dudas, who had anything on him, and there wasn't much to choose between them, at that.

Jack Dempsey, who attended the New York finals, went hook, line, and sinker for Brennan. Dempsey would, because Brennan is Dempsey's kind of a fighter. He doesn't believe in fancy motions and wasted effort. He wants to slug, to be a Dempsey. This is characteristic of amateurs engaging in major competition for the first time. That, no doubt, is why Golden Gloves has caught the public's fancy. It brings together boys who love to fight.

A sport event that will attract a man 84 years old must have appeal. Particularly when he lives 165 miles from the scene of competition and must stay up until 6 o'clock in the morning before arriving home.

But that is what Golden Gloves mean to John V. Hellman of Galena. Mr. Hellman made the trip to the Chicago finals accompanied by Emmet and Robert Slattery and Charles Snedeker. He didn't get home until 6 a. m., but he says he would not have missed it for anything. He plans to be in attendance when New York fights Chicago.

The intercity bouts again will be handled by neutral officials. This policy was established in 1931 in the hope of eliminating decisions partial to the home town fighters.

Invitations have been extended to the following judges: William Kenney, Boston, Mass.; Dr. J. A. Reilly, Kansas City, Mo.; George Barton, Minneapolis, Minn; Thomas J. Prosser, Grand Rapids, Mich., and L. N. Bloom, Cleveland, O. The referees who have been asked to work are Walter Houlihan, Milwaukee, Wis.; Ben Osthues, Medford, Mass., and Sam Hennessey, Detroit, Mich.

SAN FRANCISCO GETS 11 RUNS, BUT CUBS PILE UP 17

Cuyler Hits Homer with Bases Full.

[NEWS OF WHITE SOX ON PAGE 21.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 21.—Kiki Cuyler this afternoon led the Chicago Cubs in a brutal assault on the San Francisco Seals, who last year were a first division outfit in the Pacific Coast league. The score was Chicago, 17; San Francisco, 11.

Cuyler stayed in the game only three innings, but during that brief span scored two runs, batted in seven, made a homer with the bases full, a triple with two on, and a single which scored a run and put a runner on third. In addition Ki stole a base.

The contest, aside from the slugging of the National league champions, was of interest because it presented Lefty Beryl Richmond in his Cub premiere. Beryl got a sore arm on the diner coming out to California and had not pitched an inning in any kind of competition until today.

Sad in Last 2 Innings.

The young man looked pretty good at the outset of his debut, holding the enemy to a single in the first two innings he worked. The other two innings were very sad. In his third inning, the eighth of the game, Manager Grimm sent in Catcher Herman Hartnett, who gummed up things with a couple of passed balls and otherwise furnished little guidance and inspiration.

In the ninth Hack kicked a grounder and this, too, seemed to disconcert the lefty. The fact that the Seals made six runs in the ninth on the Hack error, three singles, three walks in a row, two of them with the bases full, will give you some idea.

Missions Are Next.

Tomorrow and also Thursday and Friday the Cubs will seek to get a little stronger resistance. They will play the other San Francisco team which is entitled the Missions.

Lynn Nelson pitched the first five innings and was real good both afield and at bat.

NEUTRAL BATHS.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 16.—Friend Arch: Say, Arch, did you ever take a "neutral" bath? I always supposed a neutral bath was a compromise between no bath at all and a good tubbing, but that isn't right. Neutral baths are used as a remedy for insomnia at our most exclusive sanitariums and asylums, and I thought you might like to know about it.

Everything is very informal down here and you talk to every one at the beach, especially if they're from Indiana. Well, I was chatting with a young married woman and she was telling me, as per local custom, that when she came last November she couldn't use her arms or walk much and a lot of other things, and how well she felt now after four months of this sunshine, and about a number of her friends, one of whom couldn't talk when she came and now talks all the time.

When she finished she said politelike, "And why did you come?" You see, it's customary here for the listener also to be given a chance to talk. I couldn't think of anything particularly the matter with me, so I hazarded, "I have insomnia." With that she said, "O, you should take a neutral bath." Then she explained. It seems at these exclusive sanitariums and asylums, if you can't sleep, you take a neutral bath for 20 minutes, then go to sleep, sometimes in the bath tub, only the pillow may slip and get wet.

Well, the neutral means that the water is to be the same temperature as the body, and you can tell by a bath thermometer. Well, one night I got to thinking about how you might be worrying lest I wanted to come home now and was afraid to ask to come home so soon, and I couldn't sleep. So I thought of a neutral bath.

But I didn't have any bath thermometer to tell when the water was neutral, and it was so cold I knew something was wrong. So I went into the kitchen to light the heater, but I'm terribly useless around the house and I couldn't find the thingamajig to light it with.

Anyway, how would I have known how warm the body was without a body thermometer? The only one we have is for the sun and not to put under your tongue. Well, by this time I was so sleepy I went back to bed and right to sleep without a neutral bath. You might try it, however, some night when you get to worrying for fear I'll come home before my vacation is over, because you no doubt have a bath thermometer and a constant hot water heater.

Speaking about this beach informality, I met one person who absolutely does not belong here. Walking along the beach I saw one peacherino and I said, "Have you been in?" and she said, "Yes," and that's all she said as if she wondered what business of mine it was. So I said, "O, all right, then. I just wanted to tell you to watch your little brother there and not let him get in too far because there's an undertow today." But she wasn't a bit grateful and replied most rudely. "That's not my little brother, that's my sonny, and I'm perfectly capable of watching him."

I was so flabbergasted by this incivility when I was trying to do her a good turn while she possibly thought I was trying to make a pickup that I clear forgot to ask her if she was born in Indiana. I'm sure she wasn't or she wouldn't have acted that way.

There's nothing new here yet about the bank situation only that man at Sheldon Clark's oil company station finally decided to give us credit for travelers' checks. Will write again soon. Regards,

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

P. S.—There really was an undertow when I warned that uncivil beach lady about the little fellow I thought must be her brother.

CORBETT WILL LEAVES $75,000 ESTATE TO WIDOW

The will was filed by his attorney, James A. Dayton. Affidavits accompanying the document said that the estate was valued at "more than $5,000 real and $500 personal" property. It is understood that the estate will yield between $75,000 and $100,000.

The document is short, containing not more than 100 words, and names Mrs. Corbett as executrix.

In addition to St. Patrick's, the Chicago Catholic league is represented by St. Rita, De Paul, and St. George. St. Rita will make its first appearance in the tournament tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when it will face St. Leo of Minot, N. D. Among yesterday's arrivals were St. Xavier and St. Thomas Military academy, the two teams which are to meet in the 8 o'clock game tonight. St. Xavier won the championship in 1926 and is now coached by one of the boys who played on that team—Robert Schuhmann.

In winning the Louisville championship St. Xavier won 21 games and lost two. St. Thomas has 14 victories and 6 defeats on its season record.

Two changes have been made in the entry list. Reitz Memorial High school of Evansville, Ind., has been substituted for St. Mary High school of Clarksburg, W. Va., and St. Francis Xavier Cathedral High school of Green Bay, Wis., has replaced St. Francis High school of Athol Springs, N. Y.

STOCKHOLDERS ASK PROXIES IN FIGHT ON WINN

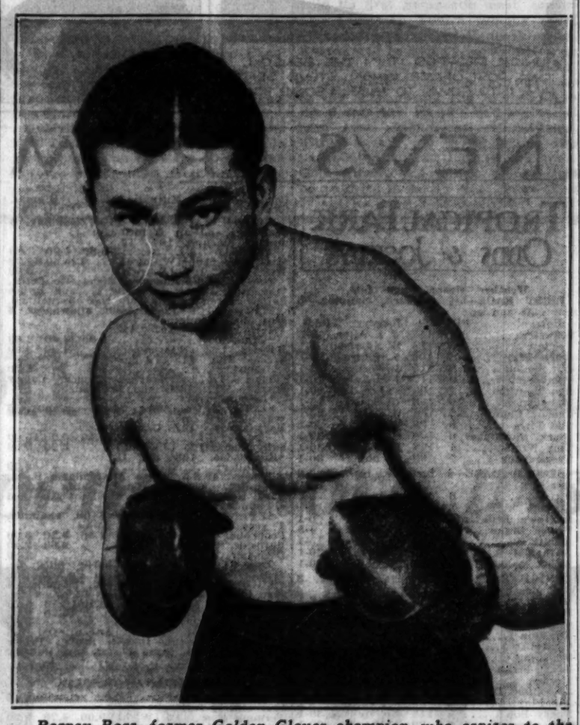
Louisville, Ky., March 21.—(AP)—A stockholders' protective committee of the American Turf association today mailed out letters asking proxies of stockholders for the annual election meeting of the association at Chicago April 3.

The letter said the committee has learned that "during the last five years greatly excessive sums have been paid to present officers in the way of salaries," and that "other very large sums have been wastefully expended by these officers."

The American Turf association operates Churchill Downs at Louisville, the Lincoln Fields and Washington Park tracks at Chicago, and the race track at Latonia, Ky. Matt J. Winn is executive director of the association.

Members of the protective committee whose names are signed to the letter are Walter H. Girdler, James G. Kirwan, Donald McDonald Jr., Sam H. Stone, and Milton S. Trost.

IT'S BATTLE WHEN THEY MEET



Barney Ross, former Golden Gloves champion, who aspires to the professional lightweight title. He fights Billy Petrolle tonight at the Stadium.

Billy Petrolle is on down grade, but figures he can take care of the up and coming Barney Ross tonight.

Ralph Jones to Coach at Lake Forest

Ralph R. Jones, for three years coach of the Bears and who led the Chicago team to its first National Professional league football championship last fall, was appointed athletic director at Lake Forest college yesterday. President Herbert M. Moore's announcement of the appointment said Jones would coach football, baseball and basketball, succeeding I. D. McIntosh, resigned.

Jones goes to Lake Forest with 32 years' experience as a coach in high school, college and professional athletics. He became head coach of the Bears in the fall of 1930, and was one of the first men hired exclusively to coach football in the professional league.

No Successor Named.

George Halas, president of the Bears, said no action had been taken toward naming a successor for Jones, but it is expected that offers will be made to several well known coaches within the next two weeks.

Jones carried the Bears from a second division berth to third place in one year and to a championship in his third season. Prior to signing with the Bears in 1931, Jones had coached football and basketball at Wabash, Purdue, Illinois, and at Lake Forest academy.

He began his coaching career in 1901 at Indianapolis, where he developed a championship basketball team at the Shortridge High school. In 1906 he went to Wabash as head basketball and assistant football coach. He remained at Wabash five years, during which his teams lost only four games. While at Wabash Jones also coached the Crawfordsville High school team.

Coaches Purdue Quintet.

In 1910 he became head basketball coach at Purdue, a position which he held until the season of 1913, when he transferred to Illinois. In 1912 his Purdue team was undefeated in its twelve conference games to capture an undisputed conference championship after tying with Minnesota in 1911. Indifferent material at Illinois his first year curtailed his success momentarily, but in 1915 he led the undefeated Illini to twelve consecutive victories and the Big Ten title. His 1917 team quintet also won the championship.

Jones was assistant football coach at Purdue and at Illinois he was head freshman coach in football and basketball. He left Illinois in 1920 to become football and basketball coach at Lake Forest academy. His success at Lake Forest led to his selection by the Bears when Halas decided to make the coaching position a full time proposition similar to that of college coaches.

Lambert, Big Ten Official, Shot by Son in Quarrel

Columbus, O., March 21.—[Special.]—A blood transfusion tonight was being considered by physicians in an effort to save the life of Dr. F. A. Lambert, member of the advisory council of the national football rules committee. Dr. Lambert, one of the leading football officials in the middle west, was shot by his 17 year old son, Samuel, during a family quarrel early today.

His condition was described by physicians as "very serious." The bullet grazed a lung and penetrated the liver. Before he lasped into unconsciousness, he absolved his son of all blame.

According to Mrs. Lambert her husband had been drinking. When he came home they quarreled and he attempted to choke her and twist her arm. She called to her son for help. When Samuel entered the room Dr. Lambert grabbed a gun. They struggled and the boy fired.

The gun went off accidentally, the youth told police this afternoon.

Dr. Lambert, author of several books on football rules and officiating, was graduated from Ohio State university in 1910. He was connected with the college of veterinary medicine for eight years. He is secretary-treasurer of the Columbus Serum company.

EXPECT 15,000 TO SEE STADIUM BOUT TONIGHT

Tonight's Card

Barney Ross vs. Billy Petrolle [10].
Varias Milling vs. Johnny Pena [10].
Charley Retzlaff vs. Walter Cobb [10].
Petey Hayes vs. Kid Irish [6].
Billy Gladstone vs. Don Messina [6].

BY FRENCH LANE.

Barney Ross, a kid from Chicago's Ghetto and only recently a graduate from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves amateur ranks, will attempt to blast his way on toward the lightweight championship of the world at the Chicago Stadium tonight.

He meets Billy Petrolle, the old Fargo Express, in a 10 round struggle, and if he wins there is a match with Tony Canzoneri, the wearer of the lightweight crown, awaiting him. Never before has a Golden Gloves graduate come so near a title chance in the professional ranks and never has a Chicago boxer won such a huge following.

Last night the advance sale of tickets indicated there will be 15,000 present when Ross squares away against Petrolle. This would mean a gate of $30,000, which is something in these times.

Praise, but Little Wagering.

The army of Ross backers was singing his praises last night, but they were not betting much money. As a result Petrolle, the old vicious body puncher from the Dakotas, who has ruined more than one title aspirant by his terrific blows, ruled as the 7 to 5 favorite. These odds are likely to prevail at bell time tonight.

It is the first major boxing attraction offered in Chicago in months and that may be partly responsible for the heavy advance sale of tickets. However, Ross' following seemed to be more responsible for it. The old timers say that Charley White and Sammy Mandell were unable to command a larger following than Ross has for this encounter.

Some shrewd fistic observers watched Petrolle engage in his last serious workout last night and came to the conclusion that it was to be a big "Ross night" at the Stadium.

Petrolle Fights Weight.

While the old Fargo Express toiled through his last drill at Howard's gymnasium nearly everybody present got the idea that he was having trouble making the stipulated weight of 133 pounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Petrolle worked in his heavy "sweat clothes." After the drill his handlers wrapped him in heavy blankets and he perspired for an hour longer.

He was up looking bright and chipper about the time the lights around Madison and Clark streets began to blink and seemed to be none the worse for the ordeal. Yet the sharpshooters all the way from Clark and Randolph to Clark and Madison streets didn't seem to want any part of him in this tussle with Ross. The fellows around these busy loop corners usually are pretty wise in the affairs of fistiana.

Quite a notable gathering will see the lightweights battle. Reservations in a ringside section have been made for Gov. Horner, State Attorney Courtney, Acting Mayor Corr, and other political notables.

Ross Shows Confidence.

The more the Chicagoans found out about Ross the more they liked his chance of winning. Fired with the ambition of youth and possessing the quiet confidence that all potential champions must have, he haunted Petrolle from the time the veteran arrived here until the training ended late yesterday. He met Petrolle at the train and said, "I'm ready to knock your block off."

Every now and then Ross bobbed up at Petrolle's training camp and sent a confident smile into the eyes of the hard hitting veteran. All this psychology stuff didn't set so well with the old time ringsiders.

"Maybe such stuff will turn the tide of battle," one of them said. "Gans, Nelson, McGovern, Young Corbett, and Leonard said it with punches in their heyday."

Canzoneri Eyes Ross.

Canzoneri, en route to Chicago to see the fight, refused to predict the outcome of tonight's battle.

"I've already whipped Petrolle. So why should I worry about him," was the way the world's champion put it. "It's this kid Ross whom I want to see."

From the way the fight managers, promoters, matchmakers and owners of big fighting arenas were maneuvering last night it seemed to be almost a certainty that the winner of the scrap at the Stadium tonight will find himself up against Canzoneri in his next engagement.

The opening glove will be thrown at 8:15 o'clock. Two six round bouts and two at 10 rounds are to go on ahead of the Ross-Petrolle affair.

HAAS' INJURY THROWS SCARE INTO SOX CAMP

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 21.—There was no George [Mule] Haas on the premises today when the White Sox held a final rehearsal before starting out tomorrow night on a week's expedition into the San Francisco bay district. Haas, former member of Connie Mack's troupe of Athletics, was confined yesterday with what was regarded as a wrenched ankle, but this morning the swelling had increased and he could hobble around his room only on one leg.

This, naturally, threw a scare into Manager Fonseca. His first thought was that Haas, in sliding into second during Sunday's game against the Giants might have snapped a small bone in his foot. To make sure about this the manager planned to have the ankle X-rayed.

Will Be Out for Week.

Haas, even if his injury is not serious, will have to rest for almost a week and that will make necessary a revision of the lineup for the impending seven games with four coast league clubs. The fleet Elias Funk will take over Haas' center field berth and will be lead off man in the attack. Jack Hayes, the second baseman, who has been employed in the top notch, will drop to second. The remainder of the batting order will be Fonseca, Simmons, Appling, Kress and Dykes as in recent engagements. That arrangement will hold until Haas reëstablishes himself as 100 per cent physically perfect.

To balance the possible loss of Haas, the ailments of Simmons suddenly have disappeared. Since the week-end games with the Giants, the former Athletics' slugger has taken only a limited amount of hitting practice. The easing up in his program has given his right hand a chance to recover from the soreness which has been present since he injured it while playing golf last November. Simmons today declared he felt great except for a touch of laziness. The climate gets 'em that way if they stay around too long.

Meet Seattle Tomorrow.

The opener of the week of exhibitions on Thursday will be against the Seattle team, which is training at Santa Cruz, Cal. The pitching that afternoon will be handled by Carl Boone and Joe Heving, with George Murray and Johnny Wilson ready for relief if needed. The assignment is probably a final trial for these fellows. Any failures are likely to be followed by shipment to the minors before the end of the week.

Fabian Kowalik, a right hander from the San Antonio club, also may be among the early departures. He's been complaining about a sore arm and hasn't shown just how much or little he is worth.

To prove that he isn't a slave driver Fonseca concluded today's practice with announcement that the athletes could drift around to suit themselves tomorrow. They haven't missed a minute of practice because of bad weather since appearing here more than three weeks ago. A day of leisure should do them more good than harm.

Chamberlin Still Missing!

Joe Chamberlin, the kid infielder who reported three weeks late and then vanished yesterday, was still absent today, but the presumption is that he will find his way back to San Francisco, his home town, and drop around to the park while the Sox are playing there. Manager Fonseca would at least like to have a look at the fellow before releasing him.

Hey Rube! King Wyatt Learns How to Punch in Tent Show

BY HOWARD BARRY.

King Wyatt of Fort Wayne, Ind., learned how to use his fists by taking on all comers from among the husky farmer boys who attended his father's traveling shows. His first appearances as a boxer were made in a small tent which was pitched in a field and packed with rustics. But on March 29 he may fight in a far different setting. For now he is an alternate on the Chicago Golden Gloves team and may earn the right to go into the Stadium ring and battle a New York opponent in the intercity bouts.

King's father, Harry Wyatt, was at one time the light heavyweight champion of Indiana. He encouraged his son to go in for this sport. Almost as soon as he was able to walk, the youngster was getting lessons in wrestling.

Fist Fight Leads to Boxing.

When he was about 10 years old King became involved in a fist fight and liked it so well that he decided to take up boxing. He showed a natural ability in this sport.

At this time King's father was conducting a road show which consisted of wrestling and boxing exhibitions. He decided to take the boy along and give him a chance to gain experience by boxing a variety of opponents. The show's equipment, including a tent and a portable ring, was loaded onto a truck, while the members of the cast, which was made up of several wrestlers and boxers, climbed into an automobile.

Then the cavalcade hit the trail, wandering through the small towns of Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, and Wisconsin, stopping wherever there appeared a likelihood of attracting a sizable audience. At each show the regular members of the cast would go through their wrestling and boxing performances. Then King would step into the ring and the barker would challenge any one in the crowd who approximated the boy's weight to come forward and match punches.

When Only K. O.'s Count.

Many a tough farmer boy gave King some anxious moments, but he usually was able to win. The judges were chosen from the town in which the show was playing and the audiences were often extremely partisan, so it was usually necessary for King to do everything but knock out his opponent before he could get a decision. However, he won most of his fights. In some cases he was required to wrestle once and box two or three times in an evening.

With the exception of his fights while on the road, King did no boxing until about a year ago. In quick succession he won the Allen county welterweight championship, the Fort Wayne championship, and the sectional Golden Gloves title which was decided at Fort Wayne. Then he came to Chicago to fight in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at the Stadium and reached the semi-final round, where he was stopped by Billy Celebron, runner-up to Henry Rothier for the 147 pound title.

And He's 17 Years Old.

King became 17 years old March 13, the day on which he arrived in Chicago to begin training for the intercity bouts. He is taking a brief vacation from his job as a cab starter in Fort Wayne.

Woods and Waters By Bob Becker

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Shell Creek, Fla., March 21. — The combination of a brilliant male cardinal and a good sized black bass in this stream provided a mystery for us yesterday when we were on a fishing trip. The question was: Did a bass strike at the redbird when it was in the brush close to the surface of the water or did the bird startle the fish when it was loafing close to the bank?

As the incident was observed we were unable to decide what had happened. Our vision was obscured by the tangle of overhanging vines and low brush which lines the high bank of Shell creek. It was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the bass and the redbird put on their act. A hot sun was beating down upon the creek with only an occasional light gust of wind to stir the cabbage palms and the swaying moss on the cypress and oak trees. The black bass had struck our surface lures very well for about an hour following our 9:30 o'clock arrival on the stream.

Then things had slowed up with only an occasional strike from big bass which lunged at our lures in a half hearted manner. Right after lunch we tossed our dancing surface lure next to a big snag and stirred up a 2½ pounder, rated as just a fair sized bass down here where the goal of the fresh water fisherman is something between five and 12 pounds. This bass, disturbed by our jerking lure, rushed from his den beneath the snag and struck like a savage. Therefore, he was hooked quite easily. Later a smaller bass repeated this performance and then a few minutes later came the redbird incident.

Returning upstream with the tide we were watching for big alligator gars rather than paying close attention to the actions of our lure and the birds. But Kelly Day, sitting in the stern of the sectional fishing boat, saw more of what happened, for at the time he was ready to cast toward the bank. The cardinal was close to the water, apparently not more than six or eight inches above the surface. When it moved from one branch of a bush to another either the bass rose up to strike at this gay colored moving object or else the fish, resting quietly against the bank and in the shade, was frightened by the bird.

Anyway, there was a noisy splashing from the fish and at the same time the bird came out of the bushes on the wing. Kelly Day called out that apparently the fish had struck at the bird and with that he tossed his lure straight at the spot where the bass had whirled on the surface. Much to our surprise this fish lunged at the lure but missed the strike, thus showing that he hadn't been frightened by the close contact with the cardinal since he hadn't swum away.

of his head gear. He stepped two rounds at a lively pace and by the end of this week he'll be ready for the New York champion. The other middleweights on the team, Jim Cummings and Bill Treest, hammered away at each other for two rounds in the continuation of the battle for the runnerup position against New York. Both are in condition.

Don Pedigo, the Davenport, Ia., light heavyweight, boxed two rounds with Adolph Wiater. Wiater received just the kind of a scrap he needs to put him into shape. The Green Bay lad, who represented Chicago against Germany in the 175 pound class last summer and won his bout, in one of the hardest workers on the squad. He also is among the quietest, going about his training with a determination all the boys might well emulate.

Rothier Needs Boxing.

The coaches last night were thinking of tieing Henry Rothier's hands. He hasn't learned that scratching at a boil spreads infection and yesterday there was indication that he might get another. Henry's almost at fighting weight now, but can't afford to miss his boxing daily if he expects to lick his New York opponent. Last year the New York lightweight champion showed Rothier a few things about fighting.

Steve Dusek was among the visiting amateurs yesterday and he worked with Bud Ginter, the bantamweight champion, for two rounds. Rothier's opponent was Billy Celebron and Celebron demonstrated that since the finals two weeks ago when Rothier beat him for the title, he's learned how to meet Henry's style. In two rounds Celebron won a clean cut decision.

Irv Goldstein is an aggressive fighter, the type that is needed against New York. He looked fine yesterday against George van der Heyden. Goldstein's lowest weight has been 123½ pounds. There is a possibility that he may be shifted to the bantamweight division if he can get down to 119 pounds on the day of the bouts.

Lengthening Drills.

It is the plan now to reach the maximum boxing of three three minute rounds tomorrow or Friday. The training table menu also begins to show curtailment of soups and desserts.

The team morale is splendid. Leo Rodak, who defeated the New York flyweight in 1931 and lost to New York's 118 pound champion last year, is anxious to win. Two defeats in three years are more than Leo can imagine possible. He now is king of Chicago's featherweights. Freddie Caserio, middleweight champion in 1931 who did not compete in Golden Gloves last year, is confident he will repeat his triumph over New York. Caserio won from the opposing captain in 1931.

With these warriors leading the way and with the help of Max Marek, who won in the east last year, the Glovers see nothing ahead except victory.

MILLER DEFEATS DADO EASILY; RETAINS TITLE

Los Angeles, Cal., March 21.—(AP)—Freddie Miller made his third successful defense of his N. B. A. world's featherweight title tonight with a one sided victory over Speedy Dado before 5,000. Miller came in at 125¼ and Dado weighed 4¾ pounds less.

Dado never had a chance. Miller knocked him down for a count of six with a sweeping right that drove the Filipino half way across the ring in the second round and had him in a bad way in at least four of the succeeding rounds.

METCALFE BEATS TOPPINO; BREAKS 60 YARD RECORD

TORONTO, Ont, March 21.—(AP)—Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university Negro sprinter, won the 60 yard sprint title of the Canadian indoor track and field championships here tonight and avenged an early season defeat by Emmett Toppino of New Orleans.

Metcalfe flashed over the distance in 6.2 seconds, to set up a new Canadian indoor record and nose out Bert Pearson, Hamilton schoolboy, and Toppino. Pearson placed second and Toppino third.

Metcalfe's victory in the sprint and Glen Cunningham's easy triumph in the two mile run were the outstanding features of the meet from an American standpoint.

Cunningham, University of Kansas star, who has been racing sensationally at the mile this year, ran the longer distance in 1:39.6, to win easily from Lloyd Longman of Toronto.

Phil Edwards, British Guinea Negro, who turned in two impressive performances for Canada in the Olympic games, defeated Ned Turner of the University of Michigan in the 1,000 yard run. Edwards staved off a brilliant last lap sprint by Turner to win by two and a half yards in 2:17.4 seconds. W. Heintz of Cincinnati was third.

Northwest Parks to Hold Gymnastic Meet Tomorrow

The Northwest parks system will hold its first gymnastic meet tomorrow night at Elmira Simons park, Wabansia avenue and Hancock street. Events will be held in parks and open divisions. Hugo Weller, central A. A. U. gymnastic champion, will compete in the open events and is entered in the flying ring, parallel and horizontal bars and side horse competitions. Three events are scheduled in the parks division and four in the open. Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded in each event. More than 50 entries have been received.

INJURED WOMAN TELLS WHY SHE PUT BOY IN JAIL

Blames His Parents for Failure to Pay.

Although she is paying $3.50 a week to keep a 15 year old high school boy in the Cook countiy jail for failure to pay a $2,500 automobile injury judgment she obtained against him, Mrs. Lucille Saliba, 1433 South Scoville avenue, Berwyn, is little less puzzled than the boy over her reasons for doing so.

"I think I am doing right," she maintained stoutly in the parlor of her brick bungalow yesterday. Then, in the next breath, she added: "I feel sorry for the boy. He's a nice boy. I don't want to be mean. But he does not feel sorry. He should understand what he did."

Woman Injured in 1931.

Mrs. Saliba was injured in 1931 in a collision between the automobile in which she and her husband were riding and one driven by William. The judgment was signed by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude last December.

On March 14 William was sent to jail when Assistant County Judge J. G. Van Keuren ruled that he had no alternative since the judgment contained a special "malice" paragraph. Under the law William can be kept in jail for six months if Mrs. Saliba pays the $3.50 a week for his board.

"The boy is penniless," said Mrs. Saliba as she pondered the case. "He can do nothing. It is really the fault of his parents. I know if the boy had money he would pay."

The Rest of the Story.

She sighed, arose from a couch, and limped across the room, returning with a copy of the Chicago Motor club's magazine. She displayed in the magazine a cartoon depicting a careless driver who, after hitting a motorist, says, "Well, what are you going to do about it? I have no money."

"That is what William's father said when my husband, Fred, went to him," said Mrs. Saliba. "I was lying unconscious in the West Suburban hospital with a fractured pelvic bone, a broken collar bone, and other injuries. My husband asked Mr. Weber if he would pay half the doctor and hospital bills.

"My husband is good. He tried to be a white fellow. But Mr. Weber said: 'My boy's a minor. He can't pay. You can't send him to jail. Go see my lawyer.'

"We mortgaged our home to pay hospital and doctor bills of $1,500. On bright days I walk without a limp, but in bad weather my right leg pains me still."

She'll Keep Him in Jail.

Mrs. Saliba then declared that even if she had to borrow money she would keep young Weber in jail for the full six months. After that, she said, she hoped still to collect from the boy when he was grown.

"People say I am not a mother or I could not keep the boy in jail," she went on. "I had two children, a boy and girl, who died of diphtheria when they were babies. But I say if I were this boy's mother or father I could not let him go to jail. I would have mortgaged my home, anything, to have helped pay the doctor bills.

"It hurt me to see the boy go to jail. He is young and foolish, and not to blame. I blame the parents."

8 Million Granted for New York Project.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—Loans of eight million dollars for slum clearance and construction of model apartments to be known as Knickerbocker village on the lower east side of New York City and $5,050,000 for the development of Jones Beach park on Long island were approved today by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

In the first of the projects the corporation has undertaken to lend "up to eight million dollars" to the Fred F. French Operators, Inc., as general contractors for the development, which is expected ultimately to cost $9,500,000. The enterprise, which will comprise two twelve story fireproof buildings, will contain 1,630 apartments with 6,030 rooms and is expected to provide employment for 1,340 men for nine months.

The site is the "Lung block" on the lower east side, so called at the turn of the century because of the high percentage of tuberculosis cases which its dingy tenements produced. The tenements, now largely unoccupied, are to be razed.

The authorization for further development of Jones Beach park on Long Island is made to the Jones Beach state park authority. A total of ten million dollars, according to the application for the loan, already has been invested in the park.

RELIEF OFFICIAL TO URGE ANOTHER LOAN FROM R. F. C.

Charles B. Goodspeed, assistant to Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, left for Washington yesterday to urge federal legislation permitting the Reconstruction Finance corporation to extend further loans to Illinois for the relief of the idle next month, or until revenue from the state sales tax is available.

Mr. Goodspeed declared that the commission estimates Cook county would need $5,196,275 next month and that sixty-five downstate counties would need a total of $1,100,000. All sources of revenue now in sight, including a possible loan of $4,748,000 from the R. F. C. on Cook county relief bonds, will amount only to $5,332,379, he said.

Aldermen Reject Contract for Police Dept. Survey

The finance committee of the city council last night refused to extend for another year the contract of the Institute of Public Administration of New York, which has been making a survey and reorganization of the Chicago police department for the last two years. The proposed contract called for an expenditure of not more than $20,000 to complete the job.

TAXES TOO HIGH, HUGE BREWERY TO BE WRECKED

Loop Office Building Meets Same Fate.

BY AL CHASE.

Two of Chicago's oldest structures, both erected shortly after the great fire of '71, one a loop office building and the other one of the city's largest breweries, are to be wrecked because of ever mounting taxes. Despite the nearness of real beer, wreckers already have started dismantling the old Conrad Seipp brewing plant at 27th street and the Illinois Central right of way. The Portland block, the six story old timer at the southeast corner of Washington and Dearborn, is to be torn down on May 1, according to John R. Magill & Co., renting agents.

The Seipp brewery plant, which architects say couldn't be replaced today for less than $5,000,000, had a capacity in pre-Volstead days of 750,000 barrels of beer yearly. It is claimed that it was then Chicago's second largest brewery. The wrecking contract, one of the largest Chicago has had in the last ten years, has been awarded to the Goldman Wrecking company.

Four Acres of Buildings.

Some idea of the size will be gained when it's known that it'll take six months to tear down the four acres of buildings. The big group of structures contain 600,000 square feet of floor space. The ground area of the buildings is 156,000 square feet.

The first brew house was built shortly after the fire. It was known as the Seipp & Lehmann Brewery. Later as it developed into one of the midwest's biggest establishments it was known as the Conrad Seipp Brewing company. Later it was sold to English interests and was known as the Chicago Consolidated Brewing and Malting company.

When the country went dry the brewery went broke. The bondholders foreclosed and for several years the property has been in charge of what is known as the Bondholders' Management committee, of which Henry Bartholomay, an old time brewer, is chairman. Walter C. Lefens and the Northern Trust company are trustees of the property.

Brewing Machinery Sold.

The machinery in the old plant was recently sold to a Buffalo concern, which is reselling it to various breweries throughout the country. Now the owners of the old building have decided it would be cheaper to wreck the buildings than maintain them.

Richard W. Sears, one of the founders of Sears, Roebuck & Co., bought the Portland block in 1909 for one million dollars from D. Percy Morgan, one of the firm of Enoch Morgan's Sons, makers of Sapolio. The property, which fronts 120 feet on Washington and 90 feet on Dearborn, is now owned by Mrs. Anna L. Sears, widow of R. W. Sears. For many years it ranked as one of the city's best known office buildings, with an imposing list of tenants.

Recently it was found that the tax problem had to be solved some way and it was decided that wrecking the building would be the solution. It has not been decided yet whether to lease the cleared space for a parking station or erect a low "tax payer" of one, two, or possibly three stories, according to John R. Magill, agent for the building.

MEMBER BANKS MAY REDISCOUNT IF RESTRICTED

Washington, D. C., March 21.—(AP)—Federal member banks which have not been licensed to reopen on an unrestricted basis today were granted permission by Secretary Woodin to rediscount or pledge with another banking institution renewals of notes which previously were rediscounted or pledged with the other bank.

The action, which permits the unlicensed banks in the federal reserve system to renew their notes or rediscount them, was issued as regulation number 29 of the orders promulgated by Secretary Woodin under authority of the President's bank holiday proclamations.

GOV. LEHMAN OF N. Y. ASKS STRICTER LAWS FOR UTILITY CONTROL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., March 21.—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman sent a special message to the legislature today calling for the enactment of laws that will give the public service commission drastic powers for the control of public utility corporations, particularly those that have not been "so scrupulous" in their relations to the public.

He aims mainly at holding company abuses, and would place greater restrictions about the lending of funds by operating companies for holding company purposes.

"The impact of recent events," said the governor in his message, "has compelled new interest in the regulation of our public utilities. The people, economically harassed, have subjected the service of our public utilities to more careful scrutiny. As evidence I cite the numerous complaints that have been filed.

"I have never doubted that many of the officials of our utilities are fully aware of the social responsibilities of their companies and have conducted their businesses in that spirit. But others have not been and are not so scrupulous. Serious abuses have been forcefully brought to our knowledge. In certain cases rates have been retained at levels distinctly too high for these days."

New Detroit Bank to Take Over 2 Closed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 21.—A new bank for Detroit, to replace the First National and Guardian National Bank of Commerce was today created by General Motors and the United States funds. With its opening, which probably will not be later than next Monday, "immediate" payment of at least 40 per cent will be distributed to depositors of the old banks.

ALFRED P. SLOAN JR.

The announcement was made by Alfred P. Sloan Jr. of General Motors and officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The new bank will be capitalized at $25,000,000, of which amount General Motors will furnish one-half in the form of subscriptions to common stock underwritten and paid in cash. The R. F. C. will furnish the other half of the necessary capital in preferred stock.

Take Over Some Assets.

It is proposed that the new bank will take over part of the assets of the two national banks and also assume part of the deposits. The newly created institution will be the first of its kind chartered under the emergency bank act created by the new Roosevelt administration.

With the same swiftness with which he took office two weeks ago Paul C. Keyes, conservator of the First National, resigned this forenoon, effective at noon today. Keyes would not amplify the simple announcement of the acceptance of his resignation by the controller of the currency, and the treasury department in Washington declined to offer any explanation. O. C. Thomas, for ten years in government service in Washington, was named as successor to Mr. Keyes.

Expect Huge Cash Advance.

The government, it is indicated, is preparing to make large advances of cash from federal reserve banks in addition to the subscribed amount of $12,500,000. It is expected the new Detroit bank will receive as much as $150,000,000 in new currency to increase the amount made available for depositors in the two old banks.

"This step in providing sound banking facilities in Detroit indicates the government's attitude in helping to reconstruct banks on a thoroughly sound basis and in the interests of depositors," said Jesse Jones of the R. F. C. "It is in direct line with President Roosevelt's determination to have banks that are sound and in which the people have confidence. In administering the new banking law, which permits the R. F. C. to subscribe to preferred stock, the directors of the R. F. C. have adopted the principle of matching dollars with the stockholders and depositors of banks, subscribing one dollar of preferred stock for one dollar common stock.

"The government cannot be expected to furnish all of the new capital required."

Sloan's Statement.

"It is the policy of General Motors corporation to consider its relationship with the public as a most vital interest," said Alfred P. Sloan Jr., head of General Motors.

"It was and is vital to the entire American public to bring order out of the chaotic Detroit banking situation—in terms of almost one million bank depositors and their dependents in the city of Detroit, the hub of the motor industry, to the hundreds of thousands of our own and other workers, to our stockholders and to those millions throughout all industry in America dependent upon the motor industry for their well-being."

Mr. Sloan asserted his company has no desire to enter the banking business. It will eventually divest itself of the stock it is buying and will offer to sell it immediately to depositors in the two old banks at the price the corporation is paying itself, $50 a share, he said.

Name Conservator for Bank.

Lansing, Mich., March 21.—(AP)—The Union Guardian Trust company tonight filed a petition with State Banking Commissioner Rudolph E. Reichert asking the appointment of a conservator for the bank. The conservator will be named following a meeting tomorrow noon of the commissioner, Gov. Comstock, and the newly appointed advisory board named by the governor this afternoon to act with the commissioner and governor in carrying out provisions of the emergency banking bill made law today. The Union Guardian Trust company is the institution whose affairs were cited by the governor as necessitating the bank holiday proclaimed Feb. 14.

Cleveland Plans Reorganization.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., March 21.—Organization of a new national bank, freeing of a percentage of deposits, gradual liquidation of frozen assets, and a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan are called for in reorganization plans of the Union Trust company, Cleveland's second largest bank, which were made public today.

Federal officials will approve the plan for creating a new national bank to replace the Union Trust company, although the scale of the project may be altered, it was learned. An R. F. C. examiner is expected to be sent to Cleveland this week.

The proposed bank, it was said, would have capital of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 and assets of $50,000,000, as compared with the $22,550,000 capital and assets of $253,276,599 for the Union Trust at the close of last year.

Hops Take Hop to New Top as Cheer of Beer Appears

New York, March 21.—(AP)—Hops showed continued strength today, advancing 1 to 2 cents a pound into new high ground for the movement, which began several days ago in anticipation of the return of beer. A brisk inquiry was reported. Pacific coast prime to choice 1932 hops were quoted at 35 to 37 cents.

TWO LOOP BANKS PAY DIVIDENDS; 2 DEFER ACTION

Action in "Spirit of Federal Program."

Members of the boards of directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and of the First National bank—Chicago's two largest banks—last evening voted to defer action on dividends on their stock at this time. Directors of the Northern Trust company and of the Harris Trust and Savings bank voted the regular quarterly dividends.

This action of the boards of the Continental Illinois and of the First National had been expected for some time. The general trend in bank dividends, in New York, Chicago and other large cities, has been downward for the last two years.

Traylor Explains Action.

In commenting on the action of the board of directors of the First National bank in not declaring a dividend on its stock, Melvin A. Traylor, president, said that the action of the board followed the recommendations of the officers of the bank, which he felt to be in keeping with the spirit of the banking program of the federal government.

Mr. Traylor said further that it would be the policy of the management of the bank to conserve earnings and build up reserves during the present period of national economic reconstruction.

"In harmony with what appears to be the governmental policy of conserving bank assets, although the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company during the first quarter has earned its current dividends substantially twice over, the board of directors has considered it advisable to defer dividend action at this time.

Other Banks Maintain Rates.

The Northern Trust board declared the regular quarterly dividend on the capital stock, maintaining the regular annual rate of $18. The dividend is payable April 18 to stock of record March 21.

The Harris Trust directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $3 on the bank's capital stock. This dividend is payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 17.

The First National bank previously had been paying $3 quarterly, having made only one reduction since 1928, when its stock was put on an $18 annual basis. Continental Illinois paid $16 a share annually until April 1, 1932, when the rate was cut to $12. The rate was reduced to $8 annually on Oct. 1, 1932, and was put on a $6 annual basis on Jan. 1, 1933.

Deferment of dividend action by the Continental Illinois and the First National was anticipated yesterday in the unlisted market. Chicago bank stocks held steady, there being little change from Monday's close. Continental Illinois closed at 49 bid and 50 asked, compared with 50 bid and 51 asked on Monday. First National remained unchanged at 78 bid and 80 asked. Harris Trust closed at 275 bid and 290 asked, compared with 285 bid and 300 asked on Monday. Northern Trust was unchanged at 325 bid and 360 asked.

N. Y. BANKS VOTE PAYMENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—Trustees of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company voted today to continue dividends on the present scale. The regular quarterly payment of $1.50 a share was ordered, payable on April 1 to stock of record of March 23.

The Empire Trust company's trustees voted to reduce the quarterly dividend on their stock to 25 cents a share, payable on April 1 to stock of record of March 24. Previously the company paid 40 cents quarterly.

A reduction in the quarterly rate was voted also by trustees of the Title Guarantee and Trust company, who declared a dividend of 40 cents a share, payable on March 31 to stockholders of record of March 22. The company has paid 80 cents.

J. R. LEAVELL NAMED DIRECTOR OF RESERVE BANK

James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, has been elected a class A director of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago. Mr. Leavell is to serve the unexpired term of George M. Reynolds, former chairman of the Continental bank.

Mr. Leavell's name was put forward two months ago when Mr. Reynolds resigned. The process of election takes about 60 days. Each of the member banks in group 1 votes on the candidates.

100 Millions Gold Returned to Banks Here

Gold receipt passed the 100 million dollar mark yesterday as hoarders continued to return the metal to the Chicago reserve bank and other banking institutions throughout the seventh reserve district.

Reserve bank officials announced last night that 6 millions had been taken in Saturday and another 8 millions Monday, swelling the total to 94½ millions. Yesterday's receipts were estimated around 5 millions, bringing the amount received since the secretary of the treasury issued the anti-hoarding regulations to more than 100 millions. The deadline for the return of hoarded gold is now March 27. Names of persons who have withdrawn gold since Feb. 1 and have not returned it by that date will be turned over to the treasury department.

Allenville—Peoples State Bank of Allenville.
Belvidere—Farmers' State Bank of Belvidere.
Chester—Buena Vista State.
Mason City—Central Illinois State.
Hampshire—State Bank of Hampshire.
Aviston—State Bank of Aviston.
Capron—Capron bank.
Fairmount—Portersfields' State Bank of Fairmount.

Other Banks Reopen.

Twenty-two more state banks resumed business in Illinois yesterday. Among the banks in the Chicago district which reopened are:

Oak Park—Prairie State.
Zion City—Zion Bank of Zion.

Resumption of business by the Prairie State marks the reopening of the second bank in the western suburb. The Avenue State reopened last week.

Announcement was made at the reserve bank yesterday that the Riceville State bank of Riceville, Ia., had been granted a license to resume business.

WEIGH PLAN TO PUT CITY MONEY IN OUTSIDE BANKS

The finance committee of the city council yesterday recommended the passage of an ordinance calling for a referendum on a proposal to permit the city to deposit its funds in banks outside of Chicago. If the ordinance is adopted by the council today the referendum will be held concurrently with the June 5 judicial election.

Under the present law the city is prohibited from depositing any of its funds in other than Chicago banks. At the finance committee meeting the aldermen expressed the opinion that the law should be changed on the grounds that the closing of a number of banks has limited the available depositories, and that competition between banks for the city's business might increase the interest rate on deposits. At present the banks are paying the city one-half of 1 per cent interest.

The committee also recommended that the banks put up tax warrants of the city, board of education, municipal tuberculosis sanitarium or the city library as security for city deposits. In the past the banks have pledged various classes of securities.

POTATO CHIPS TO EAT WITH BEER BRING ORDER FOR MACHINERY

The potato chip industry is going to vie with the pretzel industry in providing a companion for the stein of beer when the amber beverage begins to flow again in April. George Gavora of the Honey Bee Specialties company states that his concern proposes to spend $10,000 on potato chip manufacturing equipment and $2,000 on trucks. The company also will sublet contracts totaling $5,000 for packing materials.

"We anticipate a huge volume of potato chip business on the return of beer, as potato chips are a wonderful companion of beer," Mr. Gavora says. "We will put on at least 35 new employes. We now have the capacity to turn out 18,000 pounds of potato chips a week. With our new equipment we will be able to turn out at least 50,000 pounds per week."

LINCOLN NAT'L LIFE TAKES OVER OLD LINE FIRM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 21.—The Lincoln National Life Insurance company has taken over the business of the Old Line Life Insurance company, Arthur F. Hall, president of Lincoln, announced today.

The consolidation will increase the insurance in force of the Lincoln National by $30,000,000. The 20,000 policyholders of the Old Line company were reinsured as of Jan. 2, but the actual transfer will not take place until next week. Officials of Lincoln National announced that the merger will increase its assets $4,000,000 and its annual income by $1,250,000.

Mr. Hall said that Lincoln National will maintain a branch office in Lincoln, Neb., which was the headquarters of the Old Line company. The company has 22 other offices in various parts of the country.

Fight to Rule Thompson Co. in the Balance

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The outcome of the fight for control of the John R. Thompson company, nation-wide restaurant chain, was in doubt last night as the annual meeting of stockholders was recessed until 10 a. m. today pending a tally of the proxies presented by the opposing groups.

The fight is a nip and tuck affair and neither side was willing to make any predictions of victory last night.

"I hope to win and believe I have a chance," said John R. Thompson Jr., who is seeking to regain control of the firm which his father founded. William Collins, president of the company, whom young Thompson is seeking to oust, refused to comment on the outcome. Each side, however, admitted that the other would make a strong showing.

Some Disputed Proxies.

There are a number of disputed proxies, it was learned. Last minute campaigning by both sides caused a number of stockholders to switch. Solicitation of votes was spirited until the meeting convened yesterday at 2 p. m. and it was believed that the issue might be decided by a slim margin.

There are 300,000 shares outstanding, of which Thompson was said to have direct control of 60,000 shares. It appeared last night that the small stockholders would be a decisive factor in the fight.

Thompson appeared at the meeting with Sidney S. Gorham, his attorney, and other associates. The meeting opened with Collins presiding, but he later withdrew in favor of E. S. Swaim, executive vice president.

Meeting Recessed Twice.

The meeting was recessed first until 7 o'clock last night. When stockholders reconvened, however, it was found that the tellers were still buried in the work of tallying the proxies and a second recess was taken until this morning.

The company has 2,500 stockholders. The present company was incorporated in 1914 as successor to the original firm organized by the late John R. Thompson Sr.

The company's greatest expansion has come in recent years. It now operates 115 restaurants in the principal cities of the country.

CHICAGO STOCK BOARD DEMANDS FULL PUBLICITY

Independent Audits One of 10 New Rules

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Governors of the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday voted new and drastic requirements for security listing and definitely committed the exchange to a policy of full publicity of all details regarding company finances and security transactions.

PAUL H. DAVIS. [Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Ten rules were approved by the governors. Several of them were not entirely new in form, but the emphasis is new. It is summed up in the tenth rule adopted yesterday as follows:

"The Chicago Stock exchange favors a policy of full publicity. After a security has been listed the public and the press will be given access to listing applications and to reports filed with the exchange."

Most important of the new regulations is one which requires regular and complete audits of company finances by independent auditors, such reports to be made directly to the exchange rather than to the company.

Expect Business Pickup.

Announcement of the changes was made yesterday afternoon by Paul H. Davis, president of the exchange. Present were members of the governing board and other exchange officials.

"We have taken this action now," Mr. Davis said, "because we feel that business has reached a point where

ONE service in ONE part of ONE state

COMPLETE interconnection of facilities is the chief distinguishing characteristic of the Pacific Lighting utility group.

This policy has kept Pacific Lighting service confined to one branch of the utility business—gas and electric—in Southern California, where it started nearly fifty years ago with a small gas plant in Los Angeles, then a town of ten thousand homes.

A utility investor's choice between the securities of a system which is highly localized or one which groups together various units too widely separated or too different in character to be physically connected must weigh certain advantages of each.

On the one hand a group of scattered companies engaged in various branches of the business offers a high degree of diversification both geographically and commercially. Pacific Lighting's interests, on the other hand, are concentrated in eleven Southern California counties, where the system serves approximately one million users of gas and electricity. Its welfare is necessarily bound up with the development of this one large territory.

The justification of this policy of localization is essentially economic. Actual physical interconnection of all parts of the Pacific Lighting system is a primary factor in its ability to give dependable service at low rates.

From the standpoint of management, also, exclusive attention to the utility problems of this single territory throughout nearly half a century of its development is unquestionably beneficial to the service and to the interests of the stockholders.

Pacific Lighting's structure is exactly comparable to that of a large utility operating company, with departments serving various sections of the territory. It operates, however, as a holding company for the sake of the greater mobility of action which that form allows in acquiring or disposing of properties, taking advantage of opportunities for economical financing, etc.

In former years, before the Pacific Lighting system had developed to its present scope, diversification was extremely limited. Now the company considers that it has attained a stage of development which offers not only the advantages of a highly economic plan of service operation and management, but a reasonable diversification of domestic, industrial, commercial and agricultural uses over a populous area of 38,000 square miles.

The company's cash dividend record is continuous for more than a generation, with only one interruption since 1887.

Pacific Lighting Corporation is offering no securities at the present time but is continuing to finance construction requirements with its own funds. These advertisements are designed to increase the investing public's knowledge of the company and its securities, as an aid to the economical marketing of future issues.

14 Standards of Utility Investment

Equity investments in utility companies are now usually available to investors only through the securities of holding companies.

In the final analysis, those holding companies which render the greatest economic service—lower cost of financing, operating economies and improvements in service—are best able to earn dividends and conserve property values. The earning power and efficient use of invested capital must rest, in the long run, upon organization, management, and service

These advertisements describe the outstanding features of the structure developed by Pacific Lighting during its 46 years of utility operation in Southern California. They deal individually with:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—Lower prices ruled in the bond market in dull trading today, with United States government issues the greatest losers.

Traders disliked the growing possibility of a long term treasury bond sale to meet certificate maturities on May 2 and June 15, with the result that prices for federal obligations receded nearly a point in some cases.

Especial weakness developed in Liberty Fourth 4¼s, which reflected talk in Wall street that a huge refunding operation for this issue may be undertaken soon. Since this issue has a wide public distribution, there was a logical fear that its refunding would attract a supply of these bonds to the market.

Fear New Relief Plans.

Another factor in the sudden disfavor that government bonds have encountered is the fear that the administration's unemployment relief program will entail further demands upon the treasury and consequent additional borrowing.

The rest of the bond market lapsed into a lethargic state, brought about to no little extent by the lack of interest on the part of institutional investors. Insurance companies and savings banks have little part in the buying, the former because buying of securities appears incompatible with discontinuance of dividends and policy loans, and the latter because of the restriction placed upon deposit withdrawals.

Speculative Bonds Weak.

Speculative bonds, too, felt the uncertainty which pervades trading circles. Since it became apparent that the government did not contemplate any wild inflation, buying of such bonds was proceeded with more caution.

Speculative railroad bonds eased from fractions to more than a point. Rail bonds to sell off included Great Northern 7s, issues of the Missouri Pacific and New York Central, St. Louis-Iron Mountain 4s, Pennsylvania debenture 4½s, Chicago Great Western 4s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5½s, and others.

Liggett & Myers bonds, including 5s, due 1951, and the 7s, due 1944, rallied from 3 to 4 points. Industrials and utilities generally, however, were lower.

STOCKS DECLINE ON PROPOSAL TO SPEND FOR JOBS

Wall Street Fears Plans for Relief of Idle.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—Some of the enthusiasm generated in Wall street by the new administration's budget cutting accomplishments disappeared today in popular misgivings over the new plans for expenditures to create jobs and further relief programs in an effort to yank prosperity around the corner.

Traders switched to the selling side of the stock market en masse, and net losses of 1 to 3 points and more were the rule for the whole list. Considerable liquidation of bank holdings was reported.

Utility shares had an extra burden in the form of disturbing comment from both federal and state sources on the outlooks for rates and regulations.

Rails React on News.

Reports that the plans for railroad rehabilitation had been shunted aside temporarily at Washington brought fresh selling into the carrier shares and rubber issues backed off in face of fresh slashing of tire prices.

Even the repeal stocks had to take it on the chin, some holders figuring that the effect of beer's return had been amply discounted for the time being.

By groups the utilities had to bear the big end of the day's selling. A special message sent to the New York state legislature by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman calling for the enactment of legislation to "drastically" curb the activities of these companies and hinting at downward rate revision accentuated the liquidation in this quarter of the market. American Telephone closed down to 97¾ and closed showing a loss of nearly 4 points on the day. Consolidated Gas, under pressure for several days, gave up another 3 points, and losses from 2 to nearly 5 points were sustained by Public Service, Peoples Gas, and others.

Rails Resist Trend.

The rails did not begin their retreat until well long in the afternoon. Rumors were about in the early dealings that relief action in their behalf would be forthcoming, first in the repeal of the recapture clause and regulation of competing transporting facilities and short covering buoyed the whole group, in contrast to growing weakness elsewhere.

With the sending of the President's relief message to congress, however, came word that the railroad program was to be sidetracked for a while, and there was a general rush to sell shares of this division at fast receding prices.

Motor shares were weak, with General Motors bearing the brunt of a heavy bear attack. The selling in this leader aroused no little conjecture in the board rooms. The issue lost nearly a point.

Easiness in the commodity markets caused Case Threshing Machine and other farm implements to decline.

DEALERS TO HEAR SELLING PLANS OF FRIGIDAIRE

Selling and advertising plans of the Frigidaire corporation will be outlined here today at a meeting of dealers and executives at the Hotel Knickerbocker. A number of executives of the company which is a subsidiary of General Motors are here for the meeting.

J. J. Nance, manager of the sales planning division, and a group of factory executives arrived yesterday. Chicago is one of the 36 cities in which the company is assembling its field organization to discuss selling plans. Lowell McCutcheon is head of the sales organization here.

PRICES OF HOGS DROP FOLLOWING EARLY STRENGTH

Weakness in Heavy Swine Pulls Down Market.

The market for hogs turned reactionary yesterday, after getting away to a strong to slightly higher start. Most weakness was found in big type swine, with prices falling away rapidly in mid-session and later. The close was at the low point of the day and unevenly 5 to 20 cents lower than the high point of the forenoon.

This unexpected break was instrumental in pulling down quotations in the light weight column also, but the bulk of the supply of high quality light hogs changed hands at the early strength.

Prices ruled strong to 5 cents higher at the opening, selected 170 to 210 pound averages raising the top price to $4.35, or within 5 cents of the highest point since Sept. 26.

Most Sales Above $4.

The majority of the day's crop of hogs cashed within a range of $4 to $4.25, wit hsome good 325 to 400 pound averages selling as low as $3.85 to $3.95.

Larger houses showed little interest until heavy hogs commenced to slip badly. Then they threw some support into classes exceeding 300 pounds. Current quotations still are fully 25 cents above a week ago and 75 cents higher than three weeks ago.

Cattle followed an unchanged course yesterday. Demand for low priced light cattle and top grades of yearling steers, the kinds selling at the two extremes of the price list, was some better and these classes exhibited a little strength in places. The rank and file of offerings progressed slowly.

Large local packers were aggressive bidders in the top classes, Swift taking several carloads of 1,010 to 1,105 pound averages at the $7 top for full carloads. Five steers averaging 1,104 pounds sold at $7.25.

Narrow Price Range.

The range of beef cattle prices is the narrowest in many years. Yesterday's range of $4 to $7 for full carload lots showed a spread of $3 from low to high. A year ago this spread was $3.50, two years ago it was $4, and three years ago, $6. However, three years ago cattle were selling for more than double.

Lamb prices forged ahead on late afternoon rounds and closed from 10 to 15 cents above the high point of Monday. City butchers paid up to $6.15 near the close. Yard traders were buying at $6.10 late, while packers took in several bands as high as $6. Lambs without fleece cashed at $5.50 and yearling wethers at $4.75. Since the opening of last week lambs have advanced from 50 to 60 cents.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was inactive today and an early advance of 5 points to the basis of 3.05 cents for spots remained unchanged. Refiners with sugars available later at slightly below this level, or at 3.03c. Sales confirmed were 45,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment to local refiners at 3.05c, and 10,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment to an outside refiner at the same level. Futures were generally lower on increased liquidation and hedge selling with final prices down 5 to 6 points. Sales were 58,350 tons, including 10,300 tons in exchanges. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
March	1.08	1.08	1.01	1.01	1.07

Refined was firmer following the recent upturn in raws with all refiners advancing 10 points to the basis of 4.20c at the close today. This announcement led to a little more new buying at the 4.10c level, but demand was not as active as on the previous move.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was irregular, but generally lower today under increased liquidation, promoted by the weakness of stocks, lard and cotton. Closing prices were 3 points higher to 4 points lower. Sales were 31 contracts, of which 36 were in exchanges from May to September at 29 points difference. The firmness in corn, steadiness of crude oil and further advance in hogs were ignored. Bleachable spot closed 3.90c; Mar., 3.94c; May, 4.01c; July, 4.15c; Sept., 4.20c.

SOLUTION TO THE MAN IN THE WHEEL CHAIR

The nurse followed newly made spots of tobacco juice and told by the spittles the direction in which the maker was proceeding. He found the old gentleman having a great time hiding in an alleyway chewing to his heart's content.
